The New Peasantries Jan Douwe van der Ploeg, 2012-05-23 This book explores the position role and significance of the peasantry in an era of globalization particularly of the agrarian markets and food industries It argues that the peasant condition is characterized by a struggle for autonomy that finds expression in the creation and development of a self governed resource base and associated forms of sustainable development In this respect the peasant mode of farming fundamentally differs from entrepreneurial and corporate ways of farming The author demonstrates that the peasantries are far from waning Instead both industrialized and developing countries are witnessing complex and richly chequered processes of re peasantization with peasants now numbering over a billion worldwide The author s arguments are based on three longitudinal studies in Peru Italy and The Netherlands that span 30 years and provide original and thought provoking insights into rural and agrarian development processes The book combines and integrates different bodies of literature the rich traditions of peasant studies development sociology rural sociology neo institutional economics and the recently emerging debates on Empire     In the Shadow of History Andrew Parks Davidson, The constraints and opportunities of modernization throughout the non Western world inevitably lead to the breakdown and supplanting of older social relations and livelihoods In this volume Andrew P Davidson examines the Nuba Mountain region of western Sudan to show how individuals and families struggle to maintain or expand their well being in the face of continuous uncertainty when control of their destinies is increasingly slipping out of the comforting confines of the village He offers a comparative and historical examination of economic life in three villages to show how the older lineage system based on communalism kinship and age based hierarchy is being displaced by new forces of social organization and individual orientation which have eroded village cohesion and left the Nuba vulnerable to the Islamic dominated government in Khartoum and the ravages of the continuing Sudanese civil war Andrew P Davidson is lecturer of sociology at the University of New England at Armidale in Australia     Contested Countryside Cultures Paul Cloke, Jo Little, 2005-08-12 This book examines the other side of the countryside a place also inhabited and visited by women children teenagers the elderly gay men and lesbians black and ethnic minorities the unemployed and the poor These groups have remained largely excluded by both rural policies and the representations of rural culture The book charts the experiences of these marginalised groups and sets this exploration within the context of postmodern poststructuralist postcolonial and late feminist analysis This theoretical framework reveals how notions of the rural have been created to reflect and reinforce divisions amongst those living in the countryside

Worlds of Production Michael Storper, Robert Salais, 1997 Four basic frameworks or possible worlds of production are explored in this book These frameworks underpin the mobilization of economic resources the organization of product systems and forms of profitability Case studies examine how possible worlds support innovative production complexes

Environmental Conflict and Democracy in Canada Laurie E. Adkin, 2010-01-01 The urgent need to resolve conflicts over forests fisheries farming practices urban sprawl and greenhouse gas reductions among many others calls for a critical rethinking of the nature of our democracy and citizenship This work aims to move the ideas of green democracy and ecological citizenship from the margins to the centre of discussion and debate in Canada Environmental Conflict and Democracy in Canada offers sixteen case studies to demonstrate that environmental conflicts are always about our rights and responsibilities as citizens as well as the quality of our democratic institutions By bringing together environmental politics and democratic theory this path breaking collection charts a new course for research and activism one that reveals the deficits of citizenship and how democracy must be extended to achieve a socially just ecologically sustainable society

Good Farmer Rob J.F. Burton, Jérémie Forney, Paul Stock, Lee-Ann Sutherland, 2020-09-13 Developed by leading authors in the field this book offers a cohesive and definitive theorisation of the concept of the good farmer integrating historical analysis critique of contemporary applications of good farming concepts and new case studies providing a springboard for future research The concept of the good farmer has emerged in recent years as part of a move away from attitude and economic based understandings of farm decision making towards a deeper understanding of culture and symbolism in agriculture The Good Farmer shows why agricultural production is socially and culturally as well as economically important It explores the history of the concept and its position in contemporary theory as well as its use and meaning in a variety of different contexts including landscape environment gender society and as a tool for resistance By exploring the idea of the good farmer it reveals the often unforeseen assumptions implicit in food and agricultural policy that draw on culture identity and presumed notions of what is good The book concludes by considering the potential of the good farmer concept for addressing future emerging issues in agriculture This book will be of interest to students and scholars of food and agriculture and rural development as well as professionals and policymakers involved in the food and agricultural industry The Rural Richard Munton, 2017-05-15 The rural has long been regarded as an important site of geographical inquiry even if our understanding of it has not always been treated as conceptually different from the urban That said rural research has pursued a number of distinct empirical agendas ranging from the operation and impacts of agribusiness to local resistance to global food supply chains to differing representations of the rural In doing so rural geographers have critically examined the relevance and significance of ideas drawn from numerous traditions including political economy ecological modernization and cultural theory amending them as appropriate in their search to understand the nature and trajectory of rural areas Up until the 1980s attention remained largely focused upon agriculture as the primary land use but increasingly new forms of rural consumption housing recreation nature conservation have taken centre stage as the primacy of local agricultures has been undermined by reduced state protection and new rural populations which have migrated out from the city More recently research has been dominated by the cultural turn with particular emphases upon society nature relations interpretations of landscape marginalised others and analyses of the relations between representation and practice In the last decade a more holistic view of the rural bringing together different aspects of the two previous themes has emerged through more politically oriented studies of rural governance concerned with the functioning of interest groups participation protest and the allocation and management of resources The volume is thus structured into three sections concerned with agriculture and food the rural and rural governance The great majority of the selected papers combine both empirical material often highly informative case studies and important conceptual arguments about change in the rural condition that can be linked to ideas being employed elsewhere in Geography and the Social Sciences more generally These critical reflections have been drawn very largely from research conducted in advanced economies which at least provide some commonality of experience allowing the transfer of ideas between what otherwise might be seen as very differing geographical contexts

Constructing The Countryside Terry Marsden,Jonathon Murdoch,Philip Lowe,Richard C Munton,Andrew Flynn,2005-08-16 As the first book in the Restructuring Rural Areas series Constructing the countryside presents a new methodological approach to the analysis of rural change The authors seek to link wider developments in the global political economy to the behaviour of local actors and in so doing they place research into rural studies much more firmly than hitherto in the mainstream of social science enquiry The outcome is a book that promotes a truly interdisciplinary approach through which the constant reconstruction of the countryside can be properly understood This holistic perspective sustained by an historical analysis of rural change has been made possible by the extensive research experience of the authors The book is a product of the work done at the London Countryside Research Centre which was set up in 1989 by the Economic and Social Research Council The Centre s research has focused upon the social and political forces for change in rural areas and how these relate to rapid alterations in national economic circumstances and to public policies affecting the countryside for example the Common Agricultural Policy of the EC On the one hand the book provides a set of insights into the trends that will guide rural change in advanced economies into the next century on the other it offers a challenging account of how they can be investigated Constructing the countryside will appeal to both students and staff in a wide range of social science disciplines including agricultural economics environmental management planning land economy geography and rural sociology and to all those concerned with the future development of rural areas This book is intended for students and researchers in rural planning and environmental geographical studies whether within a geographical or a sociological milieu investigates the complex effects of the state on everyday life using an historical agricultural case study of place to explore long running sociohistorical processes of change examined through both a macro and micro sociological lens This provides a multi faceted perspective from which to examine economic social and cultural transformations in each of these contexts and change is examined through multiple sites of expression public policy and the role of the state colonial processes of dispossession social and cultural systems of value economic change and its consequences farming practices and lived experience neoliberalism and globalisation and their social impacts community decline and trends toward corporate and foreign land ownership Each of these transformations impact upon lived experience and everyday life and this book provides grounded insight into exactly this relationship and process
