Rural Environment And Social Development Strategies For The Europe And Central Asia Region:

Rural, Environment, and Social Development Strategies for the Europe and Central Asia Region ,2000-01-01 This report proposes a World Bank strategy for assisting the rural environmental and social development of Eastern Europe and Central Asia It has been produced for a general audience partly for consultation purposes and is therefore a work in progress Each of the three areas of development is examined in separate chapters and each summarises the World Bank assistance strategy in that area The conclusion is that the challenge posed by the objectives of this report are far beyond the World Bank s abilities to achieve on its own Livestock Farming Systems in Central and Eastern Europe A. Gibon,S. Mihina,2023-08-28

This book examines the potential of Livestock Farming Systems LFS research to assess and understand the diversity of livestock farming systems in Central and Eastern Europe CEE LFS research based on systemic modelling has improved the understanding of livestock production realities at farm level and influenced agricultural development strategies in Western Europe Researchers from both Western and Eastern Europe carried out this initial study which was coordinated and sponsored under a collaborative agreement between EAAP and FAO and was run in selected regions in Bulgaria the Czech Republic Hungary Poland and the Slovak Republic The results and conclusions of the study are reported in the book together with the other contributions of interest with respect to the sustainable development of livestock production in CEE presented and discussed during a workshop in Budapest in August 2001 The results of the study demonstrate the adaptability of LFS research to systems predominantly based on large scale private corporate and co operative farms in the CEE countries

Rural Development Strategy Csaba Csáki,Laura Tuck,2000-01-01 With the larger role that the agricultural sector plays in the Eastern Europe and Central Asian ECA region emphasis must be placed on the sector s sustained growth and prosperity The Bank strategy for rural development in the ECA region during the early phase of transition emphasized the reform of agricultural policies and assistance in privatizing restructuring and rebuilding agriculture and agro industrial complexes In retrospect it can be seen that the ECA countries concerned made the right choice when they set their objective to transform their socialized agriculture into a private ownership and market based system Given the developments of the past decade it is clear however that the initial expectations for the outcomes of such reforms were overly optimistic The transition process in agriculture is far more complex than originally envisaged by both the countries themselves and the international community including the Bank Increased social problems and alarming growth of poverty have added a new unexpected dimension to the transition process As the analysis indicates the region s rural economy is still struggling to adjust to new economic realities and this will require further refinement and adjustment of the Bank s approach as well This volume based on an overview of recent regional developments summarizes the revised World Bank assistance strategy for rural development in the ECA region Central Asia's Second Chance Martha Brill Olcott,2010-03-01 A leading authority on Central Asia offers a sweeping review of the region s path from independence to the post 9 11 world The first decade of Central Asian independence was disappointing for those who envisioned a straightforward transition from Soviet republics to independent states with market economies and democratic political systems. Leaders excused political failures by pointing to security risks including the presence of terrorist training camps in Afghanistan. The situation changed dramatically after 9/11 when the camps were largely destroyed and the United States introduced a military presence. More importantly the international community engaged with these states to give them a second chance to address social and economic problems. But neither the aid givers nor the recipients were willing to approach problems in new ways. Now terrorists groups are once again making their presence felt and some states may be becoming global security risks. This book explores how the region squandered its second chance and what might happen next. Targeting Peace Mikael Eriksson, 2016-04-01. In recent years the international community has increasingly come to abandon the use of comprehensive sanctions in favour of targeted sanctions. Unlike adopting a coercive strategy on entire states actors like the United Nations UN and the European Union EU have come to resort to measures that are aimed at individuals groups and government members. Targeted sanctions involve adopting measures such as asset freezes travel bans commodity sanctions as well as arms embargoes. Eriksson argues that recent changes in the practice of sanctions from comprehensive to targeted sanctions requires a new way of understanding international sanctions practice. Not only do we need to rethink our methodology to assess recent practice but also to rethink the very theory of sanctions. This valuable new perspective provides recent thinking on targeted sanctions trends in practice and unique case studies for evaluation. Based on substantial research this is a must read for students scholars and practitioners interested in international politics. Evaluation of FAO's country programme in Armenia 2016-2020

Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2020-10-06. Armenia's agriculture represents the main economic source in rural areas and significantly contributes to the country's GDP employing about 30 percent of the working population. Aligned with Armenia's national development priorities FAO's programme has been well aligned with national priorities focusing on provision of highly specialized technical expertise towards the development of national policies institutions and also offering innovative approaches and solutions. The evaluation concluded that FAO should continue offering its advisory services and technical support in thematic areas within its competence focusing on longer term sustainability of results achieved and taking into consideration vulnerability of food and agriculture systems to climate change. The Country Office needs to expand its support in areas where FAO has clear comparative advantages and respond to the new demands in the context of the upcoming United Nations Sustainable Development Cooperation Framework Guidance UNSDCF for the period 2021-2025. National gender profile of agriculture and rural livelihoods Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, UN Women, 2021-09-10. Despite the legal and policy foundation of BiH gender considerations have only marginally been mainstreamed in state and entity policies on rural development or other sectors related to agriculture. At the state level the Strategic Plan for Rural Development of Bosnia and Herzegovina 2018-2021 addresses support for women as a cross cutting initiative but fails to fully mainstream gender. Rather the strategy includes a stand alone sub section on gender equality that presents rather superficial analysis of gender disparities in rural areas and includes no strategic guidance. Measures are suggested for young people, women in combination and for improving access to business grants, rural loans and agricultural associations. One monitoring indicator measures women's participation in investment programs for agricultural holdings and diversification of rural economy. Strategic Plan for Rural Development of Bosnia and Herzegovina 2018-2021. The inconsistent application of gender mainstreaming to policy development and the very limited capacity of most line ministries to include a gender perspective in their core work contribute to a situation in which gender equality is poorly reflected in state policies that concern agriculture and rural development. Meanwhile rural areas are marked by women's poverty which is linked to their economic dependence over representation in informal and unpaid work and the fact that elderly rural women in particular tend not to be covered by the pension system and are often living alone because they are widowed.

Reaching the Rural Poor, 2003. Despite the fact that three quarters of the world's poor live in rural areas the level of international development aid directed at rural areas has continued to decline over the last decade particularly in terms of the agricultural sector. In 2001 lending for agricultural projects was the lowest in the World Bank's history. This publication presents the World Bank's new rural development strategy based upon a results oriented approach which stresses practice implementation monitoring and empowerment aspects. The strategy seeks to highlight rural development efforts focusing on the needs of the rural poor fostering a broad based economic growth and addressing the impact of global developments on client countries.

A Guide to the World Bank, 2003. The World Bank Group works in more than 100 developing economies and is one of the world's largest sources of development assistance. In 2002 the institution provided US 19.5 billion in loans to its client countries. This guide reviews the organisation's history objectives and operations and looks at the five institutions that make up the World Bank Group: the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD), the International Development Association (IDA), the International Finance Corporation (IFC), the Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency (MIGA) and the International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID).

Assessing Markets for Renewable Energy in Rural Areas of Northwestern China Tuntivate Voravate, Douglas F. Barnes, V. Susan Bogach, 2000. This reports on a detailed market study of rural areas in China without access to electricity from the local or national grid. It obtained basic socio economic data on households with and without photovoltaic (PV) systems and used the data to determine the market potential for PV systems in such areas.
