Schleifer McCormick,2014-10-30 The question of whether it is ever permissible to believe on insufficient evidence has once again become a live question Greater attention is now being paid to practical dimensions of belief namely issues related to epistemic virtue doxastic responsibility and voluntarism In this book McCormick argues that the standards used to evaluate beliefs are not isolated from other evaluative domains The ultimate criteria for assessing beliefs are the same as those for assessing action because beliefs and actions are both products of agency Two important implications of this thesis both of which deviate from the dominant view in contemporary philosophy are 1 it can be permissible and possible to believe for non evidential reasons and 2 we have a robust control over many of our beliefs a control sufficient to ground attributions of responsibility for belief Belief Francis S. Belief's Own Ethics Jonathan E. Adler,2006-01-20 The fundamental question of the ethics of belief is What ought one to believe According to the traditional view of evidentialism the strength of one s beliefs should be proportionate to the evidence Conventional ways of defending and challenging evidentialism rely on the idea that what one ought to believe is a matter of what it is rational prudent ethical or personally fulfilling to believe Common to all these approaches is that they look outside of belief itself to determine what one ought to believe In this book Jonathan Adler offers a strengthened version of evidentialism arguing that the ethics of belief should be rooted in the concept of belief that evidentialism is belief's own ethics A key observation is that it is not merely that one ought not but that one cannot believe for example that the number of stars is even The cannot represents a conceptual barrier not just an inability Therefore belief in defiance of one's evidence or evidentialism is impossible Adler addresses such questions as irrational beliefs reasonableness control over beliefs and whether justifying beliefs requires a foundation Although he treats the ethics of belief as a central topic in epistemology his ideas also bear on rationality argument and pragmatics philosophy of religion ethics and social cognitive psychology The Belief Book Chuck Harrison, David G. O'Malley, 2000 O'Malley ranges widely through modern science classical philosophy literature and art and the religious traditions of East and West Yet he also probes his own heart In part God The Oldest Question is an account of O Malley s own intellectual and spiritual journey which included a shattering crisis of faith only a year before he was to be ordained a priest a crisis that a careful study of the arguments of atheist thinkers helped him later resolve This painfully honest and intellectually inspiring book enlists both the mind and the heart in an ultimately satisfying quest for God BOOK JACKET
