Langhorn and Mary--A 19th Century American Love Story Priscilla Stone Sharp,2024-11 Imagine a young African American man and German American woman falling in love and eloping in rural 1835 Bucks County Pennsylvania

Sounds unbelievable yet it's true. It is the most unique story of its kind that was hidden away for 135 years. Langhorn H and Mary Stone Wellings were modest working class people who wanted nothing more than to be left in peace with their three children. But they were inescapably caught up in the events and issues of the time: slavery, abolition, Underground Railroad, racism, Civil War, family estrangement, religious fervor. Their marriage lasts thirty years until 1865 when Mary succumbs to apoplexy. Langhorn's grief soon turns to horror and his life is shattered when he is arrested and accused of murdering his wife by poison. As the community's prejudice and animosity simmer to the surface, Langhorn faces trial and the terrifyingly real possibility of hanging. LANGHORN AND MARY is a timeless and unforgettable tale that men and women of all ages will appreciate. It is all in one book: a historical novel, a docudrama, a love story and an adventure. It is American history seen through the eyes of those who lived it. Victoria & Albert: A Royal Love Affair Daisy Goodwin, Sara Sheridan, 2017-11-21

Set in Pittsburgh and spanning the Victorian years 1837-1901, this is a story of family, commitment, love, and loss set against the backdrop of the glass industry for which Pittsburgh was famous long before steel. Crystal Reflections chronicles the early days of the industrial revolution, before the organizations of the great titans: Andrew Carnegie, Charles Schwab, Henry Clay Frick, John D. Rockefeller, and George Westinghouse. At the time, glass manufacturing reigned supreme in western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Ohio. As this factory boom was taking place along the shores of Pittsburgh's three rivers, a bright, ambitious boy emigrated with his family from Germany and he would soon come to figure prominently in the glassmaking business His name was Paul Zimmerman Raised by a Lutheran minister Paul conducted himself in accordance with the teachings of his faith He developed a personal code of ethics that mostly steered him the right way yet sometimes failed him in the same way unwavering passions can break down anyone's resolve With the best of intentions toward his fellow man Paul Zimmerman did a lot of good yet he would ultimately succumb to life's negative forces Paul had many friends but also a few enemies One of those enemies Harry McCabe shadowed him through his life They had common interest in a beautiful young Irish girl named Amy driven by vastly different reasons She was the love of Paul's life For Harry she was an object and the ultimate victim of his pathological rage They both made lifelong commitments to the glass industry Paul as a manager and Harry as a representative of labor Their paths would unintentionally cross throughout their lives even after Amy disappeared At each intersection of their lives violence and mayhem would usually follow Paul married Harriette Dithridge the daughter of Edward Dithridge patriarch of a manufacturing family in Victorian Pittsburgh and soon became a significant force in the industry Paul eventually ran their flagship factory the Fort Pitt Glass Works along with his brother in law Edward Dithridge Jr They would struggle with the demise of the glass industry as a dearth of capital a preference for human labor over modern mechanization and poor labor relations stood as barriers to long term growth and prosperity It was during this struggle and in pursuit of business goals that Paul found Amy who had created a new life in Martins Ferry Ohio Both young and impassioned their relationship was rekindled instantly After an evening of emotional and physical engagement Paul apologetically insisted out love and duty to his family that the affair must end and he returned to Pittsburgh disturbed and burdened with what might have been He was also made uncomfortably aware of the existence of a son a son he never knew existed The struggle between forces of management and labor weighed heavily on him Following the early death of his wife circumstances allowed him to reunite with Amy Even though they had reached into deep middle age their passion resumed and Paul enjoyed a relationship with the adult son he never knew he had Life was good again but Paul fell ill with a mysterious condition that would ultimately lead to his death It was in this weakened state that he had his ultimate struggle with Harry McCabe a struggle that ended with Harry's destruction

Male Suicide and Masculinity in 19th-century Britain Lyndsay Galpin, 2022-04-07 This book shows how interpretations of suicidal motives were guided by gendered expectations of behaviour and that these expectations were constructed to create meaning and understanding for family friends and witnesses Providing an insight into how people of this era understood suicidal behaviour and motives it challenges the assertion that suicide was seen as a distinctly feminine act and that men who took their own lives were feminized as a result Instead it shows that masculinity was understood in a more nuanced way than gender binaries allow and that a man's masculinity was measured against other men Focusing on four common narrative types the love suicide the unemployed suicide the suicide of the fraudster or speculator and the suicide of the dishonoured soldier it provides historical context to modern discussions about the crisis of masculinity and rising male suicide rates It reveals that narratives around male suicides are not so different today as they were then and that our modern model of masculinity can be traced back to the 19th century
