Maple Shade, 2007-11-01 Maple Shade's history spans more than three centuries starting when John and Sarah Roberts arrived from Burlington New Jersey in 1682 The settlement became more permanent in 1794 when Main Street was constructed allowing a connection to the King's Highway and to the Cooper River ferry In 1811 property was set aside for the Chesterford School also known as the Little Red Schoolhouse In 1867 the township gained an identity with a train station and a rail stop Formerly known as Chester Township the town was now called Maple Shade Along with the railroad came various industries and businesses several shops a post office and an active brick making business Maple Shade gradually changed from a rural community to a suburban town Today many of these early settlers are still known through street names Robert Stiles Samuel Coles Alexander Mecray and the Rudderows were all early settlers of Maple Shade

Jersey City Patrick B. Shalhoub, 1995-10-01 Patrick Shalhoub has brought together over two hundred fascinating photographs and prints of Jersey City which bring to life the people places and events which have created the city's vibrant and colorful history over the centuries He takes us on a journey into the past We see the farming communities which dominated the locality from the 1660s through the middle of the nineteenth century when the area was part of the larger Bergen Township We then experience the arrival of the immigrants the advent of industrialization and the rapid growth of Jersey City from a cluster of farmsteads and villages into the second largest city in New Jersey Immigration has been the lifeblood of Jersey City's history and through the images selected here we witness how Jersey City sprang to life with the influx of immigrants between 1830 and 1920 at first Irish German and British and later immigrants from southern and eastern Europe including Italians Poles Russians and Slovaks African Americans were present in Bergen Township from the early days of the city but their numbers increased with the migration of laborers from the South in the first half of the twentieth century and their important contribution to the city continued In recent decades new communities have grown in Jersey City including Latin American Asian Indian Egyptian Filipino and Haitian communities
