Real Education Charles Murray,2008-08-19 With four simple truths as his framework Charles Murray the bestselling coauthor of The Bell Curve sweeps away the hypocrisy wishful thinking and upside down priorities that grip America's educational establishment Ability varies Children differ in their ability to learn academic material Doing our best for every child requires above all else that we embrace that simplest of truths America's educational system does its best to ignore it Half of the children are below average Many children cannot learn more than rudimentary reading and math Real Education reviews what we know about the limits of what schools can do and the results of four decades of policies that require schools to divert huge resources to unattainable goals Too many people are going to college Almost everyone should get training beyond high school but the number of students who want need or can profit from four years of residential education at the college level is a fraction of the number of young people who are struggling to get a degree We have set up a standard known as the BA stripped it of its traditional content and made it an artificial job qualification Then we stigmatize everyone who doesn't get one For most of America's young people today's college system is a punishing anachronism America's future depends on how we educate the academically gifted An elite already runs the country whether we like it or not Since everything we watch hear and read is produced by that elite and since every business and government department is run by that elite it is time to start thinking about the kind of education needed by the young people who will run the country The task is not to give them more advanced technical training but to give them an education that will make them into wiser adults not to pamper them but to hold their feet to the fire The good news is that change is not only possible but already happening Real Education describes the technological and economic trends that are creating options for parents who want the right education for their children teachers who want to be free to teach again and young people who want to find something they love doing and learn how to do it well These are the people for whom Real Education was written It is they not the politicians or the educational establishment who will bring American schools back to reality Twenty four years ago Charles Murray s Losing Ground changed the way the nation thought about welfare Real Education is about to do the same thing for America s schools Empty Ideas Peter Unger,2017 During the middle of the twentieth century philosophers generally agreed that by contrast with science philosophy should offer no substantial thoughts about the general nature of concrete reality Instead philosophers offered conceptual truths It is widely assumed that since 1970 things have changed greatly This book argues that s an illusion that prevails because of the failure to differentiate between concretely substantial and concretely empty ideas Embrace the Chaos Bob Miglani,2013-10-07 An accomplished Fortune 50 executive translates for a western audience the lessons he learned from the land of his birth India Bob Miglani was stressed out burnt out and stuck until he rediscovered the enduring lessons of his childhood celebrate impermanence serve others and move forward no matter what Bob s message chaos isn t going away embrace it Ready to Learn Tara Beteille,Namrata Tognatta,Michelle Riboud,Shinsaku Nomura,Yashodhan Ghorpade,2020-03-06 Countries that have sustained rapid growth over decades have typically had a strong public commitment to expanding education as well as to improving learning outcomes South Asian countries have made considerable progress in expanding access to primary and secondary schooling with countries having achieved near universal enrollment of the primary school age cohort ages 6 11 except for Afghanistan and Pakistan Secondary enrollment shows an upward trend as well Beyond school many more people have access to skilling opportunities and higher education today Although governments have consistently pursued policies to expand access a prominent feature of the region has been the role played by nonstate actors private nonprofit and forprofit entities in expanding access at every level of education Though learning levels remain low countries in the region have shown a strong commitment to improving learning All countries in South Asia have taken the first step which is to assess learning outcomes regularly Since 2010 there has been a rapid increase in the number of large scale student learning assessments conducted in the region But to use the findings of these assessments to improve schooling countries must build their capacity to design assessments and analyze and use findings to inform policy
