Love: An Unromantic Discussion

Mary Evans

Blackwell Publishers

978-0-7456-2073-2

(Dec 20, 2002)

What do Madame Bovary, Jane Eyre, and Bridget Jones have in common? They all suffer for love, of course.

They also work, for the author, as literary examples of the real-life pain that most people in the Western world experience at one time or another. While unlucky circumstances usually take the blame for this heartache, Evans argues that it's not obstacles to love that cause the problem, but the notion of romantic love itself.

In this exhaustively researched book, Evans explains how unrealistic aspirations for love—specifically of the erotic variety—have preoccupied Western society for the past 200 years. Referencing sources ranging from Sigmund Freud to Susan Faludi, she demonstrates how perceptions of love have evolved over the decades, influenced by social developments including the women's movement and changing attitudes toward sex.

Love's one constant quality? It causes big trouble. In addition to the personal pain, there's disruption to society when individuals devote themselves to chasing a romantic illusion at the cost of more lasting—and attainable—connections.

"Dare we entertain the idea of a world without love and could another vocabulary, in which words such as care, commitment and desire were more often used, actually make us happier?" Evans writes. "Would we, could we, live more fulfilled and contented lives without the emotional state which we describe as 'love'?"

Evans is a prominent feminist scholar and a professor at the Center for Women's Studies, University of Kent at Canterbury. While her prose is generally crisp and accessible, she does occasionally get carried away with academic-speak, like in this passage, for example: "The question to be asked in the following pages is thus about the state of health of 'love' at the beginning of the twenty-first century: is it a redundant concept in a secular, sexually liberalized society or does it still exist, and should we encourage its existence as a necessary, passionate assertion of our humanity against the calculative normality of late capitalism?" Fortunately, such lapses are rare.

Love An Unromantic Discussion:

Love Mary Evans, 2002 Love Mary Evans, 2002-12-13 Since the end of the eighteenth century the pursuit of true love has been enshrined in the expectations of Western societies We regard this pursuit as our right and organize our lives around it However the possibility that love is becoming more difficult to achieve in the West has begun to attract considerable attention The consensus is that love is both deeply desirable and extremely difficult to find This highly original book explores two aspects of the nature of the apparently socially essential glue of love The first theme concerns the sources of our ideas about love where the concept originated and most importantly what its relationship has been to morality and moral systems The second theme is our determination to find love whatever the social and personal costs the desire for identification with another person drives us to impossible expectations and occasionally damaging alternatives In a compelling critique this book rejects the high romantic version of love as well as what could be described as a contractual version of love In their place it describes a love that depends upon reasoned care and commitment and argues that we should abandon love in its romanticized and commercialized form Atheism and Love in the Modern Era Colby Dickinson, 2025-04-17 Discussing the decline of faith and the rise of love in the modern era Colby Dickinson proposes a critique of religious belief which addresses how a secular world can continue to mine religious traditions for their conceptual and emotional riches Atheism and Love in the Modern Era argues that theism and atheism taken together can peel back the layers of abstraction alienation and disillusionment that always accompany our humanity in order to help us really see how it is to exist in this world To illuminate this vision Dickinson takes up the notion of love as a cultivation and practice of indifference as a letting go of one's identity a crucial concept that unites both religion and atheism through a concerted effort to detach from them both The book is organized into four sections each situating the concept of love in relation to a distinct theme the first outlines modern secularized versions of various religious concepts such as technology in the place of miracles or art in the place of religious revelation The second argues that in a pluralistic world the actual lived realities of various religious communities and persons defy the static categories and classifications grouped under the umbrella of religion The third section discusses and defines non absolute love The fourth section discusses how atheism in its critiques of religion misses the significance of de centring the act of love Dickinson elaborates his reflections through lucid engagement with a variety of thinkers including i ek Agamben Irigaray Derrida Erich Fromm Charles Taylor and Philip Kitcher This is essential reading for those interested in popular debates around theism and atheism as well as those concerned with the ways in which continental and analytic philosophy have addressed the continued significance of religious traditions Love Anna G. Jónasdóttir, Ann Ferguson, 2013-11-12 This unique timely book of original essays sets the stage for a new materialist feminist debate on the analysis ethics and politics of love The contributors raise questions about social power and domination situating their research in a materialist feminist perspective that investigates love historically in order to understand changing ideologies representations and practices The essays range from studies of particular representations and examples of love feminist translation mass media images and internet love blogs to feminist theories of love and marriage to ethical and political theories describing critiquing or advocating the use of love in groups as a radical force They break new ground in bringing together questions of gendered interests in love temporal dimensions of loving practices and the politics of love in radical transformations of society

The Radicality of Love Srećko Horvat, 2016-01-11 What would happen if we could stroll through the revolutionary history of the 20th century and without any fear of the possible responses ask the main protagonists from Lenin to Che Guevara from Alexandra Kollontai to Ulrike Meinhof seemingly naïve questions about love Although all important political and social changes of the 20th century included heated debates on the role of love it seems that in the 21st century of new technologies of the self Grindr Tinder online dating etc we are faced with a hyperinflation of sex not love By going back to the sexual revolution of the October Revolution and its subsequent repression to Che's dilemma between love and revolutionary commitment and to the period of 68 from communes to terrorism and its commodification in late capitalism the Croatian philosopher Srećko Horvat gives a possible answer to the question of why it is that the most radical revolutionaries like Lenin or Che were scared of the radicality of love What is so radical about a seemingly conservative notion of love and why is it anything but conservative This short book is a modest contribution to the current upheavals around the world from Tahrir to Taksim from Occupy Wall Street to Hong Kong from Athens to Sarajevo in which the question of love is curiously surprisingly absent

Love and Intimacy in Contemporary Society Ann Brooks, 2019-12-06 Love and Intimacy in Contemporary Society reflects on relationships in contemporary society and the role of love and intimacy in framing lives The book draws on sociological perspectives cultural sociology and gender theory perspectives It looks at how love and intimacy is experienced differently and intersected by gender ethnicity race and sexuality This book aims to encourage people to understand theories of intimacy emotions and desire by examining these concepts contemporaneously and cross culturally It also explores how love and intimacy is experienced by young people and how it is impacted by age It looks at its representation in the media and film and focuses on how gender ethnicity and sexuality offer different perspectives on love and intimacy The book shows how relationships are impacted by social networking and new technologies and the opportunities and challenges posed by these new platforms for building relationships Finally the book examines how intimacy has become commercialised in late capitalism and how that acts to change relationships The book is written in an accessible way and explores a range of theoretical debates and contemporary research around emotions which can be useful for undergraduate postgraduate and doctoral study

Love in Jozi: The Black Middle Class, Love and Intimacy in Johannesburg Grace Khunou, 2024-12-31 At its core this book illuminates the intricate landscape of relationships societal expectations and personal aspirations within Johannesburg's Black middle class Through nuanced research and compelling narratives the authors draw meaningful connections between individual experiences and broader demographic and cultural trends Each chapter provides a deep thoughtful exploration of topics such as race gender class sexuality and the intersectionality of these identities Written with remarkable accessibility and scholarly rigour the book invites readers from diverse backgrounds to engage with complex social dynamics The narratives are at once intimate and analytical revealing the multifaceted nature of love intimacy and relationships in contemporary Black middle class life Beyond academic discourse this work represents a significant contribution to our understanding of identity social transformation and personal resilience By exploring the evolving dynamics of relationships in Johannesburg the authors invite readers to reflect on how societal changes shape individual lives and how Black middle class experiences continually redefine success connection and community in our global context

Gender and Consumption Lydia Martens, Emma Casey, 2016-04-15 Drawing upon anthropological sociological and historical perspectives this volume provides a unique insight into women's domestic consumption The contributors argue that domestic consumption represents an important lens through which to examine the everyday production and reproduction of socio economic relations Through a variety of case studies such as gambling wedding day consumption and bedroom decor the essays explore and reconsider the nature of public and private spaces and the subsequent nature of domestic space often by challenging traditional notions of what constitutes the domestic The volume demonstrates the broad range of experiences that domestic consumption offers women and reveals some of the complex meanings and motivations underpinning women's consumption practices

Modern Couples? Jenny van Hooff, 2016-04-15 Have heterosexual relationships become more intimate and equal over the past forty years Simply put this is the central question underpinning this book Within the context of late modern social processes including most notably individualization and detraditionalization authors such as Giddens Beck and Beck Gernsheim and Bauman have come to focus on a posited transformation of personal relationships This has culminated in a sociological debate over the nature of contemporary relationships with proponents of change celebrating the emergence of an intimacy based on personal satisfaction rather than traditional obligations Detractors reject this interpretation and instead lament what they consider to be the destruction of commitment and the demoralisation of personal relationships by the rise of individualism and consumerism While these two entrenched positions have dominated the debate a third marginalised perspective has emerged which questions the extent to which contemporary relationships have become detraditionalized and emphasises evidence of continuing gender inequalities This book is essentially a qualitative empirical investigation of the changes and continuities posited within the debate which evaluates existing work and details the findings of van Hooff's research into the relationships of two generations of heterosexual couples It provides the reader with a grounded interpretation of the evidence questioning to what extent lived reality has matched the rhetoric within contemporary relationships

The Tenacity of the Couple-Norm Sasha Roseneil, Isabel Crowhurst, Tone Hellesund, Ana Cristina Santos, Mariya Stoilova, 2020-11-05 The Tenacity of the Couple Norm explores the ongoing strength and insidious grip of couple normativity across changing landscapes of law policy and everyday life in four contrasting national contexts the UK Bulgaria Norway and Portugal By investigating how the couple norm is lived and experienced how it has changed over time and how it varies between places and social groups this book provides a detailed analysis of changing intimate citizenship regimes in Europe and makes a major intervention in understandings of the contemporary condition of personal life The authors develop the feminist concept of intimate citizenship and propose the new concept of intimate citizenship regime offering a study of intimate citizenship regimes as normative systems that have been undergoing profound change in recent decades Against the backdrop of processes of depatriarchalization liberalization pluralization and homonormalization the ongoing potency of the couple norm becomes ever clearer

The New Single Woman E. Kay Trimberger, 2006-10-15 Drawing on stories from diverse women who have been single for many years Trimberger explodes the idea that fulfillment comes only through coupling with a soulmate Instead she presents an exciting new identity for women in the twenty first century the new single woman a woman who is content with her single life These gripping personal accounts of how single women's lives evolve over time combined with Trimberger's incisive analysis blend to provide a much needed cultural roadmap for every single woman who is striving to create a satisfying and meaningful life Trimberger's all inclusive paradigm shifting notion is one that ultimately strengthens and enriches both single women and couples

Governments and Marriage Education Policy Elizabeth van Acker, 2008-07-11 This book examines the role governments play in managing policy challenges such as religion romance gender relations same sex marriages and privacy protection in response to social changes in marriage Elizabeth van Acker asks whether governments can or should intervene in this personal sphere

Transnational Homosexuals in Communist Poland Lukasz Szulc, 2017-07-03 This book traces the fascinating history of the first Polish gay and lesbian magazines to explore the globalization of LGBT identities and politics in Central and Eastern Europe during the twilight years of the Cold War It details the emergence of homosexual movement and charts cross border flows of cultural products identity paradigms and activism models in communist Poland The work demonstrates that Polish homosexual activists were not locked behind the Iron Curtain but actively participated in the transnational construction of homosexuality Their magazines were largely influenced by Western magazines used similar words discussed similar topics or simply translated Western texts and reproduced Western images However the imported ideas were not just copied but selectively adopted as well as strategically and creatively adapted in the Polish magazines so their authors could construct their own unique identities and build their own original politics
