Eastern Belarus stimulated national activism in Western Belarus Sporadic partisan warfare against Polish authorities occurred until the mid 1920s with Lithuanian and Soviet support On both sides of the border Belarusian activists engaged in a process of mythmaking and national mobilization By 1926 Belarusian political activism had peaked but then waned when coups d etats brought authoritarian rule to Poland and Lithuania The year 1927 saw a crackdown on the Western Belarusian national movement and in Eastern Belarus Stalin s consolidation of power led to a brutal transformation of society and the uprooting of Belarusian national communists As a small group of elites Belarusian nationalists had been dependent on German Lithuanian Polish and Soviet sponsors since 1915 The geopolitical rivalry provided opportunities but also liabilities After 1926 maneuvering this complex and progressively hostile landscape became difficult Support from Kaunas and Moscow for the Western Belarusian nationalists attracted the interest of the Polish authorities and the increasingly autonomous republican institutions in Minsk became a concern for the central government in the Kremlin As Rudling shows Belarus was a historic battleground that served as a political tool borderland and buffer zone between greater powers Nationalism arrived late was limited to a relatively small elite and was suppressed in its early stages The tumultuous process however established the idea of Belarusian statehood left behind a modern foundation myth and bequeathed the institutional framework of a proto state all of which resurfaced as building blocks for national consolidation when Belarus gained independence in 1991

Parliaments in the Late Russian Empire, Revolutionary Russia, and the Soviet Union Ivan Sablin,2024-02-12 This book examines the meanings that were attached to the terms parliament and parliamentarism in the different historical and discursive contexts of the late Russian Empire revolutionary and Soviet Russia and the Soviet Union It discusses those institutions referred to as parliaments by contemporaries gives special attention to their functions and traces the broader debates on parliamentarism within Russia and the Soviet Union in Russian migr circles and among foreign observers It highlights that only the late imperial and perestroika assemblies can be considered legislative institutions that expressed dissensus but argues that other assemblies often referred to as rubber stamp parliaments due to their lack of legislative competence and influence over other authorities should not be dismissed The Supreme Soviet for instance provided an integrative function binding society and elites in a top down manner while its deputies engaged in information acquisition and state micromanagement through interactions with their constituents It also played an important role in interparliamentary relations and as one of the first institutions of nominal parliamentarism in an autocratic single party regime of which there were many in the twentieth century served as a model for numerous state socialist regimes By addressing the role of parliaments in reassembling imperial spaces through political representation and the functions of nominal legislative institutions the book explores the contribution of Russian and Soviet assemblies to global political modernity

The Russian Revolutions Max Weber, 1995 Will challenges to Russia's ruling regime lead to a constitutional government Can Russia develop and sustain the institutions of a market economy and a liberal state Which groups and leaders will emerge as the agents of liberalization These questions which resonate today in the aftermath of the demise of the Soviet Union were posed by Max Weber in 1905 when he decided to document the revolutionary upheaval in Tsarist Russia Available here for the first time in English translation are Weber's chronicles of the 1905 Revolution accompanied by two brief essays on the 1917 political crisis that prefigured the Bolshevik Revolution

Revolutionary Russia, 1891-1991 Orlando Figes, 2014-04-08 From the author of A People's Tragedy an original reading of the Russian Revolution examining it not as a single event but as a hundred year cycle of violence in pursuit of utopian dreams In this elegant and incisive account Orlando Figes offers an illuminating new perspective on the Russian Revolution While other historians have focused their examinations on the cataclysmic years immediately before and after 1917 Figes shows how the revolution while it changed in form and character nevertheless retained the same idealistic goals throughout from its origins in the famine crisis of 1891 until its end with the collapse of the communist Soviet regime in 1991 Figes traces three generational phases Lenin and the Bolsheviks who set the pattern of destruction and renewal until their demise in the terror of the 1930s the Stalinist generation promoted from the lower classes who created the lasting structures of the Soviet regime and consolidated its legitimacy through victory in war and the generation of 1956 shaped by the revelations of Stalin's crimes and committed to making the Revolution work to remedy economic decline and mass disaffection Until the very end of the Soviet system its leaders believed they were carrying out the revolution Lenin had begun With the authority and distinctive style that have marked his magisterial histories Figes delivers an accessible and paradigm shifting reconsideration of one of the defining events of the twentieth century

The Geography of Nationalism in Russia and the USSR Robert J. Kaiser,2017-03-14 The Geography of Nationalism in Russia and the USSR is an important addition to the small library of essential works on the collapse of the Soviet empire The first attempt to construct and test broad theoretical propositions about place and territoriality in the making of nations it examines the critical social processes underlying the formation of nations and homelands in Russia and the USSR during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries Robert Kaiser finds that for the most part national self consciousness was only beginning to supplant a localist mentality by the time of World War I The national problem faced by Lenin was fundamentally different from the more difficult nationalist challenge that confronted Gorbachev In Kaiser s place based theory the homeland once created in the imaginations of the indigenous masses powerfully structured national processes and international relations Indigenization from below became an active competitor with nationality policies that promoted Russification resulting in the restructuring of ethnic stratification to favor indigenes in their own respective home republics and to challenge Russian dominance outside Russia The revolutionary changes occurring since 1989 Kaiser argues should therefore be seen as part of a longer process of indigenization Originally published in 1994 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905
