taken for granted and gained such definitional power over management and managers expanded across the globe from often modest and not always respected origins and impacted and continue to impact businesses and increasingly the broader economic and social context Building on extant and some new research the book is unique in bringing together issues and actors that have been examined elsewhere separately Any student or professional of management interested in the evolution of their field or the rise of business schools consultants and business media will find this book both novel and thought provoking

Corporate DNA Arnold Kransdorff, 2017-05-15 For more than half a century the developed world has been chasing productivity It s financed our wealth but that part of output on which our continued prosperity depends productivity growth is petering out The traditional scapegoat has been the dearth of worker skills But the worker skills base has never been higher The other explanation is that it is managers who are not giving full value to their employers The way they re making decisions is conferring virtually no upside potential which means they re leaving us wide open for experience poor competitors to step into our experience rich shoes Exactly as Japan did in the 1960s and the so called BRICK countries Brazil Russia India China especially China and Korea are threatening now If creeping uncompetitiveness is not to overtake us from where are the next round of productivity gains to come from Identifying some gaping holes in the way managers are taught to manage this book outlines both the size of the problem and a solution Businesses and other organizations the author says have to substantially raise the quality of their decision making For this to happen they need to be much better experiential learners And for experiential learning to take place companies and other institutions have to better manage their corporate DNA the institution specific experiences otherwise known as Organizational Memory OM which characterizes any organization's ability to perform is the single biggest influence on decision making excellence. It is a factor of production that has already been paid for at great expense yet is readily discarded in the backwash of the biggest change in workplace practice for more than a century: the actively encouraged flexible labour market. Corporate DNA explains why this key component of intellectual capital should be better managed, can be better managed, and particularly how it can be used to help organizations reduce the pandemic of repeated mistakes. Local Economic and Employment Development (LEED) Entrepreneurship and Higher Education OECD, 2008-10-10. This book examines the role that higher education institutions are currently playing through teaching entrepreneurship and transferring knowledge and innovation to enterprises and discusses how they should develop this role in the future. Advances in Accounting Education Timothy J. Rupert, 2015-01-12. Advances in Accounting Education: Teaching and Curriculum Innovations investigates how teaching methods or curricula programs in accounting can be improved. Volume 16 examines intelligent online tutoring, information literacy in the accounting curriculum, and the importance of the foreign corrupt practices act for accounting education.
