Architecture of Use Stephen Grabow, Kent Spreckelmeyer, 2014-10-03 By analyzing ten examples of buildings that embody the human experience at an extraordinary level this book clarifies the central importance of the role of function in architecture as a generative force in determining built form Using familiar twentieth century buildings as case studies the authors present these from a new perspective based on their functional design concepts Here Grabow and Spreckelmeyer expand the definition of human use to that of an art form by re evaluating these buildings from an aesthetic and ecological view of function Each building is described from the point of view of a major functional concept or idea of human use which then spreads out and influences the spatial organization built form and structure In doing so each building is presented as an exemplar that reaches beyond the pragmatic concerns of a narrow program and demonstrates how functional concepts can inspire great design evoke archetypal human experience and help us to understand how architecture embodies the deeper purposes and meanings of everyday life

They All Fall Down Richard Cahan, 1994-09-01 Richard Nickel whom I had the delight of knowing during his all too brief life is one of the unsung heroes of Chicago architecture He was not an architect himself nor a designer He simply took pictures but what pictures He was for want of a better description one of the most sensitive of architectural photographers More than that his life and ironically tragically and poetically his death were fused to Chicago architecture How he died tells us how he lived for the beauty in the works of Sullivan Wright and the others His story is one that must be told Studs Terkel author He was completely understanding of architecture and genius and of the quality of the work he was dealing with He was single minded in his pursuit and dedication to quality in history art and architecture That is an increasingly rare quality

Ada Louise Huxtable former New York Times architecture critic Richard was an excellent photographer sensitive and intelligent and a very good craftsman John Szarkowski former Director Photography Museum of Modern Art New York Richard Nickel was one of those who saw architecture and who passionately and skillfully pursued its portrayal He was one of a very small number and to make his work known would be a fundamental service to architects students and teachers as well as to the art of architecture
