Rural Public Services Richard E Lonsdale, Gyorgy Enyedi, 2019-08-16 Interest in the special problems of rural areas and concern with rural development in general have increased substantially throughout much of the world in the years since about 1960 Attesting to this has been the dramatic increase in attention to rural problems in the scholarly and popular literature and by government agencies At first the dominant focus was on development projects and the creation of new jobs It was not long however until other related issues came to the fore in particular the availability and quality of public services essential to achieve economic growth and improvement and having a direct bearing on the well being of rural peoples Most nations of the world have developed plans and launched projects to improve rural public services and narrow urban rural differentials in their provision As one would expect there have been great differences between nations in the severity of problems foci of attention program strategies and their general effectiveness and degree of commitment and effort Given this diversity it seems appropriate to examine and compare rural service problems and efforts to ameliorate them in a sample of contrasting societies Implicit is the conviction that 1 all nations can learn at least something from the experiences of others and 2 by taking an international comparative view of the subject certain generalizations can be established

Beyond the Green Revolution Kenneth Dahlberg, 2012-12-06 This book which is the result of an intellectual odyssey began as an attempt to explore and map the environmental and cross cultural dimensions of the continuing spread of the green revolution that package of high yielding varieties of grain fertilizers irrigation and pesticides that constitutes the core of modern industrial agriculture In the process of traversing the terrain of several intellectual traditions and cutting through various disciplinary forests and thickets a number of striking observations were made all leading to two sobering conclusions First most intellectual maps dealing with agriculture fail to recognize it as the basic interface between human societies and their environment Because of this they are little better than the flat earth maps of earlier centuries in helping to understand global realities Second when agriculture is analyzed from a global perspective that takes evolution seriously one sees that the ecological risks as well as the energy and social costs of modern industrial agriculture make it largely inappropriate for developing countries Beyond that one can see a great need within industrialized countries to develop less costly less risky and more sustainable agricultural alternatives Early in the journey it became clear that conventional disciplinary approaches were inadequate to comprehend the scope and diversity of global agriculture and that a new multilevel approach was needed It also became clear that any new approach would have to try to correct certain Western biases and blind spots

Farming Systems and Poverty John A. Dixon, David P. Gibbon, Aidan Gulliver, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2001-01-01 Small farmers produce much of the developing world's food Yet they are generally much poorer than the rest of the population in these countries and are less food secure than even the urban poor Furthermore although the majority of the world's population will live in urban areas by 2030 farming populations will not be much smaller than they are today For the foreseeable future therefore dealing with poverty and hunger in much of the world means confronting the problems that small farmers and their families face in their daily struggle for survival Through an examination of a wide variety of farming systems across the developing world this book co published with the World Bank shows how the farming systems approach can be used to identify key local regional and international priorities for the reduction of hunger and poverty

World Development Report 2009 World Bank, 2008-11-04 Rising densities of human settlements migration and transport to reduce distances to market and specialization and trade facilitated by fewer international divisions are central to economic development The transformations along these three dimensions density distance and division are most noticeable in North America Western Europe and Japan but countries in Asia and Eastern Europe are changing in ways similar in scope and speed World Development Report 2009 Reshaping Economic Geography concludes that these spatial transformations are essential and should be encouraged The conclusion is not without controversy Slum dwellers now number a billion but the rush to cities continues Globalization is believed to benefit many but not the billion people living in lagging areas of developing nations High poverty and mortality persist among the world's bottom billion while others grow wealthier and live longer lives Concern for these three billion often comes with the prescription that growth must be made spatially balanced The WDR has a different message economic growth is seldom balanced and efforts to spread it out prematurely will jeopardize progress The Report documents how production becomes more concentrated spatially as economies grow proposes economic integration as the principle for promoting successful spatial transformations revisits the debates on urbanization territorial development and regional integration and shows how today's developers can reshape economic geography

The Palgrave Handbook of Agricultural and Rural Development in Africa Evans S. Osabuohien, 2020-07-06 This handbook examines agricultural and rural development in Africa from theoretical empirical and policy stand points It discusses the challenges of the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals SDGs and assesses how poverty and other development concerns can be addressed in rural communities through agricultural transformation. Additionally, the handbook extends the Post 2015 Development Agenda and it emphasizes the importance of the agricultural sector as it is closely related to the issues of food sustainability, poverty reduction, and employment creation. The contributors suggest multiple evidence-based policies to develop the rural areas through the transformation of the agricultural sector, which can significantly benefit the African continent.

Housing and Planning References, 1975 Birth of the Geopolitical Age Shellen Xiao Wu, 2023-09-12 From the 1850s until the mid twentieth century, a period marked by global conflicts and anxiety about dwindling resources and closing opportunities after decades of expansion, the frontier became a mirror for historically and geographically specific hopes and fears. From Asia to Europe and the Americas, countries around the world engaged with new interpretations of empire and the deployment of science and technology to aid frontier development in extreme environments. Through a century of political turmoil and war, China nevertheless is the only nation to successfully navigate the twentieth century with its imperial territorial expanse largely intact. In Birth of the Geopolitical Age, Shellen Xiao Wu demonstrates how global examples of frontier settlements refracted through China's unique history and informed the making of the modern Chinese state. Wu weaves a narrative that moves through time and space, the lives of individuals and empires rise and fall, and rebirth to show how the subsequent reshaping of Chinese geopolitical ambitions in the twentieth century and the global transformation of frontiers into colonial laboratories continues to reorder global power dynamics in East Asia and the wider world to this day.

Unsettled Frontiers Sango Mahanty, 2022-02-15 Unsettled Frontiers provides a fresh view of how resource frontiers evolve over time. Since the French colonial era, the Cambodia-Vietnam borderlands have witnessed successive waves of market integration, migration, and disruption. The region has been reinvented and depleted as new commodities are exploited and transplanted from vast French rubber plantations to the enforced collectivization of the Khmer Rouge, from intensive timber extraction to contemporary crop booms. The volatility that follows these changes has often proved challenging to govern. Sango Mahanty explores the role of migration, land claiming, and expansive social and material networks in these transitions, which result in an unsettled frontier always in flux, where communities continually strive for security within ruptured landscapes.

Frontier Thinking and Human-Nature Relations E. C. H. Keskitalo, 2024-06-12 Combining historical, social, and regulative analysis, this book builds a compelling critique of frontier thinking as it continues to form our assumptions about social and environmental organisation in ways that impact, not least, the present environmental crisis. This book systematically identifies the ways in which images of nature and society are formed by the historically developed frontier-oriented narratives which have underpinned much Anglo-American and Anglocentric thought. The book confronts these conceptions at large, showing that they never held empirically and contrasts them with the situation in northern Europe, where diverging assumptions are integral to this day. Through this juxtaposition, this book illustrates not only the pervasiveness of structures of understanding in steering policy but also the varying traditions regarding how understandings of the environment can be formed This study highlights how historical thought patterns formed for very different reasons than exist today continue to shape our assumptions about nature the relation between urban and rural areas and our understanding of ourselves in relation to the environment This book will be of wide interest to a range of academics and students in the fields of geography anthropology environmental studies sociology political science and development studies amongst others The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license
