Magistrates Decision Making In Child Protection Cases:

Magistrates' Decision-Making in Child Protection Cases Rosemary Sheehan, 2018-02-06 This title was first published in 2001 Making decisions about the care and protection of children who appear before the courts is complex Attention must be paid to the best interests of the child the child's need for their family community views on parenting and concern about welfare intrusion into family life Magistrates have a unique authority to make or reject child protection orders yet the criteria they use to decide a protection order how they understand the information presented to them in court and the factors that influence their discretion and decision making have until now been little known Presenting the findings of a study undertaken at Melbourne Children's Court this book offers a much needed investigation of how magistrates actually make child protection decisions Case examples highlight this decision making and the book thus offers practical assistance to professionals working with children in the legal process Child Safety Therese Roe Lund, Jennifer L. Renne, 2009

Prosecuted But Not Silenced Maralee McLean, 2018-07-24 Prosecuted But Not Silenced is a powerful documentary about a mother and daughter's tragic involvement with the judicial system when there were allegations of child sexual abuse a human rights and civil rights issue for women and children It is an important educational tool for judges lawyers social workers therapists politicians and the general public so that people realize what still occurs today A National Health Crisis Maralee's story reveals the last taboo and a crime that needs the public's attention and emphasizes the need for training in the dynamics of maltreatment so that no more mothers have to suffer what happened to Maralee and her daughter

'Crossover' Children in the Youth Justice and Child Protection Systems Susan Baidawi, Rosemary Sheehan, 2019-11-15 Crossover Children in the Youth Justice and Child Protection Systems explores the outcomes faced by the group of children who experience involvement with both child protection and youth justice systems across several countries including the United States United Kingdom Canada New Zealand and Australia Situated against a backdrop of international evidence and grounded in a two year study with the Children's Court in Victoria Australia this book presents a cohesive picture of the backgrounds characteristics and pathways traversed by crossover children It presents statistical data from 300 crossover Children's Court case files alongside the expert evidence of 82 professionals to generate a comprehensive picture of the lives of crossover children and the individual and systemic challenges that they face The book investigates the crucial question of why some children involved with child welfare systems experience particularly poor criminal justice outcomes demonstrating how the convergence of cumulative childhood adversity complex support needs and systemic disadvantage produces acutely damaging outcomes for some crossover youth It outlines the implications of the study including how these findings might shape diversion and differential justice system responses to child protection involved youth and the innovative approaches adopted internationally to avert the care to custody pathway This book is internationally relevant and will be of great interest to students and scholars of criminology and law social work psychology and sociology as
