Klaus Oschema Kathryn Rudy Emily Snow Olga Vassilieva Codognet Hanno Wijsman The Emperor and His Chancellor
John M. Headley, 1983-02-24 This study examines a significant development within late medieval and early modern European government set in the context of the tense relations between the young Emperor Charles V and his ageing chancellor Mercurino de Gattorna. It focuses upon an important transformation in the administrative reorganisation of European monarchies: the shift in the political centre of gravity from the medieval institution of the chancellery as the secretariat for all government business and authentication to a small group of secretaries: the minister of a later age acting directly in collaboration with the prince. In the collision between the traditional judicial and administrative pre-eminence of the late medieval chancellor and the new secretaries as expeditors of the Renaissance prince's will, Charles gave his support to the latter, thus associating himself with the previous work of Ferdinand. Against the background of this struggle with the state secretaries, the imperial chancellery is analysed in its relations to the individual chancelleries of Charles V's disparate lands. The Changing Face of Empire M. J. Rodríguez-Salgado, 2008-10-14 Using a vast range of primary sources, this substantial and important volume provides a comprehensive analysis of the division and near collapse of Habsburg authority during the 1550s. The principal episodes of this period: the death of Charles V, the accession of Philip II and the latter's marriage to Mary Tudor, are well known in outline, but Dr Rodríguez-Salgado provides much that is new and original, both on the internal history of Spain and on the highly complex diplomacy of the period. Why did Charles V and Philip II go to war against France and Papacy and Islam, and how did the multinational empire survive the huge financial demands such wars placed upon it? Spanish relations with England and France are examined in detail, and The Changing Face of Empire does a great deal to illuminate the breakdown in relations with the Netherlands that was to culminate in the Dutch Revolt.

The Rise of the Fiscal State in Europe c.1200-1815 Richard Bonney, 1999-09-02 In this volume, an international team of scholars builds up a comprehensive analysis of the fiscal history of Europe over six centuries. It forms a fundamental starting point for an understanding of the distinctiveness of the emerging European states and highlights the issue of fiscal power as an essential prerequisite for the development of the modern state. The study underlines the importance of technical developments by the state: its capacity to innovate and, however imperfect, the techniques, the greater detail and sophistication of accounting practice towards the end of the period. New taxes had been developed, new wealth had been tapped, new mechanisms of enforcement had been established. In general, these developments were made in western Europe; the lack of progress in some fiscal systems, especially those in eastern Europe, is an issue of historical importance in its own right and lends particular significance to the chapters on Poland and Russia. By the eighteenth century, mountains of debt and high debt-revenue ratios had become the norm in western Europe, yet in the east only Russia was able to adapt to the western model. By 1815, the capacity of governments to borrow and the interaction of the constraints on borrowing and the power to tax had become the real test of the fiscal powers of the modern state. By 1800-15 The Golden Age of Burgundy Joseph approaches to the study of regions and landscapes real or imagined in the early modern and medieval periods Focusing on the Rhineland and Low Countries the essays offer a collective interdisciplinary approach which aims to shed light on at least some of the complexities underlying any attempt to analyse what we might understand by landscape or region in a particular historical context

Realms of Ritual Peter Arnade, 2018-10-18 While earlier historians have seen the elaborate public rituals of the Burgundian dukes as stagnant forms held over from the chivalric world of the High Middle Ages Peter Arnade argues that they were a vital theater of power through which the ducal court and the urban centers constantly renegotiated their relationship This book is the first to apply the combined insights of social political and cultural history to an important but little explored area of medieval and early modern Europe the Burgundian Netherlands Realms of Ritual traces the role of ritual in encounters between the dukes of Burgundy later the Habsburg princes and the townspeople of Ghent the most important city in the county of Flanders Arnade analyzes city state ceremonies through which Ghent's aldermen patricians guildsmen and the city's military and drama confraternities confronted local power and the growth of the Burgundian state In the first serious reappraisal of Johan Huizinga's classic work The Waning of the Middle Ages Arnade confirms Huizinga's vision of a Low Country society rich in public symbols yet reveals the city state conflict within which such ritual thrived He offers a dramatically new perspective on the Northern Renaissance as well as a historical anthropological model for the study of urban state relations
