scientists      The Construction of Preference Sarah Lichtenstein, Paul Slovic, 2006-08-28 One of the main themes that has emerged from behavioral decision research during the past three decades is the view that people's preferences are often constructed in the process of elicitation. This idea is derived from studies demonstrating that normatively equivalent methods of elicitation e.g. choice and pricing give rise to systematically different responses. These preference reversals violate the principle of procedure invariance that is fundamental to all theories of rational choice. If different elicitation procedures produce different orderings of options, how can preferences be defined and in what sense do they exist? This book shows not only the historical roots of preference construction but also the blossoming of the concept within psychology, law, marketing, philosophy, environmental policy and economics. Decision making is now understood to be a highly contingent form of information processing sensitive to task complexity, time pressure, response mode, framing, reference points and other contextual factors.

Contemporary and Emerging Issues on the Law of Damages and Valuation in International Investment Arbitration Christina L. Beharry, 2018-04-03 Damages and other forms of redress are the object of nearly every international investment dispute. Given the financial stakes in these cases, compensation is a key concern for both foreign investors and States. The increasingly large sums awarded and the growing complexity of claims call for a renewed analysis of legal and valuation concepts related to damages. Contemporary and Emerging Issues on the Law of Damages and Valuation in International Investment Arbitration edited by Christina L. Beharry examines a broad range of damages topics building on basic principles and surveying current developments to identify trends in the jurisprudence. A central contribution of this book is its exploration of cutting edge issues dominating a new generation of investment awards and the interconnectedness of damages with other areas of international investment law. This volume brings together leading practitioners, experts and academics with extensive experience working on issues related to the law of damages and the quantification of compensation. Readers are provided with a deeper understanding of legal and valuation principles that are often the source of intense debate in international investment cases.
