Picturing Plants Gill Saunders, 1995 Picturing the Book of Nature Sachiko Kusukawa, 2012-05-21 Because of their spectacular naturalistic pictures of plants and the human body Leonhart Fuchs s De historia stirpium and Andreas Vesalius s De humani corporis fabrica are landmark publications in the history of the printed book But as Picturing the Book of Nature makes clear they do more than bear witness to the development of book publishing during the Renaissance and to the prominence attained by the fields of medical botany and anatomy in European medicine Sachiko Kusukawa examines these texts as well as Conrad Gessner's unpublished Historia plantarum and demonstrates how their illustrations were integral to the emergence of a new type of argument during this period a visual argument for the scientific study of nature To set the stage Kusukawa begins with a survey of the technical financial artistic and political conditions that governed the production of printed books during the Renaissance It was during the first half of the sixteenth century that learned authors began using images in their research and writing but because the technology was so new there was a great deal of variety of thought and often disagreement about exactly what images could do how they should be used what degree of authority should be attributed to them which graphic elements were bearers of that authority and what sorts of truths images could and did encode Kusukawa investigates the works of Fuchs Gessner and Vesalius in light of these debates scrutinizing the scientists treatment of illustrations and tracing their motivation for including them in their works What results is a fascinating and original study of the visual dimension of scientific knowledge in the sixteenth century Physicians and Surgeons in Glasgow, 1599-1858 Kordesch, 1999-07-01 Traces the establishment of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow as a licensing body to its eminence as a centre of teaching in the 18th century. The text then covers the subsequent decline of the college in the 19th century with an account of how in conjunction with Glasgow University it re established itself as the guarantor of high medical standards of learning and practice Of Books and Botany in Early Modern England Leah Knight, 2016-12-05 Contemplating the textual gardens poetic garlands and epigrammatic groves which dot the landscape of early modern English print Leah Knight exposes and analyzes the close configuration of plants and writing in the period She argues that the early modern cultures and cultivation of plants and books depended on each other in historically specific and novel ways that yielded a profusion of linguistic conceptual metaphorical and material intersections Examining both poetic and botanical texts as well as the poetics of botanical texts this study focuses on the two outstanding English botanical writers of the sixteenth century William Turner and John Gerard to suggest the unexpected historical relationship between literature and science in the early modern genre of the herbal In depth readings of their work are situated amid chapters that establish the broader context for the interpenetration of plants and writing in the period s cultural practices in order to illuminate a complex interplay between materials and discourses rarely considered in tandem today Herbarium Robyn Stacey, Ashley Hay, 2004-10-18 This stunningly beautiful book throws open the closed doors of the Sydney herbaria and the history of Australia's flora In the Herbarium Maura C. Flannery, 2023-05-30 How herbaria illuminate the past and future of plant science Collections of preserved plant specimens known as herbaria have existed for nearly five centuries These pressed and labeled plants have been essential resources for scientists allowing them to describe and differentiate species and to document and research plant changes and biodiversity over time including changes related to climate Maura C Flannery tells the history of herbaria from the earliest collections belonging to such advocates of the technique as sixteenth century botanist Luca Ghini to the collections of poets politicians and painters and to the digitization of these precious specimens today She charts the growth of herbaria during the Age of Exploration the development of classification systems to organize the collections and herbaria's indispensable role in the tracking of climate change and molecular evolution Herbaria also have historical aesthetic cultural and ethnobotanical value these preserved plants can be linked to the Indigenous peoples who used them the collectors who sought them out and the scientists who studied them This book testifies to the central role of herbaria in the history of plant study and to their continued value not only to biologists but to entirely new users as well gardeners artists students and citizen scientists Visual Cultures in Science and Technology Klaus Hentschel, 2014 This book aims to provide a synthesis of the history generation use and transfer of images in scientific practice It delves into the rich reservoir of case studies on visual representations in scientific and technological practice that have accumulated over the past couple of decades by historians sociologists and philosophers of science The main aim is thus located on the meta level It adopts an integrative view of recurrently noted general features of visual cultures in science and technology something hitherto unachieved and believed by many to be a mission impossible By systematic comparison of numerous case studies the purview broadens away from myopic microanalysis in search of overriding patterns The many different disciplines and research areas involved encompass mathematics technology natural history medicine the geosciences astronomy chemistry and physics. The chosen examples span the period from the Renaissance to the late 20th century The broad range of visual representations in scientific practice is treated as well as schooling in pattern recognition design and implementation of visual devices and a narrowing in on the special role of illustrators and image specialists Imperial Nature Jim Endersby, 2020-05-21 Joseph Dalton Hooker 1817 1911 was an internationally renowned botanist a close friend and early supporter of Charles Darwin and one of the first and most successful British men of science to become a full time professional He was also Jim Endersby argues the perfect embodiment of Victorian science A vivid picture of the complex interrelationships of scientific work and scientific ideas Imperial Nature gracefully uses one individual s career to illustrate the changing world of science in the Victorian era By analyzing Hooker's career Endersby offers vivid insights into the everyday activities of nineteenth century naturalists considering matters as diverse as botanical illustration and microscopy classification and specimen transportation and storage to reveal what they actually did how they earned a living and what drove their scientific theories What emerges is a rare glimpse of Victorian scientific practices in action By focusing on science s material practices and one of its foremost practitioners Endersby ably links concerns about empire professionalism and philosophical practices to the forging of a nineteenth century scientific identity I'm Not Myself at All Kristina Huneault, 2018-07-16 Notions of identity have long structured women s art Dynamics of race class and gender have shaped the production of artworks and oriented their subsequent reassessments Arguably this is especially true of art by women and of the socially engaged criticism that addresses it If identity has been a problem in women s art however is more identity the solution In this study of nineteenth and early twentieth century art in Canada Kristina Huneault offers a meditation on the strictures of identity and an exploration of forces that unsettle and realign the self Looking closely at individual artists and works Huneault combines formal analysis with archival research and philosophical inquiry building nuanced readings of objects that range from the canonical to the largely unknown Whether in miniature portraits or genre paintings botanical drawings or baskets women artists reckoned with constraints that limited understandings of themselves and others They also forged creative alternatives At times identity features in women's artistic work as a failed project at other times it marks a boundary beyond which they were able to expand explore and exult Bringing together settler and indigenous forms of cultural expression and foregrounding the importance of colonialism within the development of art in Canada I m Not Myself at All observes and reactivates historical art by women and prompts readers to consider what a less restrictive conceptualization of selfhood might bring to current patterns of cultural analysis Domesticity in the Making of Modern Science Donald L. Opitz, Staffan Bergwik, Brigitte Van Tiggelen, 2016-01-26 The history of the modern sciences has long overlooked the significance of domesticity as a physical social and symbolic force in the shaping of knowledge production This book provides a welcome reorientation to our understanding of the making of the modern sciences globally by emphasizing the centrality of domesticity in diverse scientific enterprises Didactic Literature in England 1500–1800 Sara Pennell, 2017-03-02 Ranging from music to astronomy gardening to the Bible this essay collection is the first multi disciplinary volume to examine a kind of text that was a staple of early modern English publishing the how to book It tackles a wide range of subjects grammars music books gardening manuals teach yourself book keeping while highlighting the commonalities of diverse texts as didactic works and situating this material in wider intellectual and material contexts An introductory essay explores the uses of didactic texts in early modern culture evaluates their relationships with other literary forms and establishes the significance of such texts within the cultural history of the period There follow contributions by an international group of scholars from a broad range of disciplines including the history of science literature linguities and musicology. The volume addresses the important issue of how texts that tend to be regarded today as non literary functioned within early modern literature It also evaluates relationships between textual prescription and actual practices and the early modern conception of experience as opposed to knowledge that presently concern social and cultural historians and historians of science Drawing attention to non fictional didactic texts as opposed to the imaginative and political writings that have been its focus until now Didactic Literature in England 1500 1800 adds a new dimension to the study of reading readership and publishing All in all it constitutes a substantial contribution to histories of knowledge of educational processes and practices and to the history of the book in early modern England Cultivated Power Elizabeth Hyde, 2005-04-04 Cultivated Power explores the collection cultivation and display of flowers in early modern France at the historical moment when flowering plants piqued the curiosity of European gardeners and botanists merchants and ministers and dukes and kings alike Worm Work Janelle A. Schwartz, 2012 Worms Natural history is riddled with them Literature is crawling with them From antiquity to today the ubiquitous and multiform worm provokes an immediate discomfort and unconscious distancing it remains us against them in anthropocentric anxiety. So there is always something muddled or dirty or even offensive when talking about worms Rehabilitating the lowly worm into a powerful aesthetic trope Janelle A Schwartz proposes a new framework for understanding such a strangely animate nature Worms she declares are the very matter with which the Romantics rethought the relationship between a material world in constant flux and the human mind working to understand it Worm Work studies the lesser known natural historical records of Abraham Trembley and his contemporaries and the familiar works of Erasmus Darwin Charles Darwin William Blake Mary Shelley and John Keats to expose the worm as an organism that is not only reviled as a taxonomic terror but revered as a sign of great order in nature as well as narrative This book traces a pattern of cultural production a vermiculture that is as transformative of matter as it is of mind It distinguishes decay or division as positive processes in Romantic era writings compounded by generation or renewal and used to represent the biocentric complex structuring of organicism Offering the worm as an archetypal figure through which to recast the evolution of a literary order alongside questions of taxonomy from 1740 to 1820 and on Schwartz unearths Romanticism as a rich humus of natural historical investigation and literary creation Women and Their Gardens Catherine Horwood, 2012-04 From the golden age in English history to today s gardeners and designers this volume recognizes women s contributions to gardening in Britain and around the worldspanning more than four centuries Despite growing vegetables for their kitchens tending herbs for their medicine cupboards and teaching other women about the craft before agricultural schools officially existed women have been mere footnotes in the horticultural annals for specimens collected abroad These pioneers influence on the style of gardens in the present day is illustrated here in a style both accessible and scholarly Presenting a rare bouquet this collection shares the stories of more than 200 women who have been involved withgarden design plant collecting flower arranging botanical art garden writing and education Flora's Empire Eugenia W. Herbert, 2012-01-31 Like their penchant for clubs cricket and hunting the planting of English gardens by the British in India reflected an understandable need on the part of expatriates to replicate home as much as possible in an alien environment In Flora's Empire Eugenia W Herbert argues that more than simple nostalgia or homesickness lay at the root of this garden imperialism however Drawing on a wealth of period illustrations and personal accounts many of them little known she traces the significance of gardens in the long history of British relations with the subcontinent To British eyes she demonstrates India was an untamed land that needed the visible stamp of civilization that gardens in their many guises could convey Colonial gardens changed over time from the garden houses of eighteenth century nabobs modeled on English country estates to the herbaceous borders gravel walks and well trimmed lawns of Victorian civil servants As the British extended their rule they found that hill stations like Simla offered an ideal retreat from the unbearable heat of the plains and a place to coax English flowers into bloom Furthermore India was part of the global network of botanical exploration and collecting that gathered up the world's plants for transport to great imperial centers such as Kew And it is through colonial gardens that one may track the evolution of imperial ideas of governance Every Government House and Residency was carefully landscaped to reflect current ideals of an ordered society At Independence in 1947 the British left behind a lasting legacy in their gardens one still reflected in the design of parks and information technology campuses and in the horticultural practices of home gardeners who continue to send away to England for seeds Archaeological Theory Today Ian Hodder, 2014-02-27 Now in a revised and updated second edition this volume provides an authoritative account of the current status of archaeological theory as presented by some of its major exponents and innovators over recent decades It summarizes the latest developments in the field and looks to its future exploring some of the cutting edge ideas at the forefront of the discipline The volume captures the diversity of contemporary archaeological theory Some authors argue for an approach close to the natural sciences others for an engagement with cultural debate about representation of the past Some minimize the relevance of culture to societal change while others see it as central some focus on the contingent and the local others on long term evolution While few practitioners in theoretical archaeology would today argue for a unified disciplinary approach the authors in this volume increasingly see links and convergences between their perspectives. The volume also reflects archaeology s new openness to external influences as well as the desire to contribute to wider debates The contributors examine ways in which archaeological evidence contributes to theories of evolutionary psychology as well as to the social sciences in general where theories of social relationships agency landscape and identity are informed by the long term perspective of archaeology The new edition of Archaeological Theory Today will continue to be essential reading for students and scholars in archaeology Visualizing Disease Domenico Bertoloni Meli, 2018-01-19 Visual anatomy books and in the social sciences more generally have been a staple of medical practice and study since the mid sixteenth century But the visual representation of diseased states followed a very different pattern from anatomy one we are only now beginning to investigate and understand With Visualizing Disease Domenico Bertoloni Meli explores key questions in this domain opening a new field of inquiry based on the analysis of a rich body of arresting and intellectually challenging images reproduced here both in black and white and in color Starting in the Renaissance Bertoloni Meli delves into the wide range of figures involved in the early study and representation of disease including not just men of medicine like anatomists physicians surgeons and pathologists but also draftsmen and engravers Pathological preparations proved difficult to preserve and represent and as Bertoloni Meli takes us through a number of different cases from the Renaissance to the mid nineteenth century we gain a new understanding of how knowledge of disease interactions among medical men and artists and changes in the technologies of preservation and Science Museums in representation of specimens interacted to slowly bring illustration into the medical world Transition Carin Berkowitz, Bernard Lightman, 2017-07-19 The nineteenth century witnessed a dramatic shift in the display and dissemination of natural knowledge across Britain and America from private collections of miscellaneous artifacts and objects to public exhibitions and state sponsored museums The science museum as we know it an institution of expert knowledge built to inform a lay public was still very much in formation during this dynamic period Science Museums in Transition provides a nuanced comparative study of the diverse places and spaces in which science was displayed at a time when science and spectacle were still deeply intertwined when leading naturalists curators and popular showmen were debating both how to display their knowledge and how and whether they should profit from scientific work and when ideals of nationalism class politics and democracy were permeating the museum s walls Contributors examine a constellation of people spaces display practices experiences and politics that worked not only to define the museum but to shape public science and scientific knowledge Taken together the chapters in this volume span the Atlantic exploring private and public museums short and long term exhibitions and museums built for entertainment education and research and in turn raise a host of important questions about expertise and about who speaks for nature and for history Green Desire Rebecca Weld Bushnell, 2018-07-05 For Rebecca Bushnell English gardening books tell a fascinating tale of the human love for plants and our will to make them do as we wish These books powerfully evoke the desires of gardeners they show us gardeners who like poets imagine not just what is but what should be In particular the earliest English garden books such as Thomas Hill s The Gardeners Labyrinth or Hugh Platt's Floraes Paradise mix magical practices with mundane recipes even when the authors insist that they rely completely on their own experience in these matters Like early modern books of secrets early gardening manuals often promise the reader power to alter the essential properties of plants to make the gillyflower double to change the lily s hue or to grow a cherry without a stone Green Desire describes the innovative design of the old manuals examining how writers and printers marketed them as fiction as well as practical advice for aspiring gardeners Along with this attention to the delights of reading it analyzes the strange dignity and pleasure of garden labor and the division of men s and women s roles in creating garden art The book ends by recounting the heated debate over how much people could do to create marvels in their own gardens For writers and readers alike these green desires inspired dreams of power and self improvement fantasies of beauty achieved without work and hopes for order in an unpredictable world not so different from the dreams of gardeners today Eighteenth-century Ceramics Sarah Richards, 1999 This book probes the causes of and conditions for the preference of the members of the British Bangladeshi community for a religion based identity vis vis ethnicity based identity and the influence of Islamists in shaping the discourse The first book length study to examine identity politics among the Bangladeshi diaspora delves into the micro level dynamics the internal and external factors and the role of the state and locates these within the broad framework of Muslim identity and Islamism citizenship and the future of multiculturalism in Europe Empirically grounded but enriched with in depth analysis and written in an accessible language this study is an invaluable reference for academics policy makers and community activists Students and researchers of British politics ethnic migration diaspora studies cultural studies and political Islam will find the book extremely useful
