Global Human Rights Institutions Gerd Oberleitner, 2013-04-30 The range of global human rights institutions which have been created over the past half century is a remarkable achievement Yet their establishment and proliferation raises important questions Why do states create such institutions and what do they want them to achieve Does this differ from what the institutions themselves seek to accomplish Are global human rights institutions effective remedies for violations of human dignity or temples for the performance of stale bureaucratic rituals What happens to human rights when they are being framed in global institutions This book is an introduction to global human rights institutions and to the challenges and paradoxes of institutionalizing human rights Drawing on international legal scholarship and international relations literature it examines UN institutions with a human rights mandate the process of mainstreaming human rights international courts which adjudicate human rights and non governmental human rights organizations In mapping the ever more complex network of global human rights institutions it asks what these institutions are and what they are for It critically assesses and appraises the ways in which global institutions bureaucratize human rights and reflects on how this process is changing our perception of human rights

Krass,Peter Boskma,Boelie Elzen,Wim A. Smit,Stockholm International Peace Research Institute,2020-11-20 Originally published in 1983 this book presents both the technical and political information necessary to evaluate the emerging threat to world security posed by recent advances in uranium enrichment technology Uranium enrichment has played a relatively quiet but important role in the history of efforts by a number of nations to acquire nuclear weapons and by a number of others to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons For many years the uranium enrichment industry was dominated by a single method gaseous diffusion which was technically complex extremely capital intensive and highly inefficient in its use of energy As long as this remained true only the richest and most technically advanced nations could afford to pursue the enrichment route to weapon acquisition But during the 1970s this situation changed dramatically Several new and far more accessible enrichment techniques were developed stimulated largely by the anticipation of a rapidly growing demand for enrichment services by the world wide nuclear power industry This proliferation of new techniques coupled with the subsequent contraction of the commercial market for enriched uranium has created a situation in which uranium enrichment technology might well become the most important contributor to further nuclear weapon proliferation Some of the issues addressed in this book are A technical analysis of the most important enrichment techniques in a form that is relevant to analysis of proliferation risks A detailed projection of the world demand for uranium enrichment services A summary and critique of present institutional non proliferation arrangements in the world enrichment industry and An identification of the states most likely to pursue the enrichment route to acquisition of nuclear weapons

It comprises important scientific research on the social, economic and environmental pillars of sustainable mountain development and will serve as a basis for evidence-based decision making to safeguard the environment and advance people's well-being. The compiled content is based on the collective knowledge of over 300 leading researchers, experts and policymakers brought together by the Hindu Kush Himalayan Monitoring and Assessment Programme (HIMAP) under the coordination of the International Centre for Integrated Mountain Development (ICIMOD). This assessment was conducted between 2013 and 2017 as the first of a series of monitoring and assessment reports under the guidance of the HIMAP Steering Committee. Eklavya Sharma (ICIMOD), Atiq Raman (Bangladesh), Yuba Raj Khatri (Nepal), Linxiu Zhang (China), Surendra Pratap Singh (India), Tandong Yao (China) and David Molden (ICIMOD and Chair of the HIMAP SC). This First HKH Assessment Report consists of 16 chapters which comprehensively assess the current state of knowledge of the HKH region, increase the understanding of various drivers of change and their impacts, address critical data gaps and develop a set of evidence-based and actionable policy solutions and recommendations. These are linked to nine mountain priorities for the mountains and people of the HKH, consistent with the Sustainable Development Goals. This book is a must-read for policy makers, academics and students interested in this important region and an essentially important resource for contributors to global assessments such as the IPCC reports.

Communicating Science

Toss Gascoigne, Bernard Schiele, Joan Leach, Michelle Riedlinger, Luisa Massarani, Bruce V. Lewenstein, Peter Broks, 2020-09-14 Modern science communication has emerged in the twentieth century as a field of study, a body of practice and a profession, and it is a practice with deep historical roots. We have seen the birth of interactive science centres, the first university actions in teaching and conducting research, and a sharp growth in employment of science communicators. This collection charts the emergence of modern science communication across the world. This is the first volume to map investment around the globe in science centres, university courses and research publications and conferences, as well as tell the national stories of science communication. How did it all begin? How has development varied from one country to another? What motivated governments, institutions and people to see science communication as an answer to questions of the social place of science? Communicating Science describes the pathways followed by 39 different countries. All continents and many cultures are represented. For some countries, this is the first time that their science communication story has been told.
