After Dracula Alison Peirse, 2013-08-28 After Dracula tells of films set in London music halls and Yorkshire coal mines South Sea Islands and Hungarian modernist houses of horror with narrators that survey the outskirts of contemporary Paris and travel back in time to ancient Egypt Alison Peirse argues that Dracula 1931 has been canonised to the detriment of other innovative and original 1930s horror films in Europe and America By casting out the deified vampire she reveals a cycle of films made over the 1930s that straddle both the pre and post regulatory era of the Hays Production Code an stringent censorship from the British Board of Film Censors These films are independent and studio productions literary adaptations folktales and original screenplays and include Werewolf of London The Man Who Changed His Mind Island of Lost Souls and Vampyr The book considers the horror genre's international evolution during this period engaging with a number of European horror films that have hitherto received cursory attention It focuses on the interplay between Continental British and transatlantic contexts and particularly on the intriguing the obscure and the underrated

Historic Indoor Microclimate of the Heritage Buildings Marco Pretelli, Kristian Fabbri, 2017-10-24 Offering readers essential insights into the relationship between ancient buildings their original and current indoor microclimates this book details how the generally virtuous relationship between buildings and their typical microclimate changed due to the introduction of new heating ventilation and air conditioning HVAC systems in historic buildings The new approach to the study of their Historic Indoor Microclimate HIM put forward in this book is an essential component to monitoring and evaluating building and artefact conservation Highlighting the advantages of adopting an indoor microclimatic approach to the preservation of existing historic materials by studying the original conditions of the buildings the book proposes a new methodology linking the preservation restoration of the historic indoor microclimate with diachronic analysis for the optimal preservation of historic buildings Further it discusses a number of frequently overlooked topics such as the simple and well coordinated opening and closing of windows an example extracted from a real case study In turn the authors elaborate the concept of an Historic Indoor Microclimate HIM based on Original Indoor Microclimate OIM which proves useful in identifying the optimal conditions for preserving the materials that make up historic buildings The book s main goal is to draw attention to the advantages of an indoor microclimatic approach to the preservation of existing historic materials manufacture by studying the original conditions of the buildings The introduction of new systems in historic buildings not only has a direct traumatic effect on the actual building and its components but also radically changes one of its vital immaterial elements the Indoor Microclimate Architects restorers and engineers will find that the book addresses the monitoring of the indoor microclimate in selected historic buildings that have managed to retain their original state due to the absence of new HVAC systems and reflects on the advantages of a renewed attention to these aspects
