Rebuilding After War Kenneth Simler, 2003 This report part of an extensive body of work IFPRI undertook on the state of poverty in Mozambique at the end of a long period of war zeroes in on the question of what determines living standards and poverty in Mozambique It aims to identify those public policy interventions that are likely to reduce poverty the most The authors examine household and community characteristics linked to poverty and develop a microeconomic model to measure the influence of education employment demographics agricultural technology and infrastructure on consumption Although the results of this research are directed to policymakers in Mozambique those concerned with other low income countries will find the analytical methods and findings useful especially the message that investment in human development as well as physical capital is essential to reduce poverty

The Restoration Economy Storm Cunningham, 2002 Chronicling the global industry that is revitalizing natural and man made environments Cunningham explores the rapid rise of restorative development details how the information age is catalyzing the transition from development to restoration and demonstrates how restoration is greening residential commercial and public construction

Mozambique and the Construction of the New African State Chris Alden, 2001-07-19 An original study of the internationally inspired effort to rebuild this war torn African country It seeks to understand the role of the international community in constructing a new kind of African state in the aftermath of conflict and socialism At the heart of the book is the question of sustainability of the post conflict African state against the backdrop of the multiple legacies of war socialism and regional and international intervention upon an enervated Mozambican society

Department of State Bulletin, 1985 The official monthly record of

United States foreign policy Walking the Tightrope Jaïr van der Lijn, 2006 The media generally tend to focus in particular on the failures of U N peacekeeping operations In Walking the Tightrope Jaïr Van Der Lijn draws a different conclusion He argues once a peace agreement has been signed the efforts of the U N peacekeeping operations do contribute to durable peace By analyzing the U N peacekeeping operations in Cambodia Mozambique Rwanda and El Salvador in a structured focused comparison this book shows how U N operations do have a contribution to make Explaining Post-Conflict Reconstruction Desha Girod, 2015-02-02 The international community has donated nearly one trillion dollars during the last four decades to reconstruct post conflict countries and prevent the outbreak of more civil war Yet reconstruction has eluded many of these countries and 19 million people have been killed in reignited conflict Where did the money go This book documents how some leaders do bring about remarkable reconstruction of their countries using foreign aid but many other post conflict leaders fail to do so Offering a global argument that is the first of its kind Desha Girod explains that post conflict leaders are more likely to invest aid in reconstruction when they are desperate for income and thus depend on aid that comes with reconstruction strings attached Leaders are desperate for income when they lack access to rents from natural resources or to aid from donors with strategic interests in the country Using data on civil wars that ended between 1970 and 2009 and evidence both from countries that succeeded and from countries that failed at post conflict reconstruction Girod carefully examines the argument from different perspectives and finds support for it The findings are important for theory and policy because they explain why only some leaders have the political will to meet donor goals in the wake of civil war The findings also shed light on state building processes and on the political economy of postconflict countries Paradoxically donors are most likely to achieve reconstruction goals in countries where they have the least at stake

The Spirit of the Laws in Mozambique Juan Obarrio, 2014-10-30 Mozambique has been hailed as a success story by the international community which has watched it evolve through a series of violent political upheavals from colonialism through socialism to its current democracy As Juan Obarrio shows however this view neglects a crucial element in Mozambique s transition to the rule of law the reestablishment of traditional chieftainship and customs entangled within a history of colonial violence and civil war Drawing on extensive historical records and ethnographic fieldwork he examines the role of customary law in Mozambique to ask a larger question what is the place of law in the neoliberal era in which the juridical and the economic are deeply intertwined in an ongoing state of structural adjustment Having made the transition from a people s republic to democratic rule in the 1990s Mozambique offers a fascinating case of postwar reconstruction economic opening and transitional justice one in which the customary has played a central role Obarrio shows how its sovereignty has met countless ambiguities within the entanglements of local community nation state and international structures The postcolonial nation state emerges as a maze of entangled jurisdictions Ultimately he looks toward local rituals and relations as producing an emergent kind of citizenship in Africa which he dubs customary citizenship forming not a vestige of the past but a yet ill
