Zachary and the Magic Spectacles Rachel Freier Miller Sivek, 2012 I was inspired to write this book because I was bullied as a child I know how cruel children can be but also how most children who bully are not bad children I believe that all children are good inside I began this book in 2007 and I have worked on it over the last few years with the help of many family members and friends In the beginning my cousin Shayda gave me the wonderful and necessary child perspective My brother Zachary was the inspiration for the name but not the character I want to thank my older sister Sarah my husband Gary and my college roommate Michelle for being inspirations for the names of the other characters Thank you also to my supporters and editors Mom Dad Cathy and Stephen Thank you Gary for supporting me through all parts of my life Thank you Robert Fuller for encouraging me to write this book Lastly I would like to thank my elementary school teachers Ms Chong and Ms Masatani for helping me edit this book for the elementary audience I hope this book helps parent s teach their children empathy respect and dignity I hope this book gives a voice to the child who is being bullied at school but also provides a role model to the child who bullies Enjoy The Magic Spectacles Chauncey Giles, 1868 The Magic Spectacles. panoramas presented their audiences with resplendent representations that ranged from historic battles to exotic locations. Such panoramas were immersive but static. There were other panoramas that moved hundreds and probably thousands of them. Their history has been largely forgotten. In Illusions in Motion Erkki Huhtamo excavates this neglected early manifestation of media culture in the making. The moving panorama was a long painting that unscrolled behind a window by means of a mechanical cranking system accompanied by a lecture music and sometimes sound and light effects. Showmen exhibited such panoramas in venues that ranged from opera houses to church halls creating a market for mediated realities in both city and country. In the first history of this phenomenon Huhtamo analyzes the moving panorama in all its complexity investigating its relationship to other media and its role in the culture of its time. In his telling the panorama becomes a window for observing media in operation. Huhtamo explores such topics as cultural forms that anticipated the moving panorama: theatrical panoramas, the diorama, the panoramania of the 1850s and the career of Albert Smith, the most successful showman of that era, competition with magic lantern shows, the final flowering of the panorama in the late nineteenth century and the panorama's afterlife as a topos traced through its evocation in literature, journalism, science, philosophy and propaganda.

With a glossary of Fancy Nancy's Fancy Words in the back, this addition to the Fancy Nancy I Can Read series is sure to delight young readers everywhere.
