Computer-mediated Lexicography in the Foreign Language Learning Context María Carmen Campoy Cubillo, Pilar Safont Jordà, 2004 This volume discusses the latest developments in computerised dictionaries and how they may challenge and change current practices in language learning contexts. It contains contributions of authors from different countries thus providing an international perspective on the topics tackled throughout the book.

Specialised Dictionaries for Learners Pedro Antonio Fuertes Olivera, 2010. The need for constructing a lexicographical theory with a particular focus on specialised dictionaries for learners is well documented in recent publications. This will imply paying attention to at least four basic lexicographic categories: learners, the learner's situation, the learner's needs, and dictionary assistance. In one or other way these categories are analysed in this book whose eleven chapters are grouped into three parts. Part 1 reflects on some of the main ideas defended by the function theory of lexicography, perhaps the theoretical framework that has paid more attention to specialised lexicography. Part 2 presents some proposals that have already been explored in the field of general learner's dictionary and must be incorporated into specialised metalexicography: cultural aspects, figurative meaning, the inclusion of grammatical information, the use of corpora. Part 3 introduces the state of play regarding specialised dictionaries in China and offers some ideas for coping with the proliferation of terminological glossaries in Internet. The book also describes Enrique Alcaraz's academic achievements together with some personal anecdotes and a personal short tribute to his memory.

Planning for Technology Bruce M. Whitehead, Devon F. N. Jensen, Floyd Boschee, 2003. Intended as a how to book for school administrators, Planning for Technology: A Guide for School Administrators, Technology Coordinators and Curriculum Leaders presents a comprehensive framework for integrating technology into schools. Essential information and activities are provided that will help school administrators, technology coordinators and curriculum developers as they consider establishing a school plan that supports in-class technology use for students and teachers. Planning for Technology includes current research on the need for technology initiatives in schools, practical activities for administrators to determine the best ways of integrating the book's suggestions into their context, and the personal experience of school administrators who have successfully implemented technology networks into their classrooms.

Using Online Dictionaries Carolin Müller-Spitzer, 2014-08-22. Until now there has been very little research into the use of online dictionaries. In contrast, the market for online dictionaries is increasing both for academic lexicography and for commercial lexicography, with sales figures for printed reference works in continual decline. This has led to a demand for reliable empirical information on how online dictionaries are actually being used and how they could be made more user friendly. The volume Using Online Dictionaries makes a substantial contribution to closing this research gap. It is divided into four parts. The first part contains articles on fundamental issues: a research review of the empirical studies on digital dictionaries which have already been carried out, and a brief methodological guideline for lexicographical researchers who are interested in conducting their own empirical research. The second part contains the results of two studies that focus on general questions about the use of online dictionaries. It presents empirical data on contexts of dictionary use, on expectations and demands regarding online dictionaries. Furthermore, innovative features such as the use of multimedia elements or the option of a user adaptive interface and questions of design were assessed empirically. The third part of this volume comprises more specific studies of online dictionaries: an eye tracking study evaluating the new web design of the dictionary portal OWID and a log file study which tries to get to the bottom of the following question: Do dictionary users look up frequent words or put differently, is there a connection between how often a word is looked up and how often it appears in a corpus? In the last chapter of this thematic section, the question of how users judge the combination of a written paraphrase and an additional illustration in illustrated online dictionaries is addressed. The last part focuses on the use of monolingual dictionaries, in particular the German online dictionary elexiko. In this context, two online questionnaire based studies were carried out. The empirical studies were conducted in the form of online surveys combining questionnaires and experimental elements and in the form of laboratory studies using eye tracking technology as well as using observational methods such as log file analyses. Regarding the comprehensive research framework, this volume can be relevant to lexicographers, metalexicographers and linguists who are interested in the use of online dictionaries and in the development and exploration of lexicographical data for the internet as well as linguists interested in empirical methods. It addresses a broad expert audience by presenting an academic subject which is currently the focus of much discussion.

Cyberpl@y Brenda Danet, 2020-05-28 The Internet is changing the way we communicate. As a cross between letter writing and conversation, email has altered traditional letter writing conventions. Websites and chat rooms have made visual aspects of written communication of greater importance, arguably than ever before. New communication codes continue to evolve with unprecedented speed. This book explores playfulness and artfulness in digital writing and communication and answers penetrating questions about this new medium. Under what conditions do old letter writing norms continue to be important even in email? Digital greetings are changing the way we celebrate special occasions and public holidays but will they take the place of paper postcards and greeting cards? The author also looks at how new art forms such as virtual theatre, ASCII art and digital folk art on IRC are flourishing and how many people collect and display digital fonts on handsome Websites or even design their own. Intended as a time capsule documenting developments online in the mid to late 1990s when the Internet became a mass medium, this book treats the computer as an expressive instrument fostering new forms of creativity and popular culture. Dictionary of Computer Terms Michael A. Covington, Douglas Downing, 1989 New Frontiers of Corpus Research, 2016-08-29 This volume presents highlights of the first ICAME conference held in the southern hemisphere, in papers on new kinds of corpora for business and communications technology as well as those comprising computer mediated communication and college newspapers. The latter yield lively insights into the digitized discourse of younger adults and non professional writers, speech communities that have been underrepresented in the standard English corpora. Other groups that are newly represented in research reported in this volume are bilingual users of English in Singapore, Hong Kong and China, as corpus data is brought to bear on second language speech and writing. The proposed corpus of spoken Dutch profiled here will support research into its variation in different genres and contexts of use in the Netherlands and in Belgium Research on new historical corpora from C15 to C18 is also reported along with techniques for normalizing prestandardized English for computerized searching Meanwhile papers on contemporary usage show some of the continual interplay between British and American English in grammar and details of the lexicon that are important for English language teachers
