Submerged Landscapes of the European Continental Shelf Nicholas C. Flemming, Jan Harff, Delminda Moura, Anthony Burgess, Geoffrey N. Bailey, 2017-08-07 Quaternary Paleoenvironments examines the drowned landscapes exposed as extensive and attractive territory for prehistoric human settlement during the Ice Ages of the Pleistocene when sea levels dropped to 120m 135m below their current levels This volume provides an overview of the geological geomorphological climatic and sea level history of the European continental shelf as a whole as well as a series of detailed regional reviews for each of the major sea basins The nature and variable attractions of the landscapes and resources available for human exploitation are examined as are the conditions under which archaeological sites and landscape features are likely to have been preserved destroyed or buried by sediment during sea level rise The authors also discuss the extent to which we can predict where to look for drowned landscapes with the greatest chance of success with frequent reference to examples of preserved prehistoric sites in different submerged environments Quaternary Paleoenvironments will be of interest to archaeologists geologists marine scientists palaeoanthropologists cultural heritage managers geographers and all those with an interest in the drowned landscapes of the continental shelf Integrating Food into Urban Planning Yves

Cabannes, Cecilia Marocchino, 2018-11-22 The integration of food into urban planning is a crucial and emerging topic Urban planners alongside the local and regional authorities that have traditionally been less engaged in food related issues are now asked to take a central and active part in understanding how food is produced processed packaged transported marketed consumed disposed of and recycled in our cities While there is a growing body of literature on the topic the issue of planning cities in such a way they will increase food security and nutrition not only for the affluent sections of society but primarily for the poor is much less discussed and much less informed by practices This volume a collaboration between the Bartlett Development Planning Unit at UCL and the Food Agricultural Organisation aims to fill this gap by putting more than 20 city based experiences in perspective including studies from Toronto New York City Portland and Providence in North America Milan in Europe and Cape Town in Africa Belo Horizonte and Lima in South America and in Asia Bangkok and Tokyo By studying and comparing cities of different sizes from both the Global North and South in developed and developing regions the contributors collectively argue for the importance and circulation of global knowledge rooted in local food planning practices programmes and policies Decision Making in Action Gary A. Klein, 1993-01-01 This book describes the new perspective of naturalistic decision making The point of departure is how people make decisions in complex time pressured ambiguous and changing environments The purpose of this book is to present and elaborate on past models developed to explain this type of decision making The central philosophy of the book is that classical decision theory has been unproductive since it is so heavily grounded in economics and mathematics The contributors believe there is little to be learned from laboratory studies about how people actually handle difficult and interesting tasks therefore the book presents a critique of classical decision theory The models of naturalistic decision making described by the contributors were derived to explain the behavior of firefighters business people jurors nuclear power plant operators and command and control officers The models are unique in that they address the way people use experience to frame situations and adopt courses of action The models explain the strengths of skilled decision makers Naturalistic decision research requires the examination of field settings and a section of the book covers methods for conducting meaningful research outside the laboratory In addition since his approach has applied value the book covers issues of training and decision support systems

Fire and Climatic

Change in Temperate Ecosystems of the Western Americas Thomas T. Veblen, William L. Baker, Gloria Montenegro, Thomas W. Swetnam, 2006-05-10 Both fire and climatic variability have monumental impacts on the dynamics of temperate ecosystems. These impacts can sometimes be extreme or devastating as seen in recent El Niño/La Niña cycles and in uncontrolled fire occurrences. This volume brings together research conducted in western North and South America areas of a great deal of collaborative work on the influence of people and climate change on fire regimes. In order to give perspective to patterns of change over time it emphasizes the integration of paleoecological studies with studies of modern ecosystems. Data from a range of spatial scales from individual plants to communities and ecosystems to landscape and regional levels are included. Contributions come from fire ecology, paleoecology, biogeography, paleoclimatology, landscape and ecosystem ecology, ecological modeling, forest management, plant community ecology and plant morphology. The book gives a synthetic overview of methods, data and simulation models for evaluating fire regime processes in forests, shrublands and woodlands and assembles case studies of fire climate and land use histories. The unique approach of this book gives researchers the benefits of a north-south comparison as well as the integration of paleoecological histories, current ecosystem dynamics and modeling of future changes.

Algal Technologies for Wastewater Treatment and Resource Recovery Raul Muñoz, Hardy Temmink, Anthony M. Verschoor, Peter van der Steen, 2019-07-26 Over 80% of globally produced wastewater receives little or no treatment before it is disposed into the environment. Therefore it is urgent to develop new wastewater treatment technologies that are sustainable in the broad sense of the word, i.e. not only produce high quality effluents but also minimise energy expenses, recover energy and nutrients and apply technology that is appropriate in relation to the availability of skilled personnel. This book compiles the main outcomes of recent efforts to improve the design of waste stabilisation ponds and confirms the superior performance of high rate algal ponds as a result of process intensification. Anaerobic digestion devoted to biogas production continues to be the preferred strategy for the energy valorisation of the algal biomass. Co-digestion with multiple high C/N ratio substrates is gathering significant attention over the past years. The potential of algal biomass as a biosorbent for heavy metal removal (Cu, Ni, F) maintains its share in the research field of water bioremediation while research on nutrient removal has focused on providing new insights on the mechanism of nitrogen and phosphorus removal from wastewater in algal-bacterial systems. Finally, it is worth noticing that breakthroughs in complementary fields of research such as nanotechnology or lighting technology are gradually being implemented in algal biotechnology with new products such as nanoparticles for water disinfection or photobioreactors illuminated by low intensity LED panels. In Focus, a book series that showcases the latest accomplishments in water research. Each book focuses on a specialist area with papers from top experts in the field. It aims to be a vehicle for in-depth understanding and inspire further conversations in the sector.

International Standard Classification of Occupations International Labour Office, 2012. The International Standard Classification of Occupations 2008 (ISCO-08) is a four-level hierarchically structured classification that covers all jobs in the world Developed with the benefit of accumulated national and international experience as well as the help of experts from many countries and agencies ISCO 08 is fully supported by the international community as an accepted standard for international labour statistics ISCO 08 classifies jobs into 436 unit groups These unit groups are aggregated into 130 minor groups 43 sub major groups and 10 major groups based on their similarity in terms of the skill level and skill specialisation required for the jobs This allows the production of relatively detailed internationally comparable data as well as summary information for only 10 groups at the highest level of aggregation Each group in the classification is designated by a title and code number and is associated with a definition that specifies the scope of the group The classification is divided into two volumes Volume I presents the structure and definitions of all groups in ISCO 08 and their correspondence with ISCO 88 which it supersedes while Volume II provides an updated and expanded index of occupational titles and associated ISCO 08 and ISCO 88 codes

The Ecology of Predation at the Microscale Edouard Jurkevitch, Robert J. Mitchell, 2020-06-29 The book will provide an update on our understanding of predator prey through the prism of ecology physiology molecular biology and mathematical modelling The integration of these different perspectives while focusing on the microbial realm will highlight the importance of scale in ecological interactions and their importance in applications This book should thereby contribute to theoretical as well as to applied ecologists and microbiologists Furthermore the detailed but amenable chapters could serve as the basis of teaching advanced courses in microbial ecology and environmental microbiology This work is a collection of articles that discuss microbial predation from a variety of perspectives It provides the readers a concise resource describing factors that are critical for several different predatory microbes including Myxobacterium spp and Bdellovibrio and like organisms BALOs including the mechanisms involved ecological conditions that adversely impact it and potential applications in aquaculture and bioproduction The first half of this collection focuses more on ecological aspects of predation with in depth discussions on wolf pack predators the presence and activities of predators in waste water treatment plants and the role of intraguild predatory relationships i e when two different predators are competing for a single prey but also interact with one another The reader will gain a deeper understanding of the predatory mechanisms involved and their ecological roles In the latter half emphasis is given more to the application and limitations of predators In addition to discussing secondary metabolite production within different microbial predators the readers will also learn how predators are being used to purify secondary metabolites from prey This section also discusses the expanding and promising role of predation in aquaculture focusing on the application of predators to reduce pathogenic populations but includes some important caveats for young researchers to consider and follow when working with Bdellovibrio This work is written for both experienced researchers already in the field and for young scientists who are captivated by the thought of predation at the microscale and its growing importance within a wide array of fields

Crop Stress and its Management: Perspectives and Strategies B. Venkateswarlu, Arun K. Shanker, Chitra Shanker, M. Maheswari, 2014-01-28 Crops experience an assortment of environmental stresses which include abiotic viz drought water logging salinity extremes of temperature high variability in radiation subtle but perceptible changes in atmospheric gases and biotic viz insects birds other pests weeds pathogens viruses and other microbes The ability to tolerate or adapt and overwinter by effectively countering these stresses is a very multifaceted phenomenon In addition the inability to do so which renders the crops susceptible is again the result of various exogenous and endogenous interactions in the ecosystem Both biotic and abiotic stresses occur at various stages of plant development and frequently more than one stress concurrently affects the crop Stresses result in both universal and definite effects on plant growth and development One of the imposing tasks for the crop researchers globally is to distinguish and to diminish effects of these stress factors on the performance of crop plants especially with respect to yield and quality of harvested products This is of special significance in view of the impending climate change with complex consequences for economically profitable and ecologically and environmentally sound global agriculture The challenge at the hands of the crop scientist in such a scenario is to promote a competitive and multifunctional agriculture leading to the production of highly nourishing healthy and secure food and animal feed as well as raw materials for a wide variety of industrial applications In order to successfully meet this challenge researchers have to understand the various aspects of these stresses in view of the current development from molecules to ecosystems The book will focus on broad research areas in relation to these stresses which are in the forefront in contemporary crop stress research
