Lotus Flower of the Heart Douglas Shaw,1997      Buddhist Missionaries in the Era of Globalization Linda Learman,2004-11-30 This insightful volume dispels the common notion that Buddhism is not a missionary religion by revealing Asian Buddhists as active agents in the propagation of their faith It presents at the same time a new framework with which to study missionary activity in both Buddhist and other religious traditions Included are case studies of Theravada Chinese and Tibetan Buddhist teachers and congregations as well as the Pure Land Shingon Zen and Soka Gakkai traditions of Japan Contributors examine both foreign and domestic missions and the activities of emigrant communities showing the resources and strategies garnered by late nineteenth and twentieth century Buddhists who worked to uphold and further their respective traditions often under difficult circumstances Based on anthropological fieldwork and historical research the essays break new ground and provide better analytical tools for studying mission activity than previously available They provide instructive comparisons with Anglo American Protestant missionary thinking and offer insights into the internal dynamics of Sri Lankan and Japanese missions as they make their way in Protestant and Catholic societies Also included are nuanced studies of two major missionary figures in late twentieth century Chinese Buddhism and a fascinating look at the present Dalai Lama's relationships with his devotees and the American government viewed through an exposition of the abiding tradition within Tibetan Buddhism that combines mission activity with the political goals of exiled lamas Contributors Stuart Chandler Peter B Clarke C Julia Huang Steven Kemper Linda Learman Sarah LeVine Richard K Payne Cristina Rocha George J Tanabe Jr Gray Tuttle      Democracy's Dharma Richard Madsen,2007-11-13 This title explores the remarkable religious renaissance that has reformed revitalized and renewed the practices of Buddhism and Daoism in Taiwan Madsen connects these developments to Taiwan's transition to democracy and the burgeoning needs of its new middle classes

THE THIRTY-SEVEN PRINCIPLES OF ENLIGHTENMENT Translated by Norman Yuan, 1999-01-01 I am very impressed by Dharma Master Cheng Yen Thich Nhat Hanh Dharma Master Cheng Yen is a role model for us all Dalai Lama The Thirty Seven Principles of Enlightenment contains 7 parts 1 The Four Right Efforts 2 The Four Steps Towards Obtaining Supernatural Powers 3 The Four Considerations 4 The Five Roots 5 The Five Strengths 6 The Seven Factors of Wisdom and 7 The Noble Eightfold Path The Buddha reminded us to practice the Thirty Seven Principles to Enlightenment which tells us the way to live a wholesome life We must have right views and correct belief think in a wholesome way and earn our living honestly When we are inspired to do good and serve as a bodhisattva it takes just the slightest setback to upset us and make us afflicted Then we want to quit When we start to have the intention and conviction to do good very quickly our faith in what we are doing wavers and we lose our conviction It's all because we are upset or we resent others for not treating us well So we really have to be on guard against this and always be vigilant to stop ourselves from developing such a wrong mentality We need to always check to see whether our good intentions have changed whether we've slackened or stopped and whether our convictions are gone Then we need to ask ourselves whether we have unintentionally injured people and made them lose their good intentions or convictions The Thirty Seven Principles of Enlightenment teaches us to reflect and realize how the body is unclean realize that feelings cause suffering realize our thoughts are impermanent and realize that all phenomena are empty of a true permanent self We must be cautious in all we do We have to take good care of our heart and mind and stay true to our Buddha nature by removing any wrong that has already started preventing any wrong from starting beginning doing good deeds and continuing to do good deeds We must never postpone doing good deeds or put off correcting our wrongs because regret is too high a price to pay We must avoid all that is wrong and do all that is good and wholesome because life is too short Like the morning dew drop that disappears once the sun rises life is as fleeting as a dream and as fragile as a bubble Since our life is so transient we should apply such truth in our daily life and think in seconds and not years A day is made up of 86 400 seconds Life changing incident can happen any second that means the difference between life and death To be safe and well at each second we ought to be very grateful At every passing second let us harbor a heart of gratitude and prevent our thoughts from going astray The Buddha's teachings are a wonderful guide especially when we live in turbulent times and natural disasters are happening at an alarming rate The Buddha wanted everyone to realize the truth of suffering its cause and the way to eliminate it and He exhorted all to faithfully uphold and walk the Eightfold Path Let us not rely only on knowledge to guide us in life but wisdom too When we do what is right we are using our wisdom When we refrain from doing what is wrong we are also using our wisdom We should learn quickly That will be a true blessing      Charisma and Compassion C. Julia Huang,2009-01-31 Tzu Chi Compassion Relief began as a tiny grassroots women s charitable group today in Taiwan it runs three state of the art hospitals a television channel and a university Based on extensive fieldwork in Taiwan Malaysia Japan and the United States this book explores the transformation of Tzu Chi      Signs and Symbols Adrian Frutiger,1998 Discusses the elements of a sign and looks at pictograms alphabets calligraphy monograms text type numerical signs symbols and trademarks      The Conservation of Cave 85 at the Mogao Grottoes, Dunhuang Neville Agnew,Lori Wong,2014-02-01 The Mogao Grottoes a World Heritage Site in northwestern China are located along the ancient caravan routes collectively known as the Silk Road that once linked China with the West Founded by a Buddhist monk in the late fourth century Mogao flourished over the following millennium as monks local rulers and travelers commissioned hundreds of cave temples cut into a mile long rock cliff and adorned them with vibrant murals More than 490 decorated grottoes remain containing thousands of sculptures and some 45 000 square meters of wall paintings making Mogao one of the world s most significant sites of Buddhist art In 1997 the Getty Conservation Institute which had been working with the Dunhuang Academy since 1989 began a case study using the Late Tang dynasty Cave 85 to develop a methodology that would stabilize the deteriorating wall paintings This abundantly illustrated volume is the definitive report on the project which was completed in 2010      Taiwan's Tzu Chi as Engaged Buddhism Yu-Shuang Yao,2012-05-16 This book is the first comprehensive sociological account and in depth analysis of a new Chinese Buddhist movement known as Tzu Chi otherwise the Buddhist Compassion Merit Society Based in Taiwan it was founded in 1966 and still led by a female Buddhist master Master Cheng Yen Its members are laity and women play a major role The main focus of the movement is medical charity to ease and if possible prevent suffering and to teach ethics to the wealthy at the same time it also offers members a religion and a way of life Recruitment typically attracts people from the urban middle class With some 3 5 million members and a very low drop out rate Tzu Chi is extraordinarily successful and has spread to other parts of the world not least mainland China where it is attracting the attention of the general public and the media The book stands in the Anglo American tradition of the sociology of religion it also draws on the author s knowledge of Buddhist history The data come from participant observation and many long interviews It will be of particular interest to students of new religious movements religious studies in contemporary China and studies in ethics and social change in East Asia      The Works of Li Qingzhao Ronald Egan,2019-01-29 Previous translations and descriptions of Li Qingzhao are molded by an image of her as lonely wife and bereft widow formed by centuries of manipulation of her work and legacy by scholars and critics all of them male to fit their idea of a what a talented woman writer would sound like The true voice of Li Qingzhao is very different A new translation and presentation of her is needed to appreciate her genius and to account for the sense that Chinese readers have always had despite what scholars and critics were saying about the boldness and originality of her work The introduction will lay out the problems of critical refashioning and conventionalization of her carried out in the centuries after her death thus preparing the reader for a new reading Her songs and poetry will then be presented in a way that breaks free of a narrow autobiographical reading of them distinguishes between reliable and unreliable attributions and also shows the great range of her talent by including important prose pieces and seldom read poems In this way the standard image of Li Qingzhao exemplified by a handful of her best known and largely misunderstood works will be challenged and replaced by a new understanding The volume will present a literary portrait of Li Qingzhao radically unlike the one in conventional anthologies and literary histories allowing English readers for the first time to appreciate her distinctiveness as a writer and to properly gauge her achievement as a female alternative as poet and essayist to the male literary culture of her day
