Russia And The World Trade Organization:

Russia and the World Trade Organization P. Naray, 2001-01-11 After an exploration of the experience gained by former central and eastern European countries in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade Peter Naray gives an analysis of the Russian economic and social crisis and comes to the conclusion that this crisis is responsible for the delay of Russia's accession to the World Trade Organization WTO The author criticizes the approach taken in Russian reforms because the country's historical legacy weak legal system underdeveloped political and economic institutions etc was neglected The book describes the steps made by Russia towards WTO membership underlining the present and expected difficulties It warns against a fundamentalist approach by the members of the WTO which may result in Russia's isolation in political and economic matters which would represent a danger to the whole world

The World Trade Organization Mitsuo Matsushita, Thomas J. Schoenbaum, Petros C. Mavroidis, Michael Hahn, 2015-10-15 The WTO is one of the most important intergovernmental organizations in the world yet the way in which it functions as an organization and the scope of its authority and power are still poorly understood This comprehensively revised new edition of the acclaimed work by an outstanding team of WTO law specialists provides a complete overview of the law and practice of the WTO The authors begin with the institutional law of the WTO such as the sources of law and remedies of the dispute settlement system then tackle the principal substantive obligations of the WTO regime including tariffs quotas and MFN They then move on to consider unfair trade regional trading arrangements and developing countries In its final section the book deals with the consequences of globalization first where free trade is seen to be incompatible with environmental protection and second where WTO law confronts legal regimes governing issues of competition and intellectual property

The World Trade Organization David Collins, 2015-09-03 One of the most important yet least understood organizations in the world the WTO is a lynchpin of globalization allowing us to enjoy products and services from around the globe However it also lays bare the frailty of many industries leading some to claim that it stokes unemployment and harms the developing world In this engaging introduction David Collins examines the goals of the WTO and the difficulties experienced by member countries struggling to adapt to the pressures of globalization Refuting the argument that the WTO should expand its mandate to cover wider social issues Collins demonstrates how this would confuse the organization's primary objective to liberalize international trade With case studies straight from the headlines and clear explanations of complex issues like regional trade agreements and currency manipulation this lucid exposition is an essential insight into what the WTO does and how it fits into the world we know

Tariff Negotiations and Renegotiations under the GATT and the WTO Anwarul Hoda, 2018-11-29 Over the past seven decades since the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade GATT was established in 1947 there has been a phenomenal increase in international trade in goods largely due to sustained efforts by the world's main trading nations to reduce and eliminate tariff barriers in a multilaterally orchestrated manner This publication reviews how the procedures and practices relating to tariff negotiations and renegotiations have evolved over this time In particular this new edition recounts how negotiations to expand the duty free coverage of the Information Technology Agreement were concluded and provides an account of tariff renegotiations regarding successive enlargements of the European Union It also covers tariff negotiations for the accession of a number of new members to the WTO such as China and Russia This book will be of particular interest to negotiators members of government trade ministries economists and academics specialized in trade policy

Telecommunications Reform Within Russia's Accession to the World Trade Organization Jesper Jensen, Thomas Fox Rutherford, David G. Tarr, 2005 The results show that reduction of barriers to foreign direct investment in telecommunications will bring substantial gains to the Russian economy including an increase in the productivity of Russian labor and capital Despite the fact that multinationals use Russian labor less intensively than Russian firms demand for Russian labor employed in telecommunications should increase following reductions in barriers to foreign direct investment that are included in the context of WTO accession This is because the overall demand for telecommunication services should increase due to the growth effects of the liberalization of barriers against foreign direct investment generally and the reduction in tariffs Russian capital owners in telecommunications will likely be sought as joint venture partners and can restructure and obtain gains as partners with foreign firms Wholly owned Russian firms are likely to experience losses

Abstract Regional Impacts of Russia's Accession to the World Trade Organization Thomas Fox Rutherford, David G. Tarr, 2006 In this paper we develop a computable general equilibrium model of the regions of Russia to assess the impact of accession to the World Trade Organization WTO on the regions of Russia We estimate that the average gain in welfare as a percentage of consumption for the whole country is 7.8 percent or 4.3 percent of consumption we estimate that three regions will gain considerably more Northwest 11.2 percent St Petersburg 10.6 percent and Far East 9.7 percent We estimate that the Urals will gain only 6.2 percent of consumption considerably less than the national average The principal explanation in our central analysis for the differences across regions is the ability of the different regions to benefit from a reduction in barriers against foreign direct investment The three regions with the largest welfare gains are clearly the regions with the estimated largest shares of multinational investment But the Urals has attracted relatively little FDI in the service sectors An additional reason for differences across regions is quantified in our sensitivity analysis regions may gain more from WTO accession if they can succeed in creating a good investment climate Russian Trade Policy Taylor & Francis

The TRIPS Waiver Negotiations at the World Trade Organization Priti Patnaik, 2024-09-05 A blow by blow account of the highly political and contentious negotiations around the TRIPS Waiver proposal at the World Trade Organization WTO between October 2020 and March 2024 For more than three years developing countries fought against the inequities in the access to medical products to address the pandemic of COVID 19 As many as 100 countries led by South Africa and India sought to challenge existing rules that protect Intellectual Property IP in an attempt to boost manufacturing capacities for medical products during COVID 19 This they did at the WTO in Geneva by seeking to temporarily suspend certain provisions of the Agreement on Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights TRIPS legal rules that govern intellectual property matters It is a battle these countries lost in June 2022 after first bringing this bold proposal to the WTO in October 2020 that directly sought to challenge the monopolies of big pharmaceutical companies on medical products Many developed countries are home to the biggest pharmaceutical companies in the world What was finally agreed upon was a narrow set of clarifications of existing rules applicable to the production of vaccines in sharp contrast to the paradigmatic shift that the proponents of the Waiver proposal had originally sought In the end these rules were not extended to tests and treatments to address COVID 19 as initially envisioned by the demandeurs The protracted but unsuccessful negotiations show how the WTO failed in addressing the challenges of COVID 19 that resulted in more than 15 million associated deaths due to the pandemic So while the TRIPS Waiver failed to become a trade policy option at the WTO in the context of health emergencies it undoubtedly reset the debate on the role of IP in global health This updated edition is a compilation of nearly 70 stories that chronicle these negotiations between 2020-2024 The reportage was published in Geneva Health Files an investigative journalistic initiative tracking power and politics in global health

Development at the WTO Sonia E. Rolland, 2012-02-23 With the Doha Round on the rocks the tension between the WTO's trade liberalization agenda and the development needs of many member states is more pronounced than ever This book looks at the position of developing countries at the WTO from an institutionalist perspective and presents a range of proposals for change

Regional Household and Poverty Effects of Russia's Accession to the World Trade Organization Thomas Rutherford, 2008 Abstract This paper develops a seven region comparative static computable general equilibrium model of Russia to assess the impact of accession to the World Trade Organization on these seven regions the federal okrugs of Russia In order to assess poverty and distributional impacts the model includes ten households in each of the seven federal okrugs where household data are taken from the Household Budget Survey of Rosstat The model allows for foreign direct investment in business services and endogenous productivity effects from additional varieties of business services and goods which the analysis shows are crucial to the results National welfare gains are about 4.5 percent of gross domestic product in the model but in a constant returns to scale model they are only 0.1 percent All deciles of the population in all seven federal okrugs can be expected to significantly gain from Russian World Trade Organization accession but due to the capacity of their regions to attract foreign direct investment households in the Northwest region gain the most followed by households in the Far East and Volga regions Households in Siberia and the Urals gain the least Distribution impacts within regions are rather flat for the first nine deciles but the richest decile of the population in the three regions that attract a lot of foreign investment gains significantly more than the other nine representative households in those regions
