Childhood and Schooling in (Post)Socialist Societies Iveta Silova, Nelli Piattoeva, Zsuzsa Millei, 2017-12-07 This book explores childhood and schooling in late socialist societies by bringing into dialogue public narratives and personal memories that move beyond imaginaries of Cold War divisions between the East and West Written by cultural insiders who were brought up and educated on the eastern side of the Iron Curtain spanning from Central Europe to mainland Asia the book offers insights into the diverse spaces of socialist childhoods interweaving with broader political economic and social life These evocative memories explore the experiences of children in navigating state expectations to embody model socialist citizens and their mixed feelings of attachment optimism dullness and alienation associated with participation in building socialist futures Drawing on the research traditions of autobiography autoethnography and collective biography the authors challenge what is often considered normal and natural in the historical accounts of socialist childhoods and engage in re writing histories that open space for new knowledges and vast webs of interconnections to emerge This book will be compelling reading for students and researchers working in education sociology and history particularly those within the interdisciplinary fields of childhood and area studies The authors of this beautiful book are professional academics and intellectuals who grew up in different socialist countries Exploring socialist childhoods in myriad ways they draw on memories and collective history emotional insider knowledge and the measured perspective of an analyst What emerges is life that was caught between real optimism and dullness ethical commitments and ideological absurdities selfless devotion to children and their treatment as a political resource Such attention to detail and examination of the paradoxical nature of this time makes this collective effort not only timely but remarkably genuine Alexei Yurchak University of California USA

Thinking Differently Gabrielle Griffin, Rosi Braidotti, 2002-10 This book is the first to ask whether there is a specifically European dimension to certain major issues in Women's Studies It strives to create a synergetic debate among different disciplines and cultural traditions in Europe and in doing so fills some gaps in our knowledge about women and enriches debates hitherto dominated by Anglo American influences Among the new areas of enquiry opened up in this book by the specificities of European Women's Studies are The fact that Europe has repeatedly experienced warfare on its own territory which has impacted significantly on women Hence the focus in this volume on women and militarism and on ethnic cleansing as an attack on the family The abidingly problematic relationship between feminism and anti semitism and issues of migration and whiteness in a context where racism reflects the colonial histories of particular European countries The importance of passion and the emotions as well as psychoanalytical theory for politics particularly in Southern and Eastern European countries Current problems facing Europe including the decline of the welfare state the phenomenon of the single woman and the relationship between women's rights and human rights The diverse faces of feminist movements in particular European countries Reading feminism from a European perspective will enable readers to reflect upon the ways in which changes in political social and cultural positions and practices over the past century in Europe have impacted on feminist thinking and theorizing The volume raises important issues about the transfer of feminist concepts across cultures and languages And to English speaking audiences the volume also offers fresh viewpoints on some of the key debates in Women's political and economic change which swept through what used to be referred to as the Communist Bloc With the disintegration of this bloc there has been no shortage of western advice on how to democratize economy and polity in these societies However little thought has been given to what this change means for the millions of women who have toiled for decades alongside men in the factories and fields as well as performing their womanly mission in the home This collection from women in Eastern and Western Europe and covering both Europe and China poses many questions about the impact of change It contributes to the debate that seeks to combat inertia and ethnocentrism within western feminism and also to the separate and the critical women s voice which is re emerging in the Soviet Union Eastern Europe and China Women & Gender in Central and Eastern Europe, Russia, and Eurasia: Southeastern and East Central Europe Mary Fleming Zirin,2007 A multidisciplinary and multilingual bibliography on Women and Gender in East Central Europe and the Balkans Vol 1 and The Lands of the Former Soviet Union Vol 2 This two volume set deals with the topics ranging from legal status and marital customs to economic participation and gender roles Shifting Voices Agatha Schwartz,2007-12-18 Previous scholarly attention to Hapsburg culture has emphasized its German centred aspects Shifting Voices brings a new focus to the Hapsburg Empire s rich Hungarian component through a comparative feminist analysis of women s literary contributions in Austria and in Hungary Knowing Feminisms Liz Stanley,1997-03-10 Knowing Feminisms looks at feminism as a vital source of new knowledge and new ways of working throughout a range of disciplines It also scrutinizes the sometimes highly problematic forms its presence within academia can take The contributors all well known feminist academics discuss the epistemological and ontological borderlands that feminisms inhabit which although within still remain other to the academy The book addresses fundamentally important questions such as Should feminists work within traditional disciplines or abandon them in favour of Women s Studies Is the idea of feminist pedagogy as empowerment actually one which de skills Does the feminist transformation of some academic disciplines signify that these are no longer significant sites of knowledge and or power Do the essential organizational features of disciplines and institutions depend upon repressive means or is it possible to transform these according to feminist principles Are some disciplines and types of institutions particularly resistant to feminist ideas Is an intellectual home for feminism ever possible or desirable within academia or is critical thinking best done from the margins Can Women s Studies as an organizational presence within the university encompass dissenting positions on these foundational questions or will it contain and control what can be said and by whom Gender and Identity in Central and Eastern Europe Chri Corrin,2014-02-04 This collection highlights changes in Central and Eastern Europe since 1989 from the perspectives of gender and identity Resistance to the negative consequences of certain changes demonstrate that women s activities have played a large part in democratic developments in various countries Working Difference Éva Fodor,2003-01-20 Working Difference is one of the first comparative historical studies of women s professional access to public institutions in a state socialist and a capitalist society va Fodor examines women s inclusion in and exclusion from positions of authority in Austria and Hungary in the latter half of the twentieth century. Until the end of World War II, women's lives in the two countries, which were once part of the same empire, followed similar paths which only began to diverge after the communist takeover in Hungary in the late 1940s. Fodor takes advantage of Austria and Hungary's common history to carefully examine the effects of state socialism and the differing trajectories to social mobility and authority available to women in each country. Fodor brings qualitative and quantitative analyses to bear, combining statistical analyses of survey data, interviews with women managers in both countries, and archival materials including those from the previously classified archives of the Hungarian communist party and transcripts from sessions of the Austrian Parliament. She shows how women's access to power varied in degree and operated through different principles and mechanisms in accordance with the stratification systems of the respective countries. In Hungary, women's mobility was curtailed by political means, often involving limited access to communist party membership, while in Austria, women's professional advancement was affected by limited access to educational institutions and the labor market. Fodor discusses the legacies of Austria's and Hungary's gender regimes following the demise of state socialism and during the process of integration into the European Union.
