Cosmopolitan Vistas Tom Lutz, 2004 In a major statement on the relation of art and politics in America Tom Lutz identifies a consistent ethos at the heart of American literary culture for the past 150 years Through readings of Sherwood Anderson Willa Cather Hamlin Garland Ellen Glasgow Sarah Orne Jewett Sinclair Lewis Edgar Lee Masters Claude McKay Edith Wharton Anzia Yezierska and others Lutz identifies what he calls literary cosmopolitanism an ethos of representational inclusiveness of the widest possible affiliation and at the same time one of aesthetic discrimination and therefore exclusivity At the same time that it embraces the entire world in Lutz's view literary cosmopolitanism necessitates an evaluative stance and it is this doubleness this combination of egalitarianism and elitism that animates American literature since the Civil War The nineteenth century's realists and sentimentalists the writers of the Harlem Renaissance and of the Southern Renaissance the firebrands who brought in the new canon and the traditionalists who struggled to save the old all ascribe Lutz argues to the same cosmopolitan values however much they disagree on what these values demand of those who hold them

The Cambridge Introduction to American Literary Realism Phillip J.

Barrish,2011-10-06 Between the Civil War and the First World War realism was the most prominent form of American fiction. Realist writers of the period include some of America's greatest such as Henry James, Edith Wharton and Mark Twain but also many lesser known writers whose work still speaks to us today for instance Charles Chesnutt, Zitkala-a and Sarah Orne Jewett. Emphasizing realism's historical context this introduction traces the genre's relationship with powerful often violent social conflicts involving race, gender, class and national origin. It also examines how the realist style was created, the necessarily ambiguous relationship between realism produced on the page and reality outside the book and the different often contradictory forms realism took in literary works by different authors. The most accessible yet sophisticated account of American literary realism currently available this volume will be of great value to students, teachers and readers of the American novel.

Writing Out of Place Judith Fetterley, Marjorie Pryse, 2003 In a series of sketches regionalist writers such as Alice Cary, Mary E Wilkins Freeman, Sarah Orne Jewett, Grace King, Alice Dunbar Nelson, Sui Sin Far and Mary Austin critique the approach to regional subjects characteristic of local color and present narrators who serve as cultural interpreters for persons often considered out of place by urban readers. In their approach to these writers Fetterley and Pryse offer contemporary readers an alternative vantage point from which to consider questions of regions and regionalism in the global economy of our own time. A World of Regions Peter J. Katzenstein, 2015-05-01 Observing the dramatic shift in world politics since the end of the Cold War Peter J Katzenstein argues that regions have become critical to contemporary world politics. This view is in stark contrast to those who focus on the purportedly stubborn persistence of the nation state or the inevitable march of globalization. In detailed studies of technology and foreign investment, domestic and international security and cultural diplomacy and popular culture Katzenstein examines the changing regional dynamics of Europe and Asia which are linked to the United States through Germany and Japan. Regions Katzenstein contends are interacting closely with an American imperium that combines territorial and non territorial powers. Katzenstein argues that globalization and internationalization create open or porous regions. Regions may provide solutions to the contradictions between states and markets, security and insecurity, nationalism and cosmopolitanism. Embedded in the American imperium regions are now central to world politics.

Renegade Regionalists James M. Dennis, 1998 The Center of the World June Howard, 2018 This book studies literary regionalism and it shows that one of the ways we imagine the world is through writing and reading about particular places. It explores how writers are shaped by particular places and how their stories shape our understanding of localities and the globe.

Unipolar Politics Ethan B. Kapstein, Michael Mastanduno, 1999 This volume analyzes the decisions that major powers have made since the Cold War to adapt to a rapidly changing economic and security environment. The authors acknowledge that while great power wars are now unlikely, positional conflicts over resources and markets still remain.

The Political Economy of Regionalism in East Asia H. Yoshimatsu, 2008-04-23 An exploration of the evolution of regionalism and regional economic relations in East Asia since the late 1990s. The book analyzes moves towards free trade agreements cooperation in information technology energy and environment and agriculture by highlighting preferences and actions of governmental and business actors

Reading for Realism Nancy Glazener, 1997 Reading for Realism presents a new approach to U S literary history that is based on the analysis of dominant reading practices rather than on the production of texts Nancy Glazener's focus is the realist novel the most influential literary form of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries a form she contends was only made possible by changes in the expectations of readers about pleasure and literary value By tracing readers collaboration in the production of literary forms Reading for Realism turns nineteenth century controversies about the realist romance and sentimental novels into episodes in the history of readership It also shows how works of fiction by Rebecca Harding Davis Henry James Nathaniel Hawthorne and others participated in the debates about literary classification and reading that in turn created and shaped their audiences Combining reception theory with a materialist analysis of the social formations in which realist reading practices circulated Glazener's study reveals the elitist underpinnings of literary realism At the book's center is the Atlantic group of magazines whose influence was part of the cultural machinery of the Northeastern urban bourgeoisie and crucial to the development of literary realism in America Glazener shows how the promotion of realism by this group of publications also meant a consolidation of privilege primarily in terms of class gender race and region for the audience it served Thus American realism so often portrayed as a quintessentially populist form actually served to enforce existing structures of class and power

Seeking the Region in American Literature and Culture Robert Jackson, 2005-10-10 Regionalism often evokes provinciality and an affiliation with minor literary genres but Robert Jackson shows that region is an integral part of American identity providing grounding for major independent voices Jackson offers a new critical model of region that contributes to literary and cultural study across a wide range of topics He addresses American literature since the Civil War with particular attention to Mark Twain William Faulkner Flannery O'Connor and Toni Morrison In advancing their own diverse aesthetic and social agendas reactionary and progressive theological and secular gender based race based and above all dissident these writers Jackson argues articulate some of the most perceptive and innovative expressions of the American region in the literary history of the United States According to Jackson the region transcends both rigidly defined spatial categories the South of slavery the North of freedom the West of unlimited possibility and derivative cultural connotations of local color to reveal subtle and powerful insights He provides a regional reading of Twain's greatest novel The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn and a meaningful new interpretation of the work and its place in the American canon He explores Faulkner's obsession with regional identity and places the Mississippian's work in problematic relation to the Depression era Nashville Agrarian movement O'Connor searching for a critical vocabulary to confront mainstream American literature religion and gender transforms the region from a hothouse of sentimentality into a sharp deadly weapon in her short fiction Morrison's brilliant appropriation of region enables her to fashion an aesthetic that is both race conscious and endowed with revisionist agency through the region she imagines a new grounding for American identity Jackson illuminates the importance of rethinking long established assumptions and demonstrates the vast potential of the region in critical considerations of American literature and culture Even as he devotes significant attention to realism modernism southern literature and African American literature he speaks to a wide range of fields in American Cultural studies
