Villarreal, 2017 There is mounting empirical evidence that the responsible provision and use of formal financial services have a positive impact on household well being and enterprise performance At the individual level financial inclusion benefits rural households and small producers by facilitating the safe accumulation of assets enabling them to leverage those assets in order to invest in human and physical capital and supporting better risk management The positive effects at the aggregate level are associated with better allocation of scarce resources among different activities Despite recent progress on different aspects of financial inclusion in Latin America and the Caribbean large gaps remain especially in rural areas which have been historically neglected by traditional providers of financial services This book describes how these gaps have evolved recently in five countries Costa Rica the Dominican Republic El Salvador Honduras and Mexico that are at different stages of designing and implementing comprehensive financial inclusion strategies Then on the basis of a comparative analysis of the institutional architecture available it identifies the main barriers preventing small rural producers from accessing and making effective use of the various financial services on offer with a view to making policy recommendations for overcoming these limitations Beyond the City David M. Developing the Rural Network ,1993 Domestic Food Production and Food Security in the Caribbean C. Beckford,D. Campbell,2015-12-11 With the exception of Haiti the sensationalized issues of hunger reported in certain parts of the developing world are largely unknown in the Caribbean

Despite this there are growing concerns about the state of food security in the region as declining domestic production and increased dependence on imported food create vulnerability This study examines some of the contemporary issues impacting food production and food and nutrition security in the CARICOM region of the Caribbean The authors focus on enhancing domestic food production as the most appropriate way to improve food security and discuss strategies for building capacity in local food production systems The book is the product of over ten years of research by the authors It will be of interest to scholars and students of Caribbean geography cultural geography food and agricultural geography and food security

Slipping Away Mark Moberg, 2008 During the 1990s the Eastern Caribbean was caught in a bitter trade dispute between the US and EU over the European banana market When the World Trade Organization rejected preferential access for Caribbean growers in 1998 the effect on the region's rural communities was devastating This volume examines the banana wars from the vantage point of St Lucia's Mabouya Valley whose recent turbulent history reveals the impact of global forces The author investigates how the contemporary structure of the island's banana industry originated in colonial policies to create a politically stable peasantry followed by politicians' efforts to mobilize rural voters These political strategies left farmers dependent on institutional and market protection leaving them vulnerable to any alteration in trade policy This history gave way to a new harsh reality in which neoliberal policies privilege price and quantity over human rights and the environment However against these challenges the author shows how the rural poor have responded in creative ways including new social movements and Fair Trade farming in order to negotiate a stronger position for themselves in a shifting global economy
