nation state and carrying with it far reaching implications for sustainable growth development and the environment Although both developed and developing countries are actively participating in this saga of globalization nearly ninety countries as the United Nations Human Development Report 1996 indicates are worse off economically than they were ten years ago leading to global polarization between haves and have nots The report further indicates that the gap between the per capita incomes of the industrialized world and the developing countries far from narrowing has more than tripled during the last thirty years Further a majority of the countries benefitting from this globalization drive have seen a rise in inequality and poverty This failure of market driven globalization to reward the benefits equitably led the United Nations to proclaim 1996 as the International Year for the Eradication of Poverty IYEP and the decade of 1997 2006 as the international decade for the eradication of poverty and to promote people centered sustainable development

You Cannot Surge Trust Gary E. Weir, Sandra J. Doyle, U. S. Naval History & Heritage Command, 2013-10 From the foreword As our nation and our Navy shift their focus away from the land wars in Iraq and Afghanistan that have so dominated our internal conversations for more than a decade and pivot toward the Asia Pacific region it is most appropriate that this study You Cannot Surge Trust should make its appearance The assembled authors under the assured editorial hand of Sandra Doyle bring forward a series of episodes that demonstrate the evolving and increasingly important nature of maritime coalition operations around the world Beginning with a look at maritime interception operations in the Arabian Gulf during Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm this work moves forward through the post Cold War era to include recent operations in the Middle East and central Asia Written from a multinational point of view the analysis suggests that nations even superpowers are increasingly dependent upon each other for support during major combat operations and that only by frequent consultation exercises cooperation in technology development and understanding of force structure capabilities will future maritime coalitions be successful This study also advances a larger argument regarding the relevance of naval and maritime history in defense policy development The challenges faced by coalition forces during the 1991 to 2005 period are not so different from what confronted those who sailed before The crews of Continental Navy ships during the American Revolution had difficulty keeping up with French ships owing to differences in the size of the respective fleets and individual ship design During World Wars I and II the U S and Royal navies consistently had to overcome problems inherent in differences in classification and communications Lastly in the increasingly geopolitical complexities of modern warfare illustrated by our experiences operating alongside allies in Korea and Vietnam history reveals that the different rules of engagement under which nations exercise their forces can cause conflicts within a partnership even as the partners prosecute a conflict Each of these issues has been raised before each is examined within You Cannot Surge Trust and each will raise its head again in some future hostility
