Man in Soviet Psychology Raymond Augustine Bauer, 2013-10 Soviet Psychology John McLeish, 2015-12-22 Originally published in 1975 this title sets out to show us the differences between Soviet and other ways of thinking about nature man and society The basic factor distinguishing Soviet psychology is that it views phenomena from the perspective of a highly articulated body of theoretical assumptions and rejects the inductive eclecticism of Western psychology The theoretical framework within which Soviet psychology functions is the product of a distinctive socio political and cultural development in Russia profoundly shaped by the institutions of autocracy and Orthodox religion and the economic system of serfdom and the radical revolt which grew up in opposition to this and advocated materialism secularism and atheism This radical philosophic tradition in Russia best represented by the writings of Chernishevski fused with the doctrines of Marxism and the new science of behaviour developed by Sechenov and Pavlov to create the theoretical framework of Soviet psychology The book also analyses the discussions controversies and decrees which are at the root of the contemporary science of behaviour in the Soviet Union and points to the impressive body of empirical knowledge which has arisen Soviet Psychology is unique in presenting Soviet psychology from an inside point of view and in making us appreciate the strongly theoretical stance of Soviet psychology which Professor McLeish claims is unlikely to be much influenced by the new atmosphere of d tente S.

Beyond Invisible Walls Jacob D. Lindy, Robert Jay Lifton, 2013-05-13 When the Berlin Wall fell in 1989 Westerners watched those who had survived the era of Soviet trauma emerge into what we hoped would be the exhilarating light of freedom What we have witnessed however is a slow and painful process of progression and regression of hope and disillusionment of unexpected psychological barriers invisible walls that block the progress we had hoped for In Beyond Invisible Walls East European therapists themselves draw a compelling picture of the waves of trauma that their people endured the institutions of trauma that remained well after Stalin's era and their impact on survivors and their families They describe the psychological remnants of those years walls that confine people by unconsciously preserving old adaptations to political terror walls that divide one part of the mind from another and walls that rise between one generation and the next These therapists' stories allow us a striking glimpse into how patients' trauma evokes the therapists' own wounds how both speaker and empathic listener find their way to a healing process how the two begin to dismantle these invisible walls
