Mobilizing for Development Kristen E. Looney, 2020-05-15 Mobilizing for Development tackles the question of how countries achieve rural development and offers a new way of thinking about East Asia's political economy that challenges the developmental state paradigm Through a comparison of Taiwan 1950s 1970s South Korea 1950s 1970s and China 1980s 2000s Kristen E Looney shows that different types of development outcomes improvements in agricultural production rural living standards and the village environment were realized to different degrees at different times and in different ways She argues that rural modernization campaigns defined as policies demanding high levels of mobilization to effect dramatic change played a central role in the region and that divergent development outcomes can be attributed to the interplay between campaigns and institutions The analysis departs from common portrayals of the developmental state as wholly technocratic and demonstrates that rural development was not just a byproduct of industrialization Looney's research is based on several years of fieldwork in Asia and makes a unique contribution by systematically comparing China's development experience with other countries Relevant to political science economic history rural sociology and Asian Studies the book enriches our understanding of state led development and agrarian change

Strengthening Rural Livelihoods David J. Grimshaw, Shalini Kala, 2011 Enthusiasm amongst international development agencies about harnessing the potential of information and communications technologies ICTs for development has generated questioning of the impact and sustainability of such interventions By presenting the findings of research specifically designed to measure impact on livelihoods Strengthening Rural Livelihoods offers new evidence for the development benefits of ICTs The book asks if ICTs enabled farmers to sell beyond local markets and at better prices and whether there have been social gains in linking geographically disparate households and social networks The authors have provided significant new insights into how to overcome the challenges of mainstreaming ICTs into rural livelihoods and more effectively measuring its effects This book will appeal to academics civil society organizations practitioners and students who are interested in what works and what doesn't work when applying ICTs to rural livelihoods

Migration, Agrarian Transition, and Rural Change in Southeast Asia Philip F. Kelly, 2013-10-18 Rural life in Southeast Asia is being transformed by new and intensifying processes of migration and mobility Migration out of rural areas creates new forms of class mobility familial relations production processes and income Migration into rural areas creates a new and sometimes marginalized workforce contestation over resource access and the juxtaposition of culturally different groups At the same time everyday mobility stretches the spatial boundaries of village and family life The bounded space of the village is no longer adequate to understand the dynamics that are driving and resulting from rural social change This collection of original studies explores the cultural economic and environmental dimensions of intensifying migration and mobility in rural Southeast Asia at multiple scales Diverse processes are explored including rural urban flows rural rural movement everyday mobilities and international migrations into regional and global labour markets Drawing on fieldwork in six countries across the region these essays also explore what migration means for our understanding of class citizenship gender and the state in a rapidly changing part of the world This book was based on two parts of a special issue of Critical Asian Studies

Rural-Urban Dichotomies and Spatial Development in Asia Amitrajeet A. Batabyal, Yoshiro Higano, Peter Nijkamp, 2022-07-02 This edited book brings together in one place new studies of rural urban interactions and their implications for regional growth and development in different regions within Asia Specifically the individual chapters in the book shed light on the different kinds of rural urban interactions that we witness in Asian regions particularly those that are based on migration poverty inequality education economic dependence and the flow of goods and services The book departs from the existing literature in three ways First it explicitly recognizes that different kinds of rural urban interactions have dissimilar impacts on the lives and hence on the welfare of the residents of rural and urban regions Second the book emphasizes the varied spatial and temporal dimensions of the interactions and the ways in which these dimensions influence rural and urban societies Third this book demonstrates the ways in which an understanding of the preceding two points contributes to our knowledge about economic growth and development Because Asia is the fastest growing and most dynamic continent in the world today the research delineated in the individual chapters of the book provides practical guidance concerning two salient questions First how do we effectively address the economic development challenges stemming from the interactions between alternate rural and urban regions within Asia Second how do we ensure that the policies we design to address these challenges give rise to broad based economic growth and development that is sustainable
