The Slocum family of Northeastern Pennsylvania are the best of the white settlers: peace-loving Quakers who believe that the Indians hold the Light of God inside. It is from this good-hearted family that Frances is abducted during the Revolutionary war. As the child's terror subsides, she is slowly drawn into the sacred work and beliefs of her adoptive mother and of all the women of these Eastern tribes. Frances becomes Maconakwa, the Little Bear Woman of the Miami Indians. Then, long after the Indians are beaten and their last hope, Tecumseh, is killed, the Slocums hear word of their long lost daughter and head out to Indiana to meet their beloved Frances. But for Maconakwa, it is a moment of truth, the test of whether her heart is truly a red one. No Son of Mine Jonathan Corcoran, 2024-04. Born and raised in rural West Virginia, Jonathan Corcoran was the youngest and only son of three siblings in a family balanced on the precipice of poverty. His mother, a traditional evangelical and insular woman who had survived abuse and abandonment, was often his only ally. Together, they navigated a strained homelife dominated by his distant, gambling-addicted father and shared a seemingly unbreakable bond. When Corcoran left home to attend Brown University, a chasm between his upbringing and his reality began to open. As his horizons and experiences expanded, he formed new bonds beyond bloodlines and met the upper middle class Jewish man who would become his husband But this authentic life would not be easy and Corcoran was forever changed when his mother disowned him after discovering his truth In the ensuing fifteen years the two would come together only to violently spring apart As the COVID 19 pandemic raged in 2020 the cycle finally ended when he received the news that his mother had died In No Son of Mine Corcoran traces his messy estrangement from his mother through lost geographies the trees mountains and streams that were once his birthright as well as the lost relationships with friends and family and the sense of home that were stripped away when she said he was no longer her son A biography nestled inside a memoir No Son of Mine is Corcoran's story of alienation and his attempts to understand his mother's choice to cut him out of her life Through grief anger questioning and growth Corcoran explores the entwined yet separate histories and identities of his mother and himself

Object Lessons Sarah Anne Carter, 2018-07-12 Object Lessons How Nineteenth Century Americans Learned to Make Sense of the Material World examines the ways material things objects and pictures were used to reason about issues of morality race citizenship and capitalism as well as reality and representation in the nineteenth century United States For modern scholars an object lesson is simply a timeworn metaphor used to describe any sort of reasoning from concrete to abstract But in the 1860s object lessons were classroom exercises popular across the country Object lessons helped children to learn about the world through their senses touching and seeing rather than memorizing and repeating leading to new modes of classifying and comprehending material evidence drawn from the close study of objects pictures and even people In this book Sarah Carter argues that object lessons taught Americans how to find and comprehend the information in things from a type metal fragment to a whalebone sample Featuring over fifty images and a full color insert this book offers the object lesson as a new tool for contemporary scholars to interpret the meanings of nineteenth century material cultural and intellectual life
