and Identity at the Water's Edge Tricia Cusack, 2017-07-05 The water's edge whether shore or riverbank is a marginal territory that becomes invested with layers of meaning. The essays in this collection present intriguing perspectives on how the water's edge has been imagined and represented in different places at various times and how this process contributed to the formation of social identities. Art and Identity at the Water's Edge focuses upon national coastlines and maritime heritage on rivers and seashore as regions of liminality and sites of conflicting identities and on the edge as a tourist setting. Such themes are related to diverse forms of art including painting, architecture, maps, photography and film. Topics range from the South African seaside resort of Durban to the French Riviera. The essays explore successive ideological mappings of the Jordan River and how Czech cubist architecture and painting shaped a new nationalist reading of the Vltava riverbanks. They examine post-Hurricane Katrina New Orleans as a filmic spectacle that questions assumptions about American identity and the coast depicted as a site of patriotism in nineteenth-century British painting. The collection demonstrates how waterside structures such as maritime museums and lighthouses and visual images of the water's edge have contributed to the construction of cultural and national identities.

Race, Place and the Seaside Daniel Burdsey, 2016-08-18 This is the first academic monograph to focus exclusively on issues of race, ethnicity, whiteness and multiculturalism at the English seaside. The book calls for acknowledgement of the racialised nature of this environment and proposes that its distinctive spaces, places, traditions and narratives should be included within broader analyses of race in contemporary Britain. Introducing the concept of coastal liquidity to explain shifting ethno-racial demographics, migratory politics and spatial dynamics at the edge of the sea along with the relative immobilities of the minority ethnic communities who move and reside there, the author provides a relational exploration of seaside experiences both as a locus of racialised categorisation, exclusion and subjugation and one of resistance, conviviality and intercultural exchange. Combining theoretical insight and empirical fieldwork, the book disrupts dominant thinking that fixes ontologically minority ethnic bodies to urban spaces and overcomes their erasure and silencing from the seaside landscapes of the popular imagination.

Walking Over the Waves Chris Foote Wood, 2008 In 2007 author and broadcaster Chris Foote Wood achieved a lifelong ambition to visit every seaside pier in England, Wales and the Isle of Man, all 56 of them. In words and fascinating pictures, he conveys the history, personalities, past and present, the stories and legends associated with each seaside pleasure pier. From initial construction to later repair through storms, shipwrecks and fires that sometimes led to complete destruction, they are all here: the longest, the shortest, the oldest and youngest, the finest to the most mundane. As the author enthuses, 'Each pier is different with its own personality; some piers are much as they were when they were built in the Victorian and Edwardian eras while others are wholly given over to entertainment and modern amusements. There's something about a pier that has universal appeal to all ages, generations and most nationalities. Enthusiasts appreciate a pier's form and structure while most holidaymakers are more concerned about the facilities on offer Some are content to stroll along the pier deck enjoying the fresh air exercise and views over the sea while others immerse themselves in the amusement arcades and funfairs that are a major feature of most of our remaining seaside piers Food drink and entertainment are all the more enjoyable when taken over the waves As well as the piers themselves Chris describes the pier railways a welcome facility on some of the longer piers and their associated cliff lifts As a bonus the multitude of facts and information make an ideal quiz questions and answers are provided
