Weeks, 1898     Tropic of Cancer (Harper Perennial Modern Classics) Henry Miller, 2012-01-30 Miller's groundbreaking first novel banned in Britain for almost thirty years     With the Animals Noelle Revaz, 2012-05-22 With the Animals Noelle Revaz's shocking debut is a novel of mud and blood whose linguistic audaciousness is matched only by its brutality, misanthropy, and gallows humor which paint a portrait of masculinity gone mad. Considered the standard bearer for the great Franco-Swiss literary tradition exemplified by authors such as Jacques Chessex and C.F. Ramuz, Noelle Revaz may also remind English language readers of Louis Ferdinand Celine. With the Animals her shocking debut is a novel of mud and blood whose linguistic audaciousness is matched only by its brutality, misanthropy, and gallows humor. Narrated by the singular Paul, a violent narrow-minded farmer whose unceasing labor leaves him with more love for his livestock than his family, With the Animals is at once a fantastically exaggerated and entirely honest portrait of masculinity gone mad. With his mute and detested wife and children huddled at his side, Paul is only roused from his regimen of hard labor and casual cruelty when a farmhand, Georges, comes to work on his property for the summer. His sovereignty seemingly threatened, an element of unwanted humanity now injected into his universe, Paul's little kingdom seems ripe at last for a revolution.     Catherine & Diderot Robert Zaretsky, 2019-02-18 A dual biography crafted around the famous encounter between the French philosopher who wrote about power and the Russian empress who wielded it with great aplomb. In October 1773, after a grueling trek from Paris, the aged and ailing Denis Diderot stumbled from a carriage in wintery St. Petersburg. The century's most subversive thinker, Diderot, arrived as the guest of its most ambitious and admired ruler, Empress Catherine of Russia. What followed was unprecedented: more than forty private meetings stretching over nearly four months between these two extraordinary figures. Diderot had come from Paris in order to guide or so he thought the woman who had become the continent's last great hope for an enlightened ruler. But as it soon became clear, Catherine had a very different understanding, not just of her role but of his as well. Philosophers, she claimed, had the luxury of writing on unfeeling paper. Rulers had the task of writing on human skin, sensitive to the slightest touch. Diderot and Catherine's series of meetings held in her private chambers at the Hermitage captured the imagination of their contemporaries. While heads of state like Frederick of Prussia feared the consequences of these conversations, intellectuals like Voltaire hoped they would further the goals of the Enlightenment. In Catherine & Diderot, Robert Zaretsky traces the lives of these two remarkable figures, inviting us to reflect on the fraught relationship between politics and philosophy and between a man of thought and a woman of action.     Punching Out Paul Clemens, 2012-01-17 An elegy, angry, funny, and powerfully detailed about the slow death of a Detroit auto plant and an American way of life. How does a country dismantle a century's worth of its industrial heritage? To answer that question, Paul Clemens investigates the 2006 closing of one of America's most potent symbols, a Detroit auto plant. Prior to its closing, the Budd Company stamping plant on Detroit's East Side, built in 1919, was one of the oldest active auto plants in America's foremost industrial city, one whose history includes the nation's proudest moments and those of its working class. Its closing also reflects the character of the country in a new era the sad brutal process of picking it apart and sending it piece by piece to the countries that now have use for its machines Punching Out is an up close report at once tender and angry from the meanest sharpest edge of America's deindustrialization and a lament for a working class culture that once defined a prosperous America and that is now on the verge of economic extinction
