McGregor's Johannesburg Stock Exchange Digest, 1999-05 The Willpower Instinct Kelly McGonigal, 2011-12-29
Based on Stanford University psychologist Kelly McGonigal's wildly popular course The Science of Willpower The Willpower Instinct is the first book to explain the science of self control and how it can be harnessed to improve our health happiness and productivity Informed by the latest research and combining cutting edge insights from psychology economics neuroscience and medicine The Willpower Instinct explains exactly what willpower is how it works and why it matters For example readers will learn Willpower is a mind body response not a virtue It is a biological function that can be improved through mindfulness exercise nutrition and sleep Willpower is not an unlimited resource Too much self control can actually be bad for your health Temptation and stress hijack the brain's systems of self control but the brain can be trained for greater willpower Guilt and shame over your setbacks lead to giving in again but self forgiveness and self compassion boost self control Giving up control is sometimes the only way to gain self control Willpower failures are contagious you can catch the desire to overspend or overeat from your friends but you can also catch self control from the right role models In the groundbreaking tradition of Getting Things Done The Willpower Instinct combines life changing prescriptive advice and complementary exercises to help readers with goals ranging from losing weight to more patient parenting less procrastination better health and greater productivity at work Natural Hazards, UnNatural Disasters World Bank, United Nations, 2010-11-10 This book examines how to ensure that the preventive measures are worthwhile and effective and how people can make decisions individually and collectively at different levels of government McGregor's Johannesburg Stock Exchange Digest Update Derek Hansen, 1999 The First Global Integrated Marine Assessment United Nations, 2017-04-17 The World Ocean Assessment or to give its full title The First Global Integrated Marine Assessment is the outcome of the first cycle of the United Nations Regular Process for Global Reporting and Assessment of the State of the Marine Environment including Socioeconomic Aspects The Assessment provides vital scientifically grounded bases for the consideration of ocean issues including climate change by governments intergovernmental agencies non governmental agencies and all other stakeholders and policymakers involved in ocean affairs Together with future assessments and related initiatives it will support the implementation of the recently adopted 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development particularly its ocean related goals Moreover it will also form an important reference text for marine science courses The SAGE Handbook of Intercultural Competence Darla K. Deardorff, 2009-08-31 Containing chapters by some of the world's leading experts and scholars on the subject this book provides a broad context for intercultural competence Including the latest research on intercultural models and theories it presents guidance on assessing intercultural competence through the exploration of key assessment principles War Surgery Christos Giannou, Marco Baldan, 2009 Africa's Future, Africa's Challenge Marito H. Garcia, Alan Pence, Judith Evans, 2008-01-18 Early childhood from birth through school entry was largely invisible worldwide as a policy concern for much of the twentieth century Children in the eyes of most countries were appendages of their parents or simply embedded in the larger family structure The child did not emerge as a separate social entity until school age typically six or seven Africa's Future Africa's Challenge Early Childhood Care and Development in Sub Saharan Africa focuses on the 130 million children south of the Sahel in this 0-6 age group This book the first of its kind presents a balanced collection of articles written by African and non African authors ranging from field practitioners to academicians and from members of government organizations to those of nongovernmental and local organizations Africa's Future Africa's Challenge compiles the latest data and viewpoints on the state of Sub Saharan Africa's children Topics covered include the rationale for investing in young children policy trends in early childhood development ECD historical perspectives of ECD in Sub Saharan Africa including indigenous approaches new threats from HIV AIDS and the importance of fathers in children's lives The book also addresses policy development and ECD implementation issues presents the ECD programming experience in several countries highlighting best practices and challenges and evaluates the impact of ECD programs in a number of countries

Striking a Balance Sandra Coliver, 1992 Community Rights, Conservation and Contested Land Fred Nelson, 2010 First Published in 2012 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Hard Rock Miner's Handbook Jack De la Vergne, 2008 Learning as Development Daniel A.

Wagner, 2017-10-04 Learning is the foundation of the human experience It begins at birth and never stops a continuous and malleable link across life stages of human development Disparities in learning access and outcomes around the world have deep consequences for income social mobility health and well being For international development practitioners faced with today's unprecedented environmental and geopolitical pressures learning should be viewed as a touchstone and target for those seeking to truly effect global change This book traces the path of international development work from its pre colonial origins to the emergence of economics as the dominant discipline in the field and lays out a new agenda for policymakers researchers and practitioners from early education through adulthood Learning as Development is an attempt to rethink international education in a changing world Sounding the Cape Denis Martin, 2013 For several centuries Cape Town has accommodated a great variety of musical genres which have usually been associated with specific population groups living in and around the city Musical styles and genres produced in Cape Town have therefore been assigned an identity which is first and foremost social This volume tries to question the relationship established between musical styles and genres and social in this case pseudo racial identities In Sounding the Cape Denis Constant Martin recomposes and examines through the theoretical prism of creolisation the history of music in Cape Town deploying analytical tools borrowed from the most recent studies of identity configurations He demonstrates that musical creation in the Mother City and in South Africa has always been nurtured by contacts exchanges and innovations whatever the efforts made by racist powers to separate and divide people according to their origin Musicians interviewed at the dawn of the 21st century confirm that mixture and blending characterise all Cape Town's musics. They also emphasise the importance of a rhythmic pattern particular to Cape Town, the ghoema beat, whose origins are obviously mixed. The study of music demonstrates that the history of Cape Town and of South Africa as a whole undeniably fostered creole societies. Yet twenty years after the collapse of apartheid, these societies are still divided along lines that combine economic factors and racial categorisations. Martin concludes that, were music given a greater importance in educational and cultural policies, it could contribute to fighting these divisions and promote the notion of a nation that, in spite of the violence of racism and apartheid, has managed to invent a unique common culture.

The Paleoanthropology and Archaeology of Big-Game Hunting John D. Speth, 2010-09-17 Since its inception, paleoanthropology has been closely wedded to the idea that big game hunting by our hominin ancestors arose first and foremost as a means for acquiring energy and vital nutrients. This assumption has rarely been questioned and seems intuitively obvious: meat is a nutrient-rich food with the ideal array of amino acids, and big animals provide meat in large, convenient packages. Through new research, the author of this volume provides a strong argument that the primary goals of big game hunting were actually social and political: increasing hunter's prestige and standing, and that the nutritional component was just an added bonus. Through a comprehensive interdisciplinary research approach, the author examines the historical and current perceptions of protein as an important nutrient source, the biological impact of a high protein diet, and the evidence of this in the archaeological record, and provides a compelling reexamination of this long-held conclusion. This volume will be of interest to researchers in Archaeology, Evolutionary Biology, and Paleoanthropology, particularly those studying diet and nutrition.

Reconciliation Through Truth Kader Asmal, Louise Asmal, Ronald Suresh Roberts, 1997 While depicting the horrors of apartheid, this volume also proposes a constructive process designed to enable a free South Africa to avoid lapsing into a cycle of new oppression. The authors demonstrate a challenge that they believe can and must be met by the efforts of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. Nelson Mandela says in his Foreword to this book: "The Truth and Reconciliation Commission is a milestone on the freedom road, and this book illuminates the journey." It presents a necessary perspective on our unfolding future.

The Case for Discrimination Walter E. Block, 2010-12-28 Walter E Block discusses how discrimination effects economics Russian Interests in Sub-Saharan Africa Keir Giles, 2013 An apparent lack of interest by Russia in Sub Saharan Africa over recent years masks persistent key strategic drivers for Moscow to re establish lost influence in the region A preoccupation with more immediate foreign policy concerns has temporarily interrupted a process of Russia reclaiming relationships that were well developed in the Soviet period in order to secure access to mineral and energy resources which are crucial to Russia s economic and industrial interests as well as both existing and new markets for military arms contracts Russian policy priorities in Africa provide both challenges and opportunities for the U S in fields such as nuclear nonproliferation as well as energy security for the United States and its European allies Russian development of key resources in southern Africa should be observed closely Russian trade with the region is significantly underdeveloped with the exception of the arms trade which Russia can be expected to defend vigorously if its markets are challenged including by the prospect of regime change or international sanctions At the same time Russia and the United States have a shared interest in restricting the freedom of movement of terrorist organizations in ungoverned or lightly governed spaces in Africa which opens potential for cooperation between AFRICOM initiatives and Russian presence in the region Russian diplomatic and economic activity in southern Africa should receive continuing attention from U S policymakers due to its direct relevance to a number of U S strategic concerns
