

Appleby's 2023 Quick Reference Guide for: Required Minimum Distributions Overview for IRAs and Employer Plans

RMD Overview: Use this guide to help determine the required minimum distribution rules that apply to IRAs, defined contribution plans, 403(b)s and Governmental 457(b) plans.

Required Minimum Distribution Rules for IRAs, Defined Contribution Plans, 403(b)s and Gov't 457(b)s

Owners and beneficiaries of retirement accounts are subject to required minimum distribution (RMD) rules. Under these rules, RMD amounts must be withdrawn by deadlines as determined under the tax code.

Failure to withdraw RMD amounts by the applicable deadline will result in the account owner being subject to an excise tax on the RMD shortfall. This quick reference guide addresses RMDs for account owners.

Reminder: RMDs were waived for defined contribution plans and IRAs for 2020.

RMD Defined: The RMD is the minimum amount that must be withdrawn from a retirement account for a year for which an RMD is due. The RMD is determined by dividing:

- (a) the fair market value for the end of the year that precedes the year for which the RMD is being calculated, by
- (b) the life expectancy or distribution period for the year for which the RMD is being calculated.

The life expectancy/distribution period is determined under one of the following IRS life-expectancy tables:

- The Uniform Lifetime Table: This is used to calculate RMD amounts for account owners. The table provides a 'distribution period' based on the age of the account owner and a beneficiary that is ten years younger than the account owner. While the true age of the account owner is used, the beneficiary's age used is ten years younger than the account owner regardless of the true age of the beneficiary.
- The Joint Life and Last Survivor Expectancy Table: The Joint Life and Last Survivor Expectancy table is used to calculate RMDs for an account owner, when the spouse of the account owner is the sole primary beneficiary of the account and is more than 10 years younger than the account owner. The true ages of the account owner and the beneficiary are used to determine the joint life expectancy for the year for which the RMD is being calculated.

RMD Start Dates for Various Birthdates and Ages

Year/date of birth	Attained age relevant to RMDs	Applicable age at which RMDs begin
June 30, 1949 and earlier	• Attained age 70½ before 2020	The year they attained age 70½
July 1, 1949–December 31, 1950	• Attained age 70½ after 2019 • Attained age 72 before 2023	The year they attained age 72
January 1, 1951–December 31, 1959	• Attain age 72 after 2022 • Attain age 73 before 2033	The year they attain age 73
January 1, 1959 and after	• Attain age 74 after 2032	The year they attain age 75
