Counterfactual Thought Experiments in World Politics Philip E. Tetlock, Aaron Belkin, 2020-06-30 Political scientists often ask themselves what might have been if history had unfolded differently if Stalin had been ousted as General Party Secretary or if the United States had not dropped the bomb on Japan Although scholars sometimes scoff at applying hypothetical reasoning to world politics the contributors to this volume including James Fearon Richard Lebow Margaret Levi Bruce Russett and Barry Weingast find such counterfactual conjectures not only useful but necessary for drawing causal inferences from historical data Given the importance of counterfactuals it is perhaps surprising that we lack standards for evaluating them To fill this gap Philip Tetlock and Aaron Belkin propose a set of criteria for distinguishing plausible from implausible counterfactual conjectures across a wide range of applications The contributors to this volume make use of these and other criteria to evaluate counterfactuals that emerge in diverse methodological contexts including comparative case studies game theory and statistical analysis Taken together these essays go a long way toward establishing a more nuanced and rigorous framework for assessing counterfactual arguments about world politics in particular and about the social sciences more broadly

Thinking about Political Psychology James H. Kuklinski, 2002-03-04 In this 2002 volume political psychologists take a hard look at political psychology They pose and then address the kinds of tough questions that those outside the field would be inclined to ask and those inside should be able to answer satisfactorily Not everyone will agree with the answers the authors provide and in some cases the best an author can do is offer well grounded speculations Nonetheless the chapters raise questions that will lead to an improved political psychology and will generate further discussion and research in the field The individual chapters are organised around four themes Part I tries to define political psychology and provides an overview of the field Part II raises questions about theory and empirical methods in political psychology Part III contains arguments ranging from the position that the field is too heavily psychological to the view that it is not psychological enough Part IV considers how political psychologists might best connect individual level mental processes to aggregate outcomes

The Idea of Political Marketing Nicholas O. O'Shaughnessy, Stephan C.M. Henneberg, 2002-06-30 O'Shaughnessy Henneberg and their contributors examine how the theory and practice of marketing has been and can be applied to politics Particular attention was paid to the theory of political marketing with conceptual definitions developed to better facilitate communication between marketing professionals and political science researchers Political marketing is about the making and unmaking of governments in a democracy Despite its growing importance the marketing academic profession has shown very little interest in the political ramifications of their discipline while political scientists often come to political marketing with the view that it is cosmetic if not trivial O'Shaughnessy Henneberg and their contributors examine how the theory and practice of marketing has been and can be applied to politics As they show elections are a persuasion task writ large most especially with the demise of inherited class loyalties Following elections governments can employ marketing techniques to build support for their actions while opposition parties can press the government and its supporters through similar marketing approaches Of particular interest to scholars researchers and policy makers involved with politics political communication and the making of public policy

Speaking of Violence Sara B. Cobb, 2013-08 In the context of ongoing or historical violence people tell stories about what happened who did what to whom and why Yet frequently the speaking of violence reproduces the social fractures and delegitimizes again those that struggle against their own marginalization This speaking of violence deepens conflict and all too often perpetuates cycles of violence Alternatively sometimes people do not speak of the violence and it is erased buried with the bodies that bear it witness This reduces the capacity of the public to address issues emerging in the aftermath of violence and repression This book takes the notion of narrative as foundational to conflict analysis and resolution Distinct from conflict theories that rely on accounts of attitudes or perceptions in the heads of individuals this narrative perspective presumes that meaning structured and organized as narrative processes is the location for both analysis of conflict as well as intervention But meaning is political in that not all stories can be told or the way they are told delegitimizes and erases others Thus the critical narrative theory outlined in this book offers a normative approach to narrative assessment and intervention It provides a way of evaluating narrative and designing better formed stories better in that they are generative of sustainable relations creating legitimacy for all parties In so doing they function aesthetically and ethically to support the emergence of new histories and new futures Indeed critical narrative theory offers a new lens for enabling people to speak of violence in ways that undermine the intractability of conflict

The Rationalizing Voter

Milton Lodge, Charles S. Taber, 2013 Political behavior is the result of innumerable unnoticed forces and conscious deliberation is often a rationalization of automatically triggered feelings and thoughts Citizens are very sensitive to environmental contextual factors such as the title President preceding Obama in a newspaper headline upbeat music or patriotic symbols accompanying a campaign ad or question wording and order in a survey all of which have their greatest influence when citizens are unaware This book develops and tests a dual process theory of political beliefs attitudes and behavior claiming that all thinking feeling reasoning and doing have an automatic component as well as a conscious deliberative component The authors are especially interested in the impact of automatic feelings on political judgments and evaluations This research is based on laboratory experiments which allow the testing of five basic hypotheses hot cognition automaticity affect transfer affect contagion and motivated reasoning

Prejudice, Politics, and the American Dilemma

Paul M. Sniderman, Philip E.
