Virtual Pilgrimages in the Convent Kathryn M. Rudy,2011 Walking in Christ s footsteps was a devotional ideal in the late Middle Ages However few nuns and religious women had the freedom or the funding to take the journey in the flesh Instead they invented and adjusted devotional exercises to visit the sites virtually These exercises largely based on real pilgrims accounts made use of images and objects that helped the beholder to imagine walking alongside Christ during his torturous march to Calvary Some provided scripts whereby votaries could animate paintings and sculptures Others required the nun to imagine her convent as a miniature model of Jerusalem This volume is grounded in more than a dozen texts from manuscripts written by medieval nuns and religious women which appear here transcribed and translated for the first time and a multiplicity of occasionally three dimensional images They attest to the ubiquity and variety of virtual pilgrimages among religious women and help to reveal the functions of certain late medieval devotional images Eastward Bound Rosamund Allen,2004 Eastward Bound looks at travel and travelers in the medieval period An international range of distinguished contributors offer discussions on a wide range of themes from the experiences of Crusaders on campaign to the lives of pilgrims missionaries and traders in the Middle East It examines their modes of travel equipment and methods of navigation and considers their expectations and experiences en route The contributions also look at the variety of motives public and private behind the decision to travel eastwards Other essays discuss the attitudes of Middle Eastern rulers to their visitors In so doing they provide a valuable perspective and insight into the behavior of the Europeans and non Europeans alike

Medieval pilgrimage was above all an expression of religious faith but this was not its only aspect Men and women of all classes went on pilgrimage for a variety of reasons sometimes by choice sometimes involuntarily They made both long and short journeys to Rome Jerusalem and Santiago on the one hand to innumerable local shrines on the other The routes that they followed by land and water made up a complex web which covered the face of Europe and their travels required a range of support services including the protection of rulers who were themselves often pilgrims Pilgrimage left its mark not only on the landscape but also on the art and literature of Europe Diana Webb s engaging book offers the reader a fresh introduction to the history of European Christian pilgrimage in the twelve hundred years between the conversion of Emperor Constantine and the beginnings of the Protestant Reformation As well as exploring this multi faceted activity it considers both the geography of pilgrimage and its significant cultural legacy The English Pilgrimage to Rome Judith F. The Arma Christi the cluster of objects associated with Christ s Passion was one of the most familiar iconographic devices of European medieval and early modern culture From the weapons used to torment and sacrifice the body of Christ sprang a reliquary tradition that produced active and contemplative devotional practices complex literary narratives intense lyric poems striking visual images and innovative architectural ornament This collection displays the fascinating range of intellectual possibilities generated by representations of these medieval objects and through the interdisciplinary collaboration of its contributors produces a fresh view of the multiple intersections of the spiritual and the material in the Middle Ages and Renaissance It also includes a new and authoritative critical edition of the Middle English Arma Christi poem known as O Vernicle that takes account of all twenty surviving manuscripts The book opens with a substantial introduction that surveys previous scholarship and situates the Arma in their historical and aesthetic contexts The ten essays that follow explore representative examples of the instruments of the Passion across a broad swath of history from some of their earliest formulations in late antiquity to their reformulations in early modern Europe Together they offer the first large scale attempt to understand the arma Christi as a unique cultural phenomenon of its own one that resonated across centuries in multiple languages genres and media The collection directs particular attention to this array of implements as an example of the potency afforded material objects in medieval and early modern culture from the glittering nails of the Old English poem Elene to the coins of the Middle English poem Sir Penny from garments and dice on Irish tomb sculptures to lanterns and ladders in Hieronymus Bosch's panel painting of St Christopher and from the altar of the Sistine Chapel to the printed prayer books of the Reformation
