Michael Lipton, Martin Ravallion, 1993 The End of Slavery in Africa Suzanne Miers, 1988 This is the first comprehensive assessment of the end of slavery in Africa Editors Suzanne Miers and Richard Roberts with the distinguished contributors to the volume establish an agenda for the social history of the early colonial period when the end of slavery was one of the most significant historical and cultural processes The End of Slavery in Africa is a sequel to Slavery in Africa edited by Suzanne Miers and Igor Kopytoff and published by the University of Wisconsin Press in 1977 The contributors explore the historical experiences of slaves masters and colonials as they all confronted the end of slavery in fifteen sub Saharan African societies The essays demonstrate that it is impossible to generalize about whether the end of slavery was a relatively mild and nondisruptive process or whether it marked a significant change in the social and economic organization of a given society There was no common pattern and no uniform consequence of the end of slavery The results of this wide ranging inquiry will be of lasting value to Africanists and a variety of social and economic historians Development: Doctrines of development Stuart Corbridge, 2000 Brings together more than one hundred articles dealing with the discipline of development in all its diversity Key topics include the transformation of peasant economies agribusiness rural urban relations markets industrialization workers trade aid and structural adjustment A unique set in its comprehensiveness and diversity it also considers four key challenges for development theory and practice relating to capabilities ethics sustainability and regulation

African Food Systems in Crisis Rebecca Huss-Ashmore, Solomon H Katz, 2019-07-19 Originally published in 1991 Commissioned by the Task Force on African Famine of the American Anthropological Association this is the second part of a project examining the causes of food system failure in Africa and the effects of attempts to remedy the situation It evaluates the often retrogressive results of foreign aid to African nations and offers an anthropological perspective on how to reverse this trend The contributors emphasize integrating all development programs with the regional customs and traditions already in place that have thus far allowed its people to cope with food and water shortages In the past various strategies have failed due to misunderstandings and incorrect assumptions concerning gender roles food consumption habits social relations kinship networks land use and government function New understanding of the culture must be complemented with multifaceted programs incorporating education a concern for grass roots opinion and control attention to production and consumption patterns and various forms of broad spectrum integrated development The uniqueness research is recommended for all who are concerned about worldwide malnutrition and those who understand the need to recognize local traditions as resources that must be included in any successful development program Agricultural Land Redistribution and Land Administration in Sub-Saharan Africa Frank F. K. Byamugisha, 2014-05-05 Agricultural Land Redistribution and Land Administration in Sub Saharan Africa Case Studies of Recent Reforms focuses on how to undertake land reforms in Sub

Saharan Africa but with relevant lessons for other developing countries It provides details with case studies on how reforms were undertaken to address a pressing and controversial development challenge in Africa land ownership inequality and an intransigent development issue inefficiency and corruption in land administration An equally important contribution of the book is assessing reforms and highlighting valuable lessons for other countries contemplating reforms The six case studies collectively cover two main areas of land governance reforms in redistributing agricultural land and reforms in land administration The first two case studies discuss reforms in redistributing agricultural land in Malawi and South Africa part of the southern Africa region where land ownership inequalities rival those in Latin America The remaining case studies four in number are focused on addressing corruption and inefficiency in land administration in a variety of contexts of governance including stable and post conflict countries The case studies cover Decentralizing land administration with demonstrations from Uganda Ethiopia Tanzania and Ghana Developing post conflict land administration systems with examples from Liberia and Rwanda Re engineering and computerizing land information systems with examples from Ghana and Uganda and Improving management of government land through land inventories with examples drawn from Ghana and Uganda The common elements between sometimes disparate experiences provide lessons of relevance to African and other developing countries contemplating similar reforms The rigorous analysis and yet down to earth lessons of experience are a reflection of the authors deep global experience underpinned by personal participation in the reforms covered by the book This volume will be of interest to a wide audience including land specialists and practitioners African policy makers experts and managers in the international development community and the academia

Indigenous Agricultural Revolution Paul

Richards,2023-07-26 Originally published in 1985 this book argues forcefully and practically for new relationship between science and the small farmer It advocates scientific research seeking out changes which are already taking place within the smallholder farming sector and building on local initiatives Drawing on his experience of West Africa the author demonstrates that many of the most successful innovations in food crop production during the 20th century have indigenous roots and that there should therefore be less emphasis on teaching farmers how to farm and more emphasis on how to foster and support local adaptation and inventiveness This book will be of interest to students of agriculture environmental studies

Slavery in Africa Suzanne Miers, Igor Kopytoff, 1977 This collection of sixteen short papers together with a complex and very much longer introductory essay by the editors on African Slavery as an Institution of Marginality constitutes an impressive attempt by anthropologists and historians to explore describe and analyze some of the various kinds of human bondage within a number of precolonial African societies It is important to note that in spite of the precolonial emphasis of the volume all of the essays are based at least partly on anthropological or ethnohistorical field research carried out since 1959 All but one have been augmented greatly by more conventional historical research in published as well as archival sources And although the volume's focus is upon the structures and conditions of servitude within the several African societies described many of the essays illustrate and some discuss the conceptual as well as the practical difficulties of separating the institutions and customs of domestic African slavery from those of the European dominated commercial slave trade in which many of the societies participated from JSTOR <http://www.jstor.org> May 24 2013

Local Suppliers Of Credit In The Third World 1750-1960 K Sugihara, Gareth Austin, 2015-12-24 Hausaland Divided William F. S. Miles, 2015-08-20 How have different forms of colonialism shaped societies and their politics William F S Miles focuses on the Hausa speaking people of West Africa whose land is still split by an arbitrary boundary established by Great Britain and France at the turn of the century In 1983 Miles returned as a Fulbright scholar to the region where he had served as a Peace Corps volunteer in the late 1970s Already fluent in the Hausa language he established residence in carefully selected twin villages on either side of the border separating the Republic of Niger from the Federal Republic of

Nigeria Over the next year and then during subsequent visits he traveled by horseback between the two places conducting archival research collecting oral testimony and living the ethnographic life Miles argues that the colonial imprint of the British and the French can still be discerned more than a generation after the conferring of formal independence on Nigeria and Niger Moreover such influences persist even in the relatively remote countryside in the nature of economic transactions in local education practices in the practice of Islam in the operation of chieftaincy In Hausaland as throughout the world the border illuminates the vital differences between otherwise similar societies

Gender Myths and Feminist Fables Andrea Cornwall, Elizabeth Harrison, Ann Whitehead, 2009-02-23 This collection brings together leading feminist thinkers who examine the struggles for interpretive power which underlies international development Questions why the insights from years of feminist gender and development research are so often turned into gender myths and feminist fables women are more likely to care for the environment are better at working together are less corrupt have a seemingly infinite capacity to survive Explores how bowdlerized and impoverished representations of gender relations have simultaneously come to be embedded in development policy and practice Traces the ways in which language and images of development are related to practice and provides a nuanced account of the politics of knowledge production Argues that struggles for interpretive power are not only important for our own sake but also for the implications they have for women's lives worldwide An informed analysis of how gender has been transformed in its transfer into development policy and how many authors are now revisiting and reflecting on their earlier work

The Expansive Moment Jack Goody, 1995-08-10 Jack Goody's book explores the development of the discipline of social anthropology through its key practitioners and how far its concerns interacted with the political and ideological debate of the interwar years It is a study of the different ideological and intellectual approaches adopted by the emerging subject of social anthropology and how far these views were incorporated into and defined by the structures and institutions in which they developed However it is also an analysis of how far the subject was created by its own response to key issues of the time colonialism specifically Africa anti-Semitism and communism Goody's approach is characteristically personal Malinowski dominates the discussion as well as Fortes Radcliffe Brown and Evans Pritchard and his own experience gathered over a wide ranging life of fieldwork informs the conclusion of the book developed and designed elsewhere yet came to be innovatively and sometimes unexpectedly transformed in Africa The authors in this volume explore how external innovations products technologies services institutions and processes have been appropriated in African societies in order to be acceptable and relevant to local conditions expectations and demands Written from different disciplinary perspectives the chapters demonstrate the depth and richness of innovation in Africa with in some cases surprising outcomes The case studies presented are on subjects as diverse as the wine industry trading stores land reforms washing powder M Pesa cassava weddings international borders guest houses urban water supply car technology shallow wells and railways and blacksmithing Que(e)rying Religion Gary David Comstock, Susan E.
