Extent, Nature, and Consequences of Intimate Partner Violence Patricia Tjaden, Nancy Thoennes, U. S. Department of Justice, Office of Justice Programs, National Institute of Justice, 2012-07-17 This report presents findings from the National Violence Against Women NVAW Survey on the extent nature and consequences of intimate partner violence in the United States The National Institute of Justice and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention cosponsored the survey through a grant to the Center for Policy Research The survey consists of telephone interviews with a nationally representative sample of 8 000 U S women and 8 000 U S men about their experiences as victims of various forms of violence including intimate partner violence The survey compares intimate partner victimization rates among women and men specific racial groups Hispanics and non Hispanics and same sex and opposite sex cohabitants It also examines risk factors associated with intimate partner violence the rate of injury among rape and physical assault victims injured victims use of medical services and victims involvement with the justice system Research on intimate partner violence has increased dramatically over the past 20 years While greatly enhancing public awareness and understanding of this serious social problem this research has also created much controversy and confusion Findings of intimate partner victimization vary widely from study to study Some studies conclude that women and men are equally likely to be victimized by their partners but others conclude that women are more likely to be victimized Some studies conclude that minorities and whites suffer equal rates of intimate partner violence and others conclude that minorities suffer higher rates In addition there are many gaps in the scientific literature on intimate partner violence such as the level of violence

committed against men and women by same sex intimates Little empirical data exist on the relationship between different forms of intimate partner violence such as emotional abuse and physical assault Finally little is known of the consequences of intimate partner violence including rate of injury and victims use of medical and justice system services This Research Report addresses these and other issues related to intimate partner violence The information presented in this report is based on findings from the National Violence Against Women NVAW Survey a national telephone survey jointly sponsored by the National Institute of Justice NIJ and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention CDC The survey which was conducted from November 1995 to May 1996 consists of telephone interviews with a representative sample of 8 000 U S women and 8 000 U S men Survey respondents were queried about their experiences as victims of various forms of violence including rape physical assault and stalking by intimate partners Victimized respondents were asked detailed questions about the characteristics and consequences of their victimization including the extent and nature of any injuries they sustained their use of medical services and their involvement with the justice system This Research Report also summarizes the survey s findings on victimization rates among women and men specific racial groups Hispanics and non Hispanics and opposite sex and same sex cohabitants It examines risk factors associated with intimate partner violence rates of injury among rape and physical assault victims injured victims use of medical services and victims involvement with the justice system Although this report focuses on women s and men s experiences as victims of intimate partner violence complete details about men s and women s experiences as victims of rape physical assault and stalking by all types of assailants are contained in earlier NIJ and CDC reports Because of the sensitive nature of the survey state of the art techniques were used to protect the confidentiality of the information being sought and to minimize the potential for retraumatizing victims of violence and jeopardizing the safety of respondents

On Reading the Constitution Laurence H. TRIBE, Michael C. Dorf, Laurence H. Applied Survival Analysis David W. Hosmer, Jr.,Stanley

Lemeshow,Susanne May,2008-03-07 THE MOST PRACTICAL UP TO DATE GUIDE TO MODELLING AND ANALYZING TIME TO EVENT DATA NOW IN A VALUABLE NEW EDITION Since publication of the first edition nearly a decade ago analyses using time to event methods have increase considerably in all areas of scientific inquiry mainly as a result of model building methods available in modern statistical software packages However there has been minimal coverage in the available literature to9 guide researchers practitioners and students who wish to apply these methods to health related areas of study Applied Survival Analysis Second Edition provides a comprehensive and up to date introduction to regression modeling for time to event data in medical epidemiological biostatistical and other health related research This book places a unique emphasis on the practical and contemporary applications of regression modeling rather than the mathematical theory It offers a clear and accessible presentation of modern modeling techniques supplemented with real world examples and case studies Key topics covered include variable selection identification of the scale of continuous covariates the role of interactions in the model assessment of fit and model assumptions regression diagnostics recurrent event models frailty models additive models competing risk models and missing data Features of the Second Edition include Expanded coverage of interactions and the covariate adjusted survival functions The use of the Worchester Heart Attack Study as the main

modeling data set for illustrating discussed concepts and techniques New discussion of variable selection with multivariable fractional polynomials Further exploration of time varying covariates complex with examples Additional treatment of the exponential Weibull and log logistic parametric regression models Increased emphasis on interpreting and using results as well as utilizing multiple imputation methods to analyze data with missing values New examples and exercises at the end of each chapter Analyses throughout the text are performed using Stata Version 9 and an accompanying FTP site contains the data sets used in the book Applied Survival Analysis Second Edition is an ideal book for graduate level courses in biostatistics statistics and epidemiologic methods It also serves as a valuable reference for practitioners and researchers in any health related field or for professionals in insurance and government

The Ecology and Etiology of Newly Emerging Marine Diseases James W. Porter, 2013-04-17 The Ecology and Etiology of Newly Emerging Marine Diseases is a unique contribution to an entirely new field of scientific investigation For the first time material presented in this book identifies patterns and trends in the abundance and distribution of disease phenomena in the marine environment These patterns have gone unrecognised and undetected in the past because the literature in this field is so widely scattered The book is both interdisciplinary and synthetic Studies in this book unequivocally link marine diseases to global climate change The book changes our perspective on the major controls over the population dynamics of marine organisms Papers in this volume clearly identify the intimate connection between public health and environmental health for marine borne diseases such as cholera and human enteroviruses
