Love the Earth! Barbara Linse, Marty Links, 1991 Young children learn concern for the environment

Love God, Heal Earth Sally G. Bingham, 2009 Foremost religious leaders from diverse faith communities respond to the most controversial question of our time Can we save the earth The answer could hinge on the phenomenon of the fast growing interfaith religious environmental movement The author makes the case for environmental stewardship that cuts across old divisions of faith and politics She presents 20 fellow religious leaders and eminent scholars from rabbis to evangelicals to Catholics Muslims and Buddhists each contributing an original essay chapter with personal stories of awakening to the urgent need for environmental awareness and action From all parts of the religious and political spectrum they come together to tell why caring for the earth is a spiritual mandate giving chapter and verse and offering plans of action that go beyond the walls of religious congregations and out into the broader community

Real Love Andrew Ross, 2013-11-05 In Real Love Andrew Ross one of our preeminent social critics explores the vital connection between economic life and cultural expression From the consequences of cyberspace for work and play to the uses and abuses of genetics in the O J trial from world scarcity to world music Ross interrogates the cultural forms through which economic forces take their daily toll upon our communities and environment Examining the effects of debates about race technology ecology and the arts on social and legal change Ross focuses in particular on how demands for certain forms of cultural justice often go hand in hand with injustices of other sorts and shows why cultural politics are a real and inescapable part of any argument for social change

Affluence and Freedom Pierre Charbonnier, 2021-06-22 In this pathbreaking book Pierre Charbonnier opens up a new intellectual terrain an environmental history of political ideas His aim is not to locate the seeds of ecological thought in the history of political ideas as others have done but rather to show that all political ideas whether or not they endorse ecological ideals are informed by a certain conception of our relationship to the Earth and to our environment The fundamental political categories of modernity were founded on the idea that we could improve on nature that we could exert a decisive victory over its excesses and claim unlimited access to earthly resources In this way modern thinkers imagined a political society of free individuals equal and prosperous alongside the development of industry geared towards progress and liberated from the Earth's shackles Yet this pact between democracy and growth has now been called into question by climate change and the environmental crisis It is therefore our duty today to rethink political emancipation bearing in mind that this can no longer draw on the prospect of infinite growth promised by industrial capitalism Ecology must draw on the power harnessed by nineteenth century socialism to respond to the massive impact of industrialization but it must also rethink the imperative to offer protection to society by taking account of the solidarity of social groups and their conditions in a world transformed by climate change This timely and original work of social and political theory will be of interest to a wide readership in politics sociology environmental
