Maybe You Will Survive A True Story:

Maybe You Will Survive Graham Diamond, Aron Goldfarb, 2018-02-26 In Graham Diamond's collaboration with Aron Goldfarb the reader feels the struggles of people trying to survive during the Holocaust. The author recounts his experiences in Poland during the Holocaust when he escaped from a forced labor camp and with his brother hid in underground holes on the grounds of an estate controlled by the Gestapo. Aron Goldfarb currently lives a quiet simple life. With good reason he is quite proud of his achievements and those of his sons. He and Ester have five grandchildren whom they love dearly. The legacy of his father remains stronger than ever. And with that memory he knows that all his family survive within him. He resides in New York City but makes frequent trips back to Israel where his beloved brother Itzhak and their friend Zisman rest in peace. Graham Diamond began writing as a fantasy and science fiction author. He was born in Manchester, England but was raised in New York City. He is best known for books such as The Haven, Lady of the Haven, The Thief of Kalimar, Chocolate Lenin, and Forest Wars. He soon turned to other genres including historical fiction, thrillers, and later a true story of a Holocaust survivor's family during World War II. Maybe You Will Survive. Diamond was employed as an editorial artist by the New York Times for many years and has also taught creative writing in both New York and California.

Smiling, the palm reader tells Nina that she has a long lifeline as she traces it on her hand. As soon as the words are uttered, the palm reader's facial expression turns to one of fear. In broken English, she whispers, "Break, very bad break in middle of life." Maybe you die. Nina does come close to death at age thirty-four when she and her family are involved in a serious auto accident. She assumes she has successfully cheated the death that the palm reader prophesied. Unfortunately, the sinister and tragic break in the lifeline and its deliverer are yet to be revealed.
