Rebecca Horn Rebecca Horn, Carl Albrecht Haenlein, Martin Mosebach, Sergio Edelsztejn, 2000 The Vertebrae Oracle Rebecca Horn, 2014 Rebecca Horn born 1944 is famous for her performances films drawings photographs installations and sculptures Over a period of two decades she has also produced a body of poetry This publication brings together writings dispersed throughout previously published catalogues alongside unknown texts dating from 1972 on The Farmer and the Clown Marla Frazee, 2014 A nearly wordless picture book in which a farmer rescues a baby clown who has bounced off the circus train and takes very good care of him until he can reunite the tot with his clown family See Yourself Sensing Madeline Schwartzman, 2011 Is the first book to survey the intersection between design the body science and the senses from the utopian pods and head gear of the 1960s to the high tech prostheses wearable computing implants and interfaces between computers and humans of the past decade Introduction p 6 Images of the Body in Architecture Kirsten Wagner, Jasper Cepl, 2014 The essays collected in this volume are intended to stimulate research in the anthropology of architecture on the basis of a critical history of the body and its cultural constructions The analogy between architecture and the human body is rooted in the fundamental impact the latter has on ordering symbolising and interpreting the world Correspondingly the metaphorical conceptualisation of the built environment in terms of the human body was already practiced in early cultures and has determined architectural theory since antiquity While the architectural treatises of early modern times vividly imagine anthropomorphic and anthropometric figures they seem to be overcome by an architectural theory that is based on purely rational as well as mechanical laws However these figures were never totally abandoned and Le Corbusier's Modulor is only one if not the most prominent example for their ongoing reception and transformation in modern times The human sciences of the 19th century played a significant role in this process Physiology and psychology brought about not only new experimental devices for analysing the human body and its physiological functions but also new images of the body that directly went into aesthetics art history and architectural theory This new understanding of the body had a large impact on the production and reception of modern architecture Due to this background the arts eventually became anthropologically grounded The book includes contributions from Tobias Cheung Scott Drake G nter Feuerstein Tanja Jankowiak Eckhard Leuschner Harry Francis Mallgrave Indra Kagis McEwen Irene Nierhaus Philipp Osten Heleni

Porfyriou Paolo Sanvito Christoph Schnoor Sven Olov Wallenstein Frank Zllner Beatrix Zug Rosenblatt and others
