

Transportation is an important thing in the modern society, every people use transportation to go to work, school and somewhere specific. There are different types of transportation which is land, air, water and rail transportation, but the people always use land and rail transportation. Since the Philippines an area that contains a chain or group of islands scattered in lakes, rivers etc hence water transport play an important role, but Road transport is much more dominant in the areas of Philippines.

The major cause of the overall low quality of the road network of any country is poor and inadequate maintenance. This is the reason where Philippines transports major lacks as a result of:

- There will insufficient financial resources being made available for maintenance.
- Also, the inadequate institutional capacity of agencies responsible for road maintenance.

The high prevalence of overloading of trucks also contributes to the low quality of the network. Axle-load surveys conducted by the DPWH in 2005 showed that 11%–12% of all trucks were overloaded. Lax enforcement of axle-load regulations compounds this problem. In addition to the low quality of the road network, the poor state of repair of much of the vehicle fleet and inadequate enforcement of traffic regulations are also major contributors to the unsatisfactory status of road transport in the Philippines. The poor quality of the road network is a main reason to the rising number of road accidents., which is evident as per the accident rate data of Philippine says.

As for the current problems concurring, as per the MMUTIS Final Report Profile of the Study Area Metro Manila or the National Capital Region (NCR), with an area of about 636 sq km, has been constantly growing rapidly. The effect of its rapid urbanization spilled over to adjoining municipalities with areas of about 3,670 sq km. The actual densely populated urbanized area today has reached about 800 sq km, far exceeding the administrative area of Metro Manila. Its population of less than two million in 1950 increased to 5.9 million in 1980 and 14.4 million in 1995, inclusive of the 4.9 million in adjoining areas. Metro Manila shares more than 20% of the country's population and its share has been increasing. In 1990-1995, the Study Area grew at a significant rate of 4.2% a year, with a faster growth rate of 5.4% in outer areas

Since there aren't sufficient funds for road maintenance, it can be a hindrance for commuters and people who are driving to work, now what we can do is Strengthen the operation of the Road Board and utilization of the Road Fund established under the Motor Vehicle User's Charge Act. Support appropriate expansion of the revenue base of road user cost recovery to a sustainable level.
