The English Rural Landscape Joan Thirsk, 2000 From pre history to the present day our landscape has been transformed by dramatic human disturbance triggered by the rise and fall of populations and their need to be fed housed and employed These changes have built up layers of evidence which today present historians with exciting new insights about land use and rural communities of the past In this groundbreaking new study Joan Thirsk and her team of distinguished contributors many of whom live in the very landscape they so intimately describe invite us to explore the historical richness of the English landscape Each chapter synthesizes the very latest thinking and provides fresh perspectives on its specific subject The first ten chapters in turn describe the characteristic features of the main regional landscape types including fenlands downlands woodlands marshlands and moorlands showing that however physically scattered they may be they have been moulded by successive generations to produce many uniting similarities

Italian Historical Rural Landscapes Mauro Agnoletti, 2012-12-09 Sustainable development and rural policies have pursued strategies where farming has been often regarded as a factor deteriorating the ecosystem But the current economic social and environmental problems of the Earth probably call for examples of a positive integration between human society and nature This research work presents more than a hundred case studies where the historical relationships between man and nature have generated not deterioration but cultural environmental social and economic values The results show that is not only the economic face of globalization that is negatively affecting the landscape but also inappropriate environmental policies The CBD UNESCO program on biocultural diversity the FAO Globally Important Agricultural Heritage Systems and several projects of the International Union of Forest Research Organizations as well as European rural policies acknowledge the importance of cultural values associated to landscape This research intends to support these efforts

Rural Landscapes of the Punic World Hartley Lachter, 2013-01-18 Phoenician and Punic archaeology have long been overlooked by Mediterranean archaeologists who focused their attention on Greek and Roman cultures Although the Punic cities and their rural landscapes are to be found along the southern shores and on the islands of the western Mediterranean basin comprehensive studies of these archaeological remains are virtually non existent This book investigates Punic rural settlement in the western Mediterranean by bringing together and comparing the currently dispersed existing evidence for rural Punic settlement The core of the volume is accordingly made up by a detailed discussion of the archaeological evidence for Punic rural settlement from Sardinia Sicily Ibiza mainland Spain and North Africa Because agriculture and agrarian produce have always been assumed to have played a critical role in the Carthaginian colonial expansion the connections between the various colonial contexts and the local characteristics of rural organisation are explored in detail in order to enhance our understanding of these colonial contexts This in turn provides better insight into Carthaginian colonialism and local Punic rural settlement and their role in the wider Mediterranean context By publishing this evidence and these interpretations in English the authors hope to draw attention to Punic archaeology in general and to these rural studies in particular and to situate them in the wider Mediterranean context of both classical Antiquity and Mediterranean archaeology

Poquosin Jack Temple Kirby, 2014-12-01 Jack Temple Kirby charts the history of the low country between the James River in Virginia and Albemarle Sound in North Carolina The Algonquian word for this country which means swamp on a hill was transliterated as poquosin by seventeenth century English settlers Interweaving social political economic and military history with the story of the landscape Kirby shows how Native American African and European peoples have adapted to and modified this Tidewater area in the nearly four hundred years since the arrival of Europeans Kirby argues that European settlement created a lasting division of the region into two distinct zones often in conflict with each other the cosmopolitan coastal area open to markets wealth and power because of its proximity to navigable rivers and sounds and a more isolated hinterland whose people and their way of life were gradually and grudgingly subjugated by railroads canals and war Kirby s wide ranging analysis of the evolving interaction between humans and the landscape offers a unique perspective on familiar historical subjects including slavery Nat Turner s rebellion the Civil War agricultural modernization and urbanization

A Landscape of Travel Jenny T.

Chio,2014-03-28 While the number of domestic leisure travelers has increased dramatically in reform era China the persistent gap between urban and rural living standards attests to ongoing social economic and political inequalities The state has widely touted tourism for its potential to bring wealth and modernity to rural ethnic minority communities but the policies underlying the development of tourism obscure some complicated realities In tourism after all one person s leisure is another person s labor A Landscape of Travel investigates the contested meanings and unintended consequences of tourism for those people whose lives and livelihoods are most at stake in China s rural ethnic tourism industry the residents of village destinations Drawing on ethnographic research conducted in Ping an a Zhuang village in Guangxi and Upper Jidao a Miao village in Guizhou Jenny Chio analyzes the myriad challenges and possibilities confronted by villagers who are called upon to do the work of tourism She addresses the shifting significance of migration and rural mobility the visual politics of tourist photography and the effects of touristic desires for exotic difference on village social relations In this way Chio illuminates the contemporary regimes of labor and leisure and the changing imagination of what it means to be rural ethnic and modern in China today

The Remittance Landscape Sarah Lynn Lopez,2015-01-12 Crossing anthropology with urban studies and architecture this is the first book to explore how Mexican migrants are building houses and other structures in Mexico with the money they earn in the US The author defines this as the development of remittance space a phenomenon that is changing the landscapes and economies of villages and towns throughout Mexico and not incidentally of several US cities as well including LA and Chicago While remittance building is not unique to Mexico the remittance corridor from the US to our southern neighbor is the largest in the world a flow of about 22 billion dollars in 2010 alone Lopez has identified a correspondence between this monetary flow and the construction boom in rural Mexico In fact she proposes that a Mexican s capacity to build in rural villages itself motivates migration and changes social and cultural life for migrants and their families Through careful ethnographic and architectural analysis Lopez brings migrant hometowns to life and positions them in larger critical debates about migration The research was conducted on both sides of the border Lopez worked and lived with migrants in Los Angeles and Chicago and she pursued her subject throughout the south of Jalisco not far from Guadalajara This is a dangerous area drug wars are raging and it takes courage and care to spend time there a matter covered in the book

Grave Landscapes James R. Cothran, Erica Danylchak, 2018-01-31 Growing urban populations prompted major changes in graveyard location design and use During the Industrial Revolution people flocked to American cities Overcrowding in these areas led to packed urban graveyards that were not only unsightly but were also a source of public health fears The solution was a revolutionary new type of American burial ground located in the countryside just beyond the city This rural cemetery movement which featured beautifully landscaped grounds and sculptural monuments is documented by James R Cothran and Erica Danylchak in Grave Landscapes The Nineteenth Century Rural Cemetery Movement The movement began in Boston where a group of reformers that included members of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were grappling with the city's mounting burial crisis Inspired by the naturalistic garden style and melancholy infused commemorative landscapes that had emerged in Europe the group established a burial ground outside of Boston on an expansive tract of undulating wooded land and added meandering roadways picturesque ponds ornamental trees and shrubs and consoling memorials They named it Mount Auburn and officially dedicated it as a rural cemetery This groundbreaking endeavor set a powerful precedent that prompted the creation of similarly landscaped rural cemeteries outside of growing cities first in the Northeast then in the Midwest and South and later in the West These burial landscapes became a cultural phenomenon attracting not only mourners seeking solace but also urbanites seeking relief from the frenetic confines of the city Rural cemeteries predated America's public parks and their popularity as picturesque retreats helped propel America's public parks movement This beautifully illustrated volume features more than 150 historic photographs stereographs postcards engravings maps and contemporary images that illuminate the inspiration for rural cemeteries their physical evolution and the nature of the landscapes they inspired Extended profiles of twenty four rural cemeteries reveal the cursive design features of this distinctive landscape type prior to the American Civil War and its evolution afterward Grave Landscapes details rural cemetery design characteristics to facilitate their identification and preservation and places rural cemeteries into the broader context of American landscape design to encourage appreciation of their broader influence on the design of public spaces
