Unlearning Shame Devon Price, PhD, 2024-02-06 Learn to identify and combat Systemic Shame the feeling of self hatred and disempowerment that comes from living in a society that blames individuals for systemic problems with this invaluable resource from the social psychologist and author of Unmasking Autism Stop doomscrolling and read this book You ll feel better I promise Celeste Headlee journalist and bestselling author Systemic Shame is the socially engineered self loathing that says we are solely to blame for our circumstances It tells us that poverty is remedied by hard working people pulling themselves up by their bootstraps that marginalized people are personally responsible for solving the problem of their own oppression and that massive global crises like climate change can be solved with individual action Feeling overwhelmed That s your problem too The more we try and ultimately fail to live up to impossible societal standards of moral goodness the more shame we feel and the more we retreat into isolation and despair Social psychologist Dr Devon Price knows firsthand the destructive effects of Systemic Shame he experienced shame and self hatred as he grappled with his transgender identity feeling as if his suffering was caused by his own actions rather than systems like cissexism And it doesn t just end with internal feelings of anguish It causes us to judge other people the same way we fear being judged which blocks us from seeking out the acceptance and support we need and discourages us from trying to improve our communities and our relationships In Unlearning Shame Dr Price explores how we can deal with those hard emotions more effectively tackling the societal shame we've absorbed and directed at ourselves. He introduces the antidote to Systemic Shame: expansive recognition, an awareness of one's position in the larger social world and the knowledge that our battles are only won when they are shared. He provides a suite of exercises and resources designed to combat Systemic Shame on a personal, interpersonal, and global level through rebuilding trust in yourself, in others, and in our shared future. By offering a roadmap to healing and a toolkit of actionable items, Unlearning Shame helps us reject hopelessness and achieve sustainable change and personal growth. Habits: plasticity, learning and freedom Javier Bernacer, Jose Angel Lombo, Jose Ignacio Murillo, 2015-11-05. In present times, certain fields of science are becoming aware of the necessity to go beyond a restrictive specialization and establish an open dialogue with other disciplines. Such is the case of the approach that neuroscience and philosophy are performing in the last decade. However, this increasing interest in a multidisciplinary perspective should not be understood in our opinion as a new phenomenon but rather as a return to a classical standpoint: a proper understanding of human features, organic, cognitive, volitional, motor, or behavioral, for example, requires a context that includes the global dimension of the human being. We believe that grand neuroscientific conclusions about the mind should take into account what philosophical reflection has said about it; likewise, philosophers should consider the organic constitution of the brain to draw inferences about the mind. Thus, both neuroscience and philosophy would benefit from each other's achievements through a fruitful dialogue. One of the main problems a multidisciplinary group encounters is terminology: the same term has a different scope in various fields, sometimes even contradictory. Such is the case of habits. From a neuroscientific perspective, a habit is a mere automation of an action. It is therefore linked to rigidity and limitation. However, from a classical philosophical account, a habit is an enabling capacity acquired through practice which facilitates, improves, and reinforces the performance of certain kind of actions. From neuroscience, habit acquisition restricts a subject's action to the learnt habit; from philosophy, habit acquisition allows the subject to set a distance from the simple motor performance to cognitively enrich the action. For example, playing piano is a technical habit; considering the neuroscientific account, a pianist would just play those sequences of keystrokes that had been repeatedly practiced in the past. However, according to the philosophical perspective, it would allow the pianist to improvise and moreover go beyond the movements of their hands to concentrate in other features of musical interpretation. In other words, a holistic view of habits focuses on the subject's disposition when facing both known and novel situations. We believe neuroscience could contribute to achieve a deeper understanding of the neural bases of habits whose complexity could be deciphered by a philosophical reflection. Thus, we propose this Research Topic to increase our understanding on habits from a wide point of view. This collection of new experimental research, empirical and theoretical reviews, general commentaries, and opinion articles covers the following subjects: habit learning, implicit memory, computational and complex dynamical accounts of habit formation, practical cognitive, perceptual, and motor habits, early learning, intentionality, consciousness in habits, performance, neurological and psychiatric disorders related to habits such as obsessive compulsive disorder stereotypes or addiction habits as enabling or limiting capacities for the agent

An Epidemic of Rumors Jon D. Lee, 2014-01-14 In An Epidemic of Rumors Jon D Lee examines the human response to epidemics through the lens of the 2003 SARS epidemic. Societies usually respond to the eruption of disease by constructing stories, jokes, conspiracy theories, legends, and rumors, but these narratives are often more damaging than the diseases they reference. The information disseminated through them is often inaccurate, incorporating xenophobic explanations of the disease's origins and questionable medical information about potential cures and treatment. Folklore studies brings important and useful perspectives to understanding cultural responses to the outbreak of disease. Through this etiological study, Lee shows the similarities between the narratives of the SARS outbreak and the narratives of other contemporary disease outbreaks like AIDS and the H1N1 virus. His analysis suggests that these disease narratives do not spring up with new outbreaks or diseases but are in continuous circulation and are recycled opportunistically. Lee also explores whether this predictability of vernacular disease narratives presents the opportunity to create counter narratives released systematically from the government or medical science to stymie the negative effects of the fearful rumors that so often inflame humanity. With potential for practical application to public health and health policy, An Epidemic of Rumors will be of interest to students and scholars of health, medicine, and folklore.
