Rural Essays:

First Person Rural Noel Perrin, 1979 Book of Plough Justin Isherwood, 1996 A farmer with an extraordinary gift for language and a writer with the field still fresh on his boots Justin Isherwood is irresistibly compelling His writing is possessed by a poetry As he moves effortlessly from the profound to the practical he turns the ordinary experiences of farm life into a feast for your senses Distributed for Martin Communications and Marketing First Person Rural Noel Perrin, 1994-09

These essays all concerned with countryish things range from intensely practical to mildly literary Transplanted from New York fifteen years ago and now a real life Vermont farmer Noel Perrin candidly admits to hilarious early mistakes In Search of the Perfect Fence Post while presenting down to earth advice on such rural necessities as Sugaring on 15 a Year Raising Sheep and Making Butter in the Kitchen But as everyone who has read his essays in The New Yorker Country Journal and Vermont Life will confirm not everything Perrin writes is strictly about the exigencies of country life While one essay seems to discuss the use of wooden sap buckets it really addresses the nature of illusion and reality as they coexist in rural places

Second Person Rural Noel Perrin, 1990 Essays on rural life that not only address the many how to questions that bedevil country dwellers but also the larger direction that life is taking on this planet Perrin a transplanted New Yorker and now a real Vermonter candidly admits his early mistakes while giving concrete advice on matters such as what to do with maple syrup other than put it on your pancakes how to use a peavey and how to replace your rototiller with a garden animal

RURAL ESSAYS A. J. DOWNING, 2018 Best Person Rural Noel Perrin, 2016-04-15 In 1963 Noel Perrin a 35 year old professor of English at Dartmouth College bought an 85 acre farm in Thetford Center Vermont For the next forty years he spent half his time teaching half writing and half farming That this adds up to three halves I am all too aware he said sounding a characteristic self deprecating note of bittersweet amusement at the chalk on his coat the sweat on his brow and the mud and worse on his boots I love this farm he wrote shortly before his death in 2004 every acre of it The maples the apple trees the cattle the wild turkeys I love the brick farmhouse which I believe to be about 190 years old and the two barns I love the view from the kitchen window and the grander view to be had if you climb Bill Hill the farm s in house mini mountain The thing that delights me most though is that the farm really is a farm It produces a little food every year and most years a little fuel as well It also produced four volumes of essays beginning with the best selling First Person Rural 1978 Some of Perrin s pieces are practical how to build a stone wall others philosophical why to build a stone wall One pretends to be about amateur sugar making but it is really a metaphor for reality and illusion Another pretends to be about the country as a retreat but is really about the country as a place to meet the world head on One is a dangerous character sketch of a sow dangerous because as Roy Blount said after reading it It almost made me decide to go ahead and get pigs In short these essays are as good as the literature of farming gets Best Person Rural is a harvest feast bringing together twenty of Perrin s best loved pieces and five previously uncollected items including his moving Farewell to a Thetford Farm Rural Essays

Andrew Jackson Downing, George William Curtis, 1856 The Countryside in the Age of Capitalist Transformation Steven Hahn, Jonathan Prude, 1985 This volume represents one of the first efforts to harvest the rapidly emerging scholarship in the field of American rural history Building on the insights and methodologies that social historians have directed toward urban life the contributors explore Rural Essays Andrew Jackson Downing, Fredrika Bremer, 2013-01 Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts 1 We have not used OCR Optical Character Recognition as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos 2 In books where there are images such as portraits maps sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images so they represent accurately the original artefact Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy French Rural History Marc Bloch, 1966 From the Preface by Lucien Febvre MARC BLOCH S Caracteres originaux de l histoire rurale francaise which was originally published at Oslo in 1931 and appeared simultaneously at Paris under the imprint Belles Lettres has long been out of print As he told me on more than one occasion he had every intention of bringing out another edition In Marc Bloch s own mind this was not simply a matter of reissuing the original text He knew none better that time stops for no historian that every good piece of historical writing needs to be rewritten after twenty years otherwise the writer has failed in his objective failed to goad others into testing his foundations and improving on his rasher hypotheses by subjecting them to greater precision Marc Bloch was not given time to refashion his great book as he would have wished One wonders whether he would in fact ever have brought himself to do it I have the impression that the prospect of this somewhat dreary and certainly difficult task however one may try to avoid it revision of an earlier work is always hampered by the original design which offers few easy loopholes for escape held less appeal than the excitement of conceiving and executing an entirely new book However this may be our friend has carried this secret with so many others to his grave The fact remains that one of our historical classics now more than twenty years old is due for republication and is here presented to the reader Visibility Interrupted Carly Thomsen, 2021-07-27 A questioning of the belief in the power of LGBTQ visibility through the lives of queer women in the rural Midwest Today most LGBTQ rights supporters take for granted the virtue of being out loud and proud Most also assume that it would be terrible to be LGBTQ in a rural place By considering moments in which queerness and rurality come into contact Visibility Interrupted argues that both positions are wrong In the first monograph on LGBTQ women in the rural Midwest Carly Thomsen deconstructs the image of the rural as a flat homogenous and anachronistic place where LGBTQ people necessarily suffer And she suggests that visibility is not liberation and will not lead to liberation Far from being an unambiguous good argues Thomsen visibility politics can in fact preclude collective action They also advance metronormativity postraciality and capitalism To make these interventions Thomsen develops the theory of unbecoming interrogating the relationship between that which we celebrate and that which we find disdainful the past the rural politics is crucial for developing alternative subjectivities and politics Unbecoming precedes becoming Drawing from critical race studies disability studies and queer Marxism in addition to feminist and queer studies the insights of this book will be useful to scholars theorizing issues far beyond sexuality and place and to social justice activists who want to move beyond visibility Peculiar Places Ryan Lee Cartwright,2021-09-03 The queer recluse the shambling farmer the clannish hill folk white rural populations have long disturbed the American imagination alternately revered as moral healthy and hardworking and feared as antisocial or socially uncouth In Peculiar Places Ryan Lee Cartwright examines the deep archive of these contrary formations mapping racialized queer and disability histories of white social nonconformity across the rural twentieth century United States Sensationalized accounts of white rural communities aberrant sexualities racial intermingling gender transgressions and anomalous bodies and minds which proliferated from the turn of the century created a national view of the perversity of white rural poverty for the American public Cartwright contends that these accounts extracted and estranged from their own ambivalent forum of community gossip must be read in kind through a racialized materialist queercrit optic of the deeply familiar and mundane Taking in popular science documentary photography news media documentaries and horror films Peculiar Places orients itself at the intersections of disability studies queer studies and gender studies to illuminate a racialized landscape both profoundly ordinary and familiar

Essays on the Political Economy of Rural Africa Robert H. Bates,1983-06-02 This book addresses several of the classic questions in African Studies In the pre colonial era what were the sources of order in societies without states And what were the origins of traditional states in Africa In the colonial period what caused the divergent patterns of agricultural development And what were the issues that drove the peasantry into the rebellions which brought an end to colonial rule Since independence what has been the fate of the African peasantry What has been the content of the agricultural policies adopted by the governments of Africa And how can these policies be accounted for In answering these questions the book explores various forms of explanation and advances a form of political economy based upon rational choice analysis

thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant Challenges for Rural America in the Twenty-First Century David L. Brown, Louis E. Swanson, 2010-11-01 The twentieth century was one of profound transformation in rural America Challenges for Rural America in the Twenty First Century defines these changes and interprets their implications for the future of rural America Essays have been specially commissioned to examine key aspects of public policy relevant to rural America in the new century From book jacket Going to the Countryside Yu Zhang, 2020-03-03 Since the beginning of the twentieth century modern Chinese intellectuals reformers revolutionaries leftist journalists and idealistic youth had often crossed the increasing gap between the city and the countryside which made the act of going to the countryside a distinctively modern experience and a continuous practice in China Such a spatial crossing eventually culminated in the socialist state program of down to the villages movements during the 1960s and 1970s What then was the special significance of going to the countryside before that era Going to the Countryside deals with the cultural representations and practices of this practice between 1915 and 1965 focusing on individual homecoming rural reconstruction revolutionary journeys to Yan an the revolutionary going down to the people as well as going to the frontiers and rural hometowns for socialist construction As part of the larger discourses of enlightenment revolution and socialist industrialization going to the countryside entailed new ways of looking at the world and ordinary people brought about new experiences of space and time initiated new means of human communication and interaction generated new forms of cultural production revealed a fundamental epistemic shift in modern China and ultimately created a new aesthetic social and political landscape As a critical response to the urban turn in the past few decades this book brings the rural back to the central concern of Chinese cultural studies and aims to bridge the city and the countryside as two types of important geographical entities which have often remained as disparate scholarly subjects of inquiry in the current state of China studies Chinese modernity has been characterized by a dual process that created problems from the vast gap between the city and the countryside but simultaneously initiated constant efforts to cope with the gap personally collectively and institutionally The process of crossing two distinct geographical spaces was often presented as continuous explorations of various ways of establishing the connectivity interaction and relationship of these two imagined geographical entities Going to the Countryside argues that this new body of cultural productions did not merely turn the rural into a constantly changing representational space most importantly the rural has been constructed as a distinct modern experiential and aesthetic realm characterized by revolutionary changes in human conceptions and sentiments Rural Essays Bremer Fredrika 1801-1865, A J (Andrew Jackson) 1815-18 Downing, 2015-10-21 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work
