Plaster Monuments Mari Lending, 2022-06-14 We are taught to believe in originals In art and architecture in particular original objects vouch for authenticity value and truth and require our protection and preservation The nineteenth century however saw this issue differently In a culture of reproduction plaster casts of building fragments and architectural features were sold throughout Europe and America and proudly displayed in leading museums The first comprehensive history of these full scale replicas Plaster Monuments examines how they were produced marketed sold and displayed and how their significance can be understood today Plaster Monuments unsettles conventional thinking about copies and originals As Mari Lending shows the casts were used to restore wholeness to buildings that in reality lay in ruin or to isolate specific features of monuments to illustrate what was typical of a particular building style or era Arranged in galleries and published in exhibition catalogues these often enormous objects were staged to suggest the sweep of history synthesizing structures from vastly different regions and time periods into coherent narratives While architectural plaster casts fell out of fashion after World War I Lending brings the story into the twentieth century showing how Paul Rudolph incorporated historical casts into the design for the Yale Art and Architecture building completed in 1963 Drawing from a broad archive of models exhibitions catalogues and writings from architects explorers archaeologists curators novelists and artists Plaster Monuments tells the fascinating story of a premodernist aesthetic and presents a new way of thinking about history s artifacts
