neoliberalism was realized or not The particular case of Ecuador further potentiates analysis of the entire region wide process considering that the corrector cycle is now at an end and that the economic and international conditions that favored the return of left governments have also changed The Social Metabolism Manuel González de Molina, Víctor M.

Toledo, 2014-06-30 Over this last decade the concept of Social Metabolism has gained prestige as a theoretical instrument for the required analysis to such an extent that there are now dozens of researchers hundreds of articles and several books that have adopted and use this concept However there is a great deal of variety in terms of definitions and interpretations as well as different methodologies around this concept which prevents the consolidation of a unified field of new knowledge The fundamental aim of the book is to conduct a review of the past and present usage of the concept of social metabolism its origins and history as well as the main currents or schools that exist around this concept At the same time the reviews and discussions included are used by the authors as starting points to draw conclusions and propose a theory of socio ecological transformations The theoretical and methodological innovations of this book include a distinction of two types of metabolic processes tangible and intangible the analysis of the social metabolism at different scales in space and time and a theory of socio ecological change overcoming the merely systemic or cybernetic nature of conventional approaches giving special protagonism to collective action Aquaculture Development Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1997-01-01 Aquaculture is one of the fastest growing food production systems in the world with the bulk of its output currently being produced within developing countries and with expectations for aquaculture to continue its contributions to food security and poverty alleviation The vast majority of aquaculture practices around the world have been pursued with significant nutritional and social benefits and generally with little or no environmental costs However it is essential for current efforts aiming at the future success of aquaculture in both developing and developed countries that potential social and environmental problems are duly addressed in order to ensure that aquaculture develops sustainably This document provides annotations to the Principles of Article 9 of the Code of Conduct for Responsible Fisheries These annotations are meant to serve as general guidance and should be taken as suggestions or observations intended to assist those interested in identifying their own criteria and options for actions as well as partners for collaboration in support of sustainable aquaculture development Given the diversity in aquaculture and the sometimes different perceptions of sustainability more balanced and informed approaches are required to address developmental and environmental issues at any given location Commitment for collaboration constructive dialogues among responsible partners and participation of aquafarmers and their communities are important when assigning responsibilities for sustainable development of aquaculture Providing an enabling environment for sustainable development in aquaculture is the responsibility of people in governments and their institutions social and natural scientists media financial institutions special interest groups including social and private sector associations as well as of aquaculture producers manufacturers and suppliers of inputs processors and traders of aquaculture

Global Archaeological Theory Pedro Paulo Funari, Andrés Zarankin, Emily Stovel, 2005-01-14 Archaeological theory has gone through a great upheaval in the last 50 years from the processual theory which wanted to make archaeology more scientific to post processual theory which understands that interpreting human behavior even of past cultures is a subjective study This subjective approach incorporates a plurality of readings thereby implying that different interpretations are always possible allowing us to modify and change our ideas under the light of new information and or interpretive frameworks In this way interpretations form a continuous flow of transformation and change and thus archaeologists do not uncover a real past but rather construct a historical past or a narrative of the past Post processual theory also incorporates a conscious and explicit political interest on the past of the scholar and the subject This includes fields and topics such as gender issues ethnicity class landscapes and consumption This reflects a conscious attempt to also decentralize the discipline from an imperialist point of view to an empowering one Method and theory also means being politically aware and engaged to incorporate diverse critical approaches to improve understanding of the past and the present This book focuses on the fundamental theoretical issues found in the discipline and thus both engages and represents the very rich plurality of the post processual approach to archaeology The book is divided into four sections Issues in Archaeological Theory Archaeological Theory and Method in Action Space and Power in Material Culture and Images as Material Discourse

Agrarian Extractivism in Latin America Ben M. McKay, Alberto Alonso-Fradejas, Arturo Ezquerro-Cañete, 2021-05-30 Amid the growing calls for a turn towards sustainable agriculture this book puts forth and discusses the concept of agrarian extractivism to help us identify and expose the predatory extractivist features of dominant agricultural development models. The concept goes beyond the more apparent features of monocultures and raw material exports to examine the inherent logic and underlying workings of a model based on the appropriation of an ever growing range of commodified and non commodified human and non human nature in an extractivist fashion. Such a process erodes the autonomy of resourcedependent working people, dispossesses the rural poor, exhausts and expropriates nature and concentrates value in a few hands as a result of the unquenchable drive for profit by big business. In many instances such extractivist dynamics are subsidized and or directly supported by the state while also dependent on the unpaid productive and reproductive labour of women, children and elders, exacerbating unequal class, gender and generational relations. Rather than a one size fits all definition of agrarian extractivism, this collection points to the diversity of extractivist features of corporate led, external input dependent plantation agriculture across distinct socio ecological formations in Latin America. This timely challenge to the destructive dominant models of agricultural development will interest scholars, activists, researchers and students from across the fields of critical development studies, rural studies, environmental and sustainability studies and Latin American studies among others.
