Ashner, Mitch Meyerson, 1991-05 Running on Empty Jonice Webb, 2012-10-01 A large segment of the population struggles with feelings of being detached from themselves and their loved ones They feel flawed and blame themselves Running on Empty will help them realize that they're suffering not because of something that happened to them in childhood but because of something that didn't happen It's the white space in their family picture the background rather than the foreground This will be the first self help book to bring this invisible force to light educate people about it and teach them how to overcome it I Only Say This Because I Love You Deborah Tannen, 2002-05-28 Why does talk in families so often go in circles leaving us tied up in knots In this illuminating book Deborah Tannen the linguist and bestselling author of You Just Don't Understand and many other books reveals why talking to family members is so often painful and problematic even when we're all adults Searching for signs of acceptance and belonging we find signs of disapproval and rejection Why do the seeds of family love so often yield a harvest of criticism and judgment In I Only Say This Because I Love You Tannen shows how important it is in family talk to learn to separate word meanings or messages from heart meanings or metamessages unstated but powerful meanings that come from the history of our relationships and the way things are said Presenting real conversations from people's lives Tannen reveals what is actually going on in family talk including how family conversations must balance the longing for connection with the desire for control as we struggle to be close without giving up our freedom This eye opening book explains why grown women so often feel criticized by their mothers and why mothers feel they can't open their mouths around their grown daughters why growing up male or female or as an older or younger sibling results in different experiences of family that persist throughout our lives and much much more By helping us to understand and redefine family talk Tannen provides the tools to improve relationships with family members of every age

Conditional Love Meira Weiss, 1994-02-28 Questioning the myth of unconditional love between parents and children this study examines the strength of the parental bond when children are born with physical defects The author a social scientist studied parents' behavior toward 1 450 children born with defects in three hospitals in Israel and then conducted follow up studies over a period of six years with 200 families in their homes One of the major recurring patterns of parental behavior was a massive tendency toward rejection of deformed children The author describes how the deformity causes confusion in the parents' cognitive system labeling the child with a name such as monster or devil or creature or another non human category Parents' reactions to their children's body image are discussed and the concept of body boundaries is analyzed This study refutes most assumptions in the literature and shows that forming bonds with one's biological child is not necessarily spontaneous automatic or natural and that every child undergoes a process of adoption or rejection based on external appearance and whether or not that appearance matches the parents' image of a person From product description
