Corporations and International Lawmaking Stephen Tully, 2007-11-30

The classical model of international lawmaking posits governments as exclusively authoritative actors However commercially oriented entities have long been protagonists within the prevailing international legal order concluding contracts and resolving disputes with governments Is the international legal personality of corporations undergoing further qualitative transformations Corporations influence the State practice constitutive of custom and create refashion or challenge normative rules The corporate willingness to fill legal lacunae where governments do not exercise their full regulatory responsibility is also observable through resort to alternative legal mechanisms Corporations moreover contribute directly to treaty negotiations and occupy crucial roles during subsequent implementation Indeed an analysis of the access conditions and participatory modalities for non State actors could support a right to participate under common international procedural law Their substantive contributions are also evident when corporations participate in enforcing international law against governments through national courts diplomatic protection including the WTO and arbitration including NAFTA However the practice of intergovernmental organizations reveals several challenges including managing corporate interaction with developing country governments and other non State actors Acknowledging corporate contributions also has important implications for national regulatory autonomy the ability of governments to mediate contested policy issues the democratic legitimacy of the contemporary lawmaking process and an understanding of consent as the underlying basis for international law
