Not by Bread Alone Robert Nalbandov, 2016-01-01 Since its independence in 1991 Russia has struggled with the growing pains of defining its role in international politics After Vladimir Putin ascended to power in 2000 the country undertook grandiose foreign policy projects in an attempt to delineate its place among the world's superpowers With this in mind Robert Nalbandov examines the milestones of Russia's international relations since the turn of the twenty first century He focuses on the specific goals engagement practices and tools used by Putin's administration to promote Russia's vital national and strategic interests in specific geographic locations His findings illuminate Putin's foreign policy objective of reinstituting Russian global strategic dominance Nalbandov argues that identity based politics have dominated Putin's tenure and that Russia's east west split is reflected in Asian European politics Nalbandov's analysis shows that unchecked domestic power an almost exclusive application of hard power and determined ambition for unabridged global influence and a defined place as a world superpower are the keys to Putin's Russia

The Future of Energy Carla Isabel Fernandes, Teresa F. Rodrigues, 2019 This book presents the main conclusions reached by the academic project

Geopolitics of Gas and the Future of the Euro Russian Relations Geo4GER This project is being developed at IPRI Portuguese Institute of International Relations NOVA University an academic research institute dedicated to advanced studies in Political Science and International Relations of NOVA University of Lisbon Portugal Energy security is a key issue on the international political agenda a prerequisite for political stability and economic development and an indivisible part of a state s overall security For Europe the high energy insufficiency is a major challenge given its dependence on external sources especially from Russia the lack of diversification of energy sources and the poor branch of its transmission network For Russia energy has been a geopolitical factor of power and a potential strategic vector to its re emergence as a great power in the international system However in terms of energy Russia also faces some long term challenges given the fall of its production and the low competitiveness of its gas which is currently saved from the market where competition can hardly enter Given this scenario and also the increasingly important role in the political and strategic discussion of energy issues between Europe and Russia it becomes relevant to diagnose the past and the present to forecast the medium and long term future 2030 taking into account the expected changes in the geopolitical and energetic environment and the characteristics and dynamics of European Russian relationship including its energy interdependence and the energy policies and strategies outlined by Europe and Russia

Europe's Near Abroad Dieter Mahncke, Sieglinde Gstöhl, 2008 In the context of the enlargements of 2004 and 2007 the European Union needed a concept for the future relationship with its new neighbours The result was the development of the European Neighbourhood Policy ENP In return for sharing European values and effectively implementing political economic and institutional reforms the EU offers economic incentives and closer ties to its eastern and southern neighbours The ambitious objective of promoting stability security and prosperity beyond its own borders raises questions about the Union s intentions means and likely success This volume analyses the logic and institutional origins of the ENP and provides a critical assessment of the promises and prospects of the EU s broader neighbourhood policies It does so both from an issue oriented perspective e g security visa policy trade aid human rights good governance and a regional standpoint eastern Europe the Mediterranean the Western Balkans and Russia

The Post-Soviet Russian Orthodox Church Katja Richters, 2012 In recent years the Russian Orthodox Church has become a more prominent part of post Soviet Russia A number of assumptions exist regarding the Church s relationship with the Russian state that the Church has always been dominated by Russia s secular elites that the clerics have not sufficiently fought this domination and occasionally failed to act in the Church s best interest and that the Church was turned into a Soviet institution during the twentieth century This book challenges these assumptions It demonstrates that church state relations in post communist Russia can be seen in a much more differentiated way and that the church is not subservient very much having its own agenda Yet at the same time it is sharing the state s and Russian society s nationalist vision The book analyses the Russian Orthodox Church s political culture focusing on the Putin and Medvedev eras from 2000 It examines the upper echelons of the Moscow Patriarchate in relation to the governing elite and to Russian public opinion explores the role of the church in the formation of state religious policy and the church's role within the Russian military. It discusses how the Moscow Patriarchate is asserting itself in former Soviet republics outside Russia especially in Estonia, Ukraine and Belarus. It concludes by re-emphasising that although the church often mirrors the Kremlin's political preferences it most definitely acts independently.

European Space Policy Thomas Hoerber, Paul Stephenson, 2015-09-25 Space policy is at the cutting edge of current EU policy developments and is a fascinating object of study involving multiple and diverse actors. It is also an original and contemporary lens for studying European policy making. This book explores advances in European space policy and their significance for European integration. Using a framing methodology it addresses central questions in European studies in order to form an interdisciplinary bridge between current research in space policy and contemporary European political studies. It assesses the interests of EU institutions in space and how these institutions perceive space policy.

Furthermore it demonstrates that space is a cross-cutting policy domain affecting a diverse range of EU policy fields such as security, transport and migration and underpinning the 21st century European and global economy. In doing so this volume firmly locates space policy in the field of European Studies. This innovative volume will be of key interest to students and scholars of a range of policy areas including common foreign and security policy, technology policy, transport policy, internal market policies, environmental policy, development aid and disaster risk management as well as the EU institutions.

From Cooperation to Partnership: Moving Beyond the Russia-EU Deadlock Bertelsmann Stiftung, 2013-11-25 Europeans can be proud as they look back on fifty years of peaceful integration. Nowadays many people worldwide see the European Union as a model of how states and their citizens can work together in peace and freedom. However this achievement does not automatically mean that the EU has the ability to deal with the problems of the future in a rapidly changing world. The European Union must continue developing its unity in diversity dynamically be it with regard to energy issues, the euro, climate change or new types of conflict. Indeed self-assertion and solidarity are key to the debates shaping our future. Europe in Dialogue wishes to make a contribution to these open debates. The analyses in this series subject political concepts, processes and institutions to critical scrutiny and suggest ways of reforming internal and external European policymaking so that it is fit for the future. However Europe in Dialogue is not merely trying to encourage an intra-European debate and makes a point of including authors from non-EU states. Looking at an issue from different angle or from afar creates a shift in perspective which in turn renders Europe's development more meaningful as it engages in critical dialogue with other societies.
